SAYS WASHINGTON ASKED SHIPMENT OF GERMAN GOODS

WAR BOARD LICENSED IT

4,000 TONS ARE LANDED

Boycott Committee Appeals to Consignees Not to Accept Merchandise.

The last of the cargo of 4,000 tons of German goods, including toys made in Germany, brought from Holland on the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam, was discharged yesterday into lighters and was distributed to the various consignees whose names appear on the ship's manifest with the exception of Butler Brothers, who declined to receive their part of the shipment. It was reported that the Holland-America Line had filled up space in the holds of the Nieuw Amsterdam with these products of an enemy country when Belgian goods, chiefly crockery and glassware, were awaiting shipment to America on the quays in Rotterdam and were left behind.

One of the officials of the steamship line denied this yesterday. He said that he did not believe there were any Belgian goods awaiting shipment in Holland because the Belgian frontier had been closed by the Germans for three years or more.

"As a matter of fact," the steamship official asserted, "the cargo of toys was brought over on the Nieuw Amsterdam chiefly to oblige the United States State Department after numerous requests, extending over a long period, had been made by it at the instigation of the importers. We could easily have brought other cargoes from Holland to America, and had no particular reason for taking the dolls and toys. For nearly a year the importers have been trying to get these German-made goods brought to America from Rotterdam and not a word of protest was said until the goods arrived here. If the toys were not wanted in America why didn't the officials of the State Department say so and they would have been left in the warehouses in Rotterdam."

Included in the cargo with the German toys are more than 3,000 cases of German chinaware and porcelain, which are consigned to various importing firms in the United States.

Richard M. Hurd, Chairman of the Boycott Committee of the American Defense Society, said yesterday that one of the consignees of the china is Pitkin & Brooks of Chicago, to whom he had sent a telegram asking the firm to refuse to accept the goods. He added that a similar telegram had been sent to Julius Rosenwald, President of Sears, Roebuck & Co., consignees of a part of the cargo of dolls and toys.

"To prevent loyal Americans from unknowingly purchasing German-made toys and other articles, which arrived on the Nieuw Amsterdam, it is urged that all customers examine such goods carefully before paying for them to see if the 'Made in Germany' is stamped on them." Mr. Hurd continued: "I have been informed that all the goods on the Dutch steamship were so marked, and it is a violation of the Federal laws for any person to remove marks from imported goods that show the country of origin."

Bernard Gunthel, of B. Gunthel, Inc., glassware importers, 25 West Broadway, said last night that he had a quantity of table glassware at Rotterdam which had been waiting shipment to New York since last February. It was made at Val St. Lambert, eight miles outside Liége, he said, and to the best of his belief was brought out of Belgium in relief barges through the canals via Eisjden and Maastricht to Rotterdam. This was the third shipment which he had got out of Belgium since the war began in August, 1914, he said. The first was in February, 1916, and the second in June, 1917. Both these shipments were brought here by the Holland-America line, he added, and he wanted to ship the last lot in July on the Nieuw Amsterdam but did not have the import license ready to send over to Rotterdam.

"I understand that the conditions have changed," he said, "in regard to

Turkish Peace Rumor Revived; Rioting in Constantinople

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Turkey has independently presented peace proposals to the Entente Nations, according to a report from Constantinople, forwarded by the correspondent at Copenhagen of the Exchange Telegraph Company. The negotiations are expected to end soon, it is added.

ATHENS, Oct. 29.—Rioting is in progress at Constantinople and Smyrna, according to a dispatch from Mytilene, Island of Lesbos, to the Patris. At both cities, the dispatch adds, Germans were attacked.

RESCUE CASTOFFS OF WAR AT HARBIN

1,055 Serbian and Montenegrin Refugees Had Been in Box Cars Since Feb. 19.

HARBIN, Oct. 28.—Living in box cars on the verge of starvation, miserable, cold, and despondent, 1,055 Serbians and Montenegrins were discovered by the All-American Special in Harbin freight yards.

The refugees left Odessa on Feb. 19, en route around the world toward their homes. They reached here in zero weather in the most pitiful condition, in which, except for the timely arrival of the Red Cross, they would probably have suffered the fate of 400 German prisoners who were locked in freight cars in Winter under the Czar's régime, and who were found frozen to death months later in the interior of Siberia.

Of all the refugees I have seen in Belgium, France, Poland, or Rumania, this sight beggars everything. For four days these people had no bread, and for two weeks no meat or vegetables. The children of the poorest were barefoot, and most of the women wore light Summer dresses of the most ragged description.

During the eight months of travel 140 children died of starvation and exposure and 50 adults perished.

Weeping, frantic, and desperate women and children and old men besieged the Red Cross workers, who were able to promise and deliver bread, meat, and clothing to every refugee.

The treatment which had been accorded these unfortunates was scandalous. They were the victims of red tape by various relief organizations and Governments. Once they were promised a large estate in Russia to be colonized. As they were about to settle there another Government interfered. They were then ordered to proceed to Vladivostok, and thence to Serbia via America.

Meanwhile their 83 box cars, into which they were packed, often sleeping on three rows of wooden shelves without blankets, were shoved from town to town, practically unscheduled. Sometimes they were sidetracked for days, when no food was available.

Now the French and American Governments are considering the ultimate destination of these people after their arrival at Vladivostok. It is proposed to send them to Shanghai and thence to France or Manila, where the Governor General has already promised them refuge.

According to American engineers who have just returned from the interior, this is only a sample of the kind of destitution from Harbin to the Urals.

ALLIES PUSH ON IN ITALY

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 29.—Conegliano, a town five miles northeast of the left bank of the River Piave, has been captured by the allied forces.

When the 1,000 prisoners taken there reached the river they fought eagerly to obtain places in the boats, so as to cross and eat a full meal.

It is reported that Archduke Joseph Ferdinand has replaced General Boroevic as the Austrian commander on the front along the Piave.

ROME, Oct. 29.—The battle begun on the Piave River Sunday by Italian and allied troops is continuing victoriously, the War Office announced today. Italian troops stormed the heights of Valdobbiadene. They also carried the heights of Colfosto and entered Susegana. Numerous guns were captured. French infantry assaulted Mont Pionar and captured it. The text of the statement reads:

The battle begun on the Piave Sunday is continuing victoriously. In two days of glorious fighting on the heights along the Treviso-Oderzo Railway we and our allies have taken possession of the left bank of the river. The Twelfth Army has taken the heights of Valdobbiadene.

French infantry has taken in assault Mont Pionar. The plain of Sernaglia is in our possession. We have carried the heights of Colfosco and have entered Susegana. Advance guards have pushed to the left of the Monticono.

Numerous guns have been captured. Four thousand of the prisoners taken yesterday have reached concentration places. Others still are on the left bank of the Piave.

British Blows Weaken Foe.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The resistance of the Austrians against the British in the Italian theatre appears to be weakening, according to an official communication issued tonight. The British Tenth Army continues its advance east of the Piave River. The text of the communication follows:

The advance of our Tenth Army continues according to plan. The enemy resistance appears to be weakening considerably. Early this morning the enemy was holding the line of the River Monticano with a number of machine guns. British cavalry and infantry forced a passage of this river northeast of Vazzola, making prisoners of several hundred of the enemy. The Porto Buffole Aerodrome is reported to be in flames.

Reports describing operations of the British forces under Lord Cavan pay high tribute to the brilliant and successful work of the Royal Air Force. From March 10 to Sept. 14 no fewer than 294 enemy airplanes were brought down and nine hostile balloons destroyed, with a loss to the British of only twenty-four machines.

VIENNA, Oct. 28, (Via London, Oct. 29.)—A great battle is raging on a front of thirty-seven miles east of the Brenta, according to the official statement to-

U-Boats Have Now Stopped Attacks on Passenger Ships

LONDON, Oct. 29.—For the time being there has been a cessation of U-boat attacks on passenger steamers, Andrew Bonar Law announced in the House of Commons today. But, he added, there have been attacks on other steamers during the last week.

At the Admiralty it is believed that if the inactivity continues, most of the U-boats will be withdrawn temporarily, the men will receive leave and the boats will be repaired preparatory to the last great effort on the part of Germany. One Admiralty officer says:

"If the war continues you may expect the submarine menace to be as great, if not greater, by January than any with which we have as yet had to deal."

Airmen Bomb Montigny and Damvillers — Meissner Defeats Eighth Adversary.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 29.—Abundant evidence is reaching our side of the line that the German soldiers opposing stubborn resistance to the American First Army north of Verdun are fighting under instructions from their officers that the harder they resist now the better the armistice terms that will be offered to the Germans. Prisoners declare they have implicit faith that success in holding back the Americans now will have an important effect on the diplomatic situation.

No important infantry activity occurred on the American front today. However, the artillery on both sides was busy, the Germans sending over some 7,500 shells and the Americans replying with some 10,000.

Conflans Region Shelled.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 29, (Associated Press.)—The American big guns cracked down on the main line of the railroad in the region of Conflans today and also shelled a large enemy troop concentration in the neighborhood of Mangiennes.

The Conflans line is important because it extends from Germany's principal communication line to Metz. The firing in the direction of Conflans continued intermittently throughout the day.

When a troop concentration was reported in the region of Bois de Villers and Mangiennes the guns were turned in that direction, hurling projectiles weighing approximately 1,500 pounds each.

At intervals also the big guns inside the American lines shelled the territory around Spincourt and Dommary-Baroncourt, both important railroad junctions.

Eighteen enemy airplanes were shot down by Pershing's aviators today. Five American machines were lost in carrying out important reconnoissance missions.

American aviators successfully bombed two points today where German troops were being assembled. In the morning a squadron of bombers, accompanied by protecting machines, dropped projectiles on Montigny. The troops scattered and an ammunition dump was set on fire. The railroad yards were also damaged.

Airmen Bomb Damvillers.

In the afternoon about fifty bombers attacked Damvillers, where other troops were concentrating. Observers reported a number of hits. About forty pursuit planes accompanied the bombers and engaged in many combats. Nine German machines were brought down. Three American planes are missing.

While protecting the American bombers this afternoon, Captain James A. Meissner of Brooklyn, N. Y., downed a Fokker in the region of Bantheville,

London Hears Peace Demands Will Go with Armistice Terms

LONDON, Oct. 29, (Associated Press.)—The Versailles conference, according to the report current in London this afternoon, has agreed on the main points of the armistice terms, which will now be considered by the military commanders.

The final peace terms, it is said, will be submitted to Germany simultaneously with the armistice terms.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Oct. 29.—The Austrian note may be considered as putting the seal on the certainty of a speedy German capitulation. Some observers here, however, remark that the fighting value of the enemy forces still remains considerable and suggest that resistance will be prolonged for some time further, with the idea of letting the nation down gently toward the idea of defeat; but this opinion is not widely held.

I am in a position to state with certainty that the military conditions of an armistice are such as will break Germania's sword irretrievably. If the enemy is rash enough to refuse them events will move on to their appointed climax.

Although the pressure in favor of peace appears to be coming chiefly from the interior of Germany, the French war chiefs are convinced that the precarious situation of the German Army is really the deciding factor. More than one far-sighted French commander was not afraid to say as long ago as two months back that the enemy was involved in a mesh of circumstances whose inevitable end was colossal disaster. I reported this optimism at the time in terms that may then have seemed unduly hopeful, but the officers' foresight has been justified, and every day brings the prophecy nearer fulfillment unless the Germans choose the saner policy of complete surrender.

Throughout the French Army there is not the faintest danger that the desire for peace, keen as it is, will interfere with the relentless prosecution of operations. From Foch to the second-class poilu, all are filled with the iron determination to drive Germany to the bitter end unless unqualified capitulation saves them the trouble.

As I write Debeney's troops are battering at the old castle fortress whose subterranean passages strengthened with a system of trenches and barbed wire, form the last bastion of the Guise defense. During the fighting heavy explosions in the German lines were signaled, and it is probable that the evacuation of the city is already in progress.

This desperate struggle typifies the attitude of the whole French Army. The soldiers have set their hands to the work of breaking Germany and will not halt until their task is accomplished.

German army orders recently seized afford evidence of a shortage of munitions and transport and of air inferiority. There is also reason to suppose that the supply of gasoline is diminished.

Andrassy Asks Lansing To Induce the President To Hasten Action on Peace

VIENNA, Oct. 29, (via Basle, Switzerland.)—Austria-Hungary, through her new Foreign Minister, Count Andrassy, has sent a note to Secretary of State Lansing requesting the Secretary's intervention with President Wilson for an immediate armistice on all fronts, and for the commencement of peace negotiations. The note says:

Immediately after having taken direction of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and after the dispatch of the official answer to your note of Oct. 18, 1918, by which you were able to see that we accept all the points and principles laid down by President Wilson in his various declarations, and are in complete accord with the efforts of President Wilson to prevent future wars and to create a League of Nations, we have taken preparatory measures, in order that Austrians and Hungarians may be able, according to their own desire and without being in any way hindered, to make a decision as to their future organization, and to rule it.

Since the accession to power of Emperor King Charles his immovable purpose has been to bring an end to the war. More than ever this is the desire of the Sovereign of all the Austro-Hungarian peoples, who acknowledge that their future destiny can only be accomplished in a pacific world, by being freed from all disturbances, privations, and sorrows of war.

This is why I address you directly, Mr. Secretary of State, praying that you will have the goodness to intervene with the President of the United States in order that in the interest of humanity, as in the interest of all those who live in Austria-Hungary, an immediate armistice may be concluded on all fronts, and for an overture that immediate negotiations for peace will follow.

Austria Begs Aid of All Her Foes.

VIENNA, Oct. 29, (via Basle.)—The Austro-Hungarian Government has communicated its latest note to the French, British, Japanese and Italian Governments, begging the approval and support of these nations.

BASLE, Oct. 29.—A semi-official note issued at Vienna today on Austria's reply to President Wilson says:

"Austria was obliged to conform to the methods of President Wilson, who had successively replied to the three members of the Triple Alliance, and act apart from her allies. The Monarchy, which has formally adopted President Wilson's line of action, shares his opinion, as was shown by the Emperor's manifesto to the peoples, which, in proclaiming the federalization of the Monarchy, exceeded President Wilson's program.

"However, the complete reorganization of Austria can only be carried out after an armistice. If Austria-Hungary has declared herself ready to enter into negotiations for an armistice and for peace, without awaiting the result of negotiations with other States, that does not necessarily signify an offer of a separate peace. It means that she is ready to act separately in the interests of the re-establishment of peace."

KAISER'S COUNCIL ACTING FIRMLY

Berlin Agitated by "Important Decisions" Reached at Saturday's Conference.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Extremely important decisions were taken at the meeting of the Crown Council, held under the presidency of Emperor William at Berlin on Saturday, says a dispatch from Zurich to Le Journal.

The greatest agitation prevails in the Reichstag, where groups of Deputies, the message adds, are sitting continuously.

Considerable nervousness, it is said, prevails in German military circles as a result of the decisions reached at the Crown Council. The German Government, it is declared, is determined to resort to extreme measures.

The Arbeiter Zeitung of Vienna declares that Germany and Austria-Hungary will capitulate without delay.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 29.—The German Federal Council has approved the bill amending the Imperial Constitution in the form as adopted by the Reichstag, according to a Berlin telegram.

The Reichstag on Saturday amended the Constitution by placing the military authorities under the control of the civil government. The measure was passed by a large majority. The retirement of General Ludendorff has been reported to have been due to the passage of the measure by the Reichstag.

RHINE GERMANS IN PANIC FLIGHT

LONDON, Oct. 29, (British Wireless Service.)—Civilian departures from the lower Rhineland and part of Westphalia, which were begun on a small scale when the first allied bombs hit Cologne, have developed into a panic flight, according to The Hague correspondent of The Daily Mail.

The working population of Cologne, seeing the war factories closed down, big houses evacuated, and east-bound trains crowded with well-to-do fugitives, are demanding immediate peace more insistently than ever.

Demonstrations have been increasingly violent. A manifesto issued by a section of the Social Democrats declares that if the Emperor does not voluntarily abdicate he will be removed. It says:

"If the necessity arises and the hour comes, the organized masses of labor, with strong middle-class support, will remove every hindrance to peace which does not voluntarily yield to the will of the huge majority of the people."

All the banks are being stormed by depositors, who are withdrawing their savings in German banknotes of as high a value as are obtainable, the 100-mark note having an appreciable market value

REPUBLICAN SPIRIT GROWS

Tell Emperor That Teuton Troops Must Be Removed from Their Midst.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Serious rioting took place at Budapest last evening, according to a Budapest dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, which is quoted in a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. Many lives are said to have been lost.

A deputation was sent by the party of Count Michael Karolyi to the castle at Budapest to ask Archduke Joseph to appoint Karolyi Premier, it is said.

A great crowd followed the deputation and attempted to break through the military guard. Severe fighting followed, the soldiers using machine guns and bayonets.

A large number of persons were killed and the fighting was still in progress when the telegram was dispatched at 9 o'clock Monday evening.

The correspondent adds that the republican movement is growing, and that a general labor revolt may be expected at any moment.

Empire Seems in Dissolution.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Further steps indicating the imminent dissolution of the Austro-Hungarian Empire are announced in dispatches today from many places on the Continent.

A Vienna dispatch received in Paris by the Havas Agency says that the Executive Committee of the German parties in Austria has formed a Provisional Government and has decided to send a separate note to President Wilson.

Archduke Joseph [second cousin of Emperor Charles] has issued a proclamation stating that the Emperor has charged him with the task of securing the complete independence of Hungary, according to a dispatch from Budapest received in Copenhagen. The proclamation adds that peace will be aspired to at once and that Hungary will join a League of Nations, her integrity and unity being the first aim.

Karolyi Forms Independent State.

An independent and anti-dynastic State has been formed in Hungary under the leadership of Count Michael Karolyi in agreement with the Czechs and South Slavonians, according to Vienna reports received by the Politiken of Copenhagen. In a speech at Budapest, Karolyi declared that he had presented his program to Emperor Charles, who refused to accept it. Karolyi thereupon put into effect his plan for an independent State.

Another Budapest dispatch, received by way of Basle, says that Count Karolyi entered into negotiations yesterday at Vienna with Professor Lammasch, the new Austrian Premier, but without results, according to the Budapest newspapers. Count Karolyi returned to Budapest last night.

It is understood that Count Andrassy, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, raised objections to the appointment of Count Karolyi as Premier of Hungary and that King Charles then appointed Archduke Joseph to consult with the political leaders with the object of trying to bring about a solution of the political crisis.

"Abolition of the present parliamentary system.

"The recall of the Hungarian troops their homes and termination of the war without hope of safeguards for the interests of Hungary at the conclusion of peace.

"The abandonment of the German alliance.

"The dissolution of the Hungarian lower house, with subsequent elections by the direct and secret ballot of both male and female voters.

"Recognition of the new States of Ukraine, Poland, Czechoslovakia, the South Slave, and German Austria."

Hungarian Socialists to the number of 100,000 held a demonstration Sunday in the streets of Budapest. Count Karolyi and his followers addressed the crowds on behalf of a democratic Hungary. There were no disturbances.

A dispatch from Vienna received in Paris says the Czechoslovak Deputies, in an audience with Emperor Charles, asked that Austro-German troops be removed from their portions of the empire, and that Czechoslovak regiments be returned. It is said that they made it clear to the Emperor that an internal revolution might ensue if the request were not granted.

A delegation of the National Polish Committee today handed to M. Benes, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Czechoslovaks in Paris, an address giving assurance of fraternal solidarity on the occasion of the proclamation of independence by the Czechoslovaks. M. Trumbic, President of the Jugoslav Committee in Paris, has also sent M. Benes a greeting, reminding him of the community of interest between the Czechoslovaks and the Jugoslavs. M. Benes, in reply, said that independence would be impossible without the unification of the Serbians, Croatians, and Slovenes.

King Nicholas of Montenegro has sent a declaration to the Jugoslavs in which, after expressing his joy over President Wilson's reply to Austria and affirming the independence of the Union of Jugoslavs, he said:

Austria Ends Censorship.

The new Austrian Government has abolished censorship of the press, a report from Vienna received in Berne says.

Baron Chemecky, the Austrian publicist, has arrived in Switzerland, according to the Neue Zeitung of Zurich, which says that before he left Vienna he had an audience with Emperor Charles.

The unsettled conditions in Vienna are indicated by the following message addressed to King Alfonso of Spain from Don Jaime, son of the former Pretender, Don Carlos, which has been picked up in Paris from the wireless:

"Please do me the favor to order your Vienna Ambassador to act as the custodian of my household effects. I will be eternally grateful."

SLAVS ALOOF FROM KAROLYI.

Rumanians of Hungary Also Refuse to Join Him in Move.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Diplomatic dispatches received here today based on advices from Budapest say that Count Karolyi has failed in his attempt to establish an independent government in Hungary with representatives of all the people because the Slav and Rumanian representatives refused to join him. It is assumed that the Karolyi Government referred to in Vienna reports through Copenhagen was set up without the support of the Slavs and Rumanians.

According to the Budapest dispatches the situation there is extremely serious.

Peace treaties between the different nationalities of Austria-Hungary and the Entente powers are considered unavoidable.

What is reported as a "gigantic movement" has broken out. Its nature is yet only partially known, but it is said to be evident that the Magyar National Council has proclaimed its dictatorship and that Count Karolyi, as President of this body, has received the mission of making this decision known to Emperor Charles. The young Magyars are forming a military organization and the people in the streets of Budapest are demanding the renunciation of the political alliance with Germany.

JUGOSLAVS FIGHTING NOW IN MONTENEGRO

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Jugoslav units have crossed the Herzegovina frontier in Montenegro and are operating with the allied forces in that country, according to the official communication issued by the War Office tonight. It reads:

Eastern front—On the Danube front in the region of Vidin and of the Iron Gates there has been artillery firing. The Serbian vanguard, pushing the enemy northward, has reached the front of Stragari, the Raka River, and Resava, twenty kilometres north of Kragjuevatz, and taken several hundred prisoners and guns and machine guns.

In the direction of Juige and the frontier of Herzegovina Serbian advanced elements have reached the pass west of Cacak. Jugoslav units, operating in Montenegro, have passed beyond Ipek and Diakovo.

ROME, Oct. 28.—Italian troops in Albania have occupied Alessio and are pressing on to the Montenegrin border, as is indicated in the following bulletin issued by the War Office:

In Albania our troops are closely pressing the enemy's rear guards. On the morning of Oct. 27 they entered Alessio. They are marching on San Giovanni di Medua, (about fifteen miles south of Scutari and of the Montenegrin border at the coast.)

VIENNA, Oct. 28, (via London, Oct. 29.)—Army Headquarters today made public the following:

Balkan Theatre—Near Alessio, on the Albanian coast, there have been rear guard engagements. On the Middle Drina there have been encounters between our guard troops and strong enemy bands.

The withdrawal of our troops in Serbia is taking place without disturbance from the enemy, and there was fighting yesterday only north of Kragujevats.

SALONIKI, Oct. 27.—General Danglis, Commander in Chief of the Greek Army, has arrived in Eastern Macedonia. He reviewed the Greek troops today, and expressed to the commanders his lively satisfaction over the good conduct and excellent morale of the soldiers.

The Greek forces are impatient to continue the campaign for the deliverance of the Greek population in Thrace and Asia Minor.

FOE QUITTING RUMANIA.

German Civilians, Stores, and Material Sent Back to Germany.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—An official dispatch from Switzerland today said several hundred German officials had arrived at Vienna in the last few days from occupied Rumania and reported that not a single German civilian remained in Bucharest.

The German military authorities in the city are sending to Germany as rapidly as possible all the stores and materials collected by their troops.

PARIS FEARS ANOTHER SNARE.

Only Safety in Depriving Teutons of Power, Papers Say.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—"The capitulation of Austria" is the unvarying caption with which the morning newspapers of Paris precede Count Julius Andrassy's note to President Wilson. The editorials, while accepting this conclusion, urge caution lest there be a hidden snare behind the Austrian offer.

"Beware of the last convulsions of the colossal enemy, who is not yet completely crushed," writes Maurice Barres in the Echo de Paris. "The situation will not clear until military defeat is acknowledged or inflicted. It will draw in its train the Central Empires, including Germany."

Alfred Capus, editor of Le Figaro, and all writers here agree that there can be a question of an armistice only on the terms set by the Allies. Count Andrassy, they say, represents nobody, and therefore separate peace with Austria-Hungary is absurd and impossible.

"The democracies of the Entente can maintain only one attitude—an armistice first, all their conditions of peace afterward, but only afterward," says L'Homme Libre.

Le Journal says:

"There is a unique opportunity to lay down a reasonable basis for the future edifice of Central Europe. The total dislocation of the Hapsburg monarchy threatens to strengthen Germany by the addition of 12,000,000 Germans and Austrians and as many Magyars. A centre of gravity is necessary in Middle Europe. This centre can only be at Vienna or Berlin. What will happen if we put Vienna and Berlin in the same helmet?"

SEE PAN GERMANISM'S FALL.

London Papers Say Austria's Note Means Her Ally's Collapse.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Austria's reply to President Wilson is viewed here as an unconditional surrender. Although recognized as an event of intrinsically the greatest moment, denoting the breaking up of the Hapsburg power, the main interest in the situation lies in the effect it will inevitably have on the position of Germany.

"It removes," says The Telegraph, "any lingering doubt as to the total and irremediable defeat of Germany, which, besides being a most grave military misfortune, involves ultimate crushing political defeat, as it destroys the monstrous fabric known as Pan Germanism."

The Chronicle says:

"It completes the isolation of Germany, which, if it decides on a war of defense, must be prepared to meet invasion from the Austrian side, where the whole Italian Army will be able to operate against it."

The Daily News likens the chaos in Austria-Hungary to that in Russia, adding:

"Chaos may soon follow in Germany."

Emphasizing the serious consequences for Germany, The Post says:

"It now remains for Austria's plenipotentiaries to go with the white flag to Italian headquarters, and when Austria-Hungary has been disarmed and her armies demobilized, it will be for Italy and the Allies to decide upon the terms."

MACHINE GUNS CHECK REJOICING IN WARSAW

Crowds Celebrating Acceptance of Wilson's Peace Terms Fired on by German Troops.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 29.—From Warsaw the Social Demokraten hears that when Prince Max in the Reichstag accepted President Wilson's program there were great rejoicings in Poland. The Socialist Party unanimously proclaimed a general strike for one day for a demonstration to mark the occasion.

The demonstration took place on Oct. 15. The whole population of Warsaw was in the streets. Good order prevailed at the beginning, but at 2 o'clock great crowds of demonstrators marched through the streets carrying red flags, claiming a general amnesty and calling for the return of 300,000 Polish workers deported to Germany.

Then the German military party took action. When the crowds refused to obey an order to disperse soldiers fired upon them with machine guns, wounding 32 persons.

In the evening a gathering of 40,000 workers protested against the action of the soldiers in firing on the demonstrators at a moment when Social Democrats sat at the Government table in Berlin. The meeting called for the institution of a Democratic Polish republic.

Rodek has been sent by the Bolsheviats from Petrograd to organize a Bolshevist party in Warsaw.

Nicolai Lenine, in a public letter, declares the Russian proletariat will not carry out the errands of imperialistic Germany by breaking the Brest-Litovsk treaty, when the anti-militarist forces in Germany will compel the bourgeoise to answer for the signing of such a treaty.

ENDS ARMY PRESS BUREAU.

Germany Abolishes the One at German Headquarters.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The press bureau at German general headquarters has been dissolved, according to an official dispatch today from Switzerland. The dispatch says that some of the Berlin newspapers declared the bureau was responsible for spreading false news regarding the military power of the Central Empires.

The German military party is putting out a story that a Bolshevist uprising is threatened in Germany, according to reports reaching the State Department today from Switzerland. These reports are being circulated in Switzerland and Holland by German agents and newspapers. The evident intent of the reports, it is believed here, is to persuade the Allies not to make too drastic terms with Germany in the peace settlements.

EXPECT VIENNA PLEA TO GO TO THE ALLIES

Washington Believes the President Will Treat Austrian Note as He Did Germany's.

OFFICIAL NOTE PRESENTED

Said Not to Differ Essentially from Unofficial Version—Latter Discussed by Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—In the absence of any official announcement, there was a somewhat widespread impression here tonight that Austria-Hungary's renewed appeal to President Wilson for an immediate armistice and peace would be transmitted to the allied Governments, before which Germany's request has been placed.

In some quarters, however, there was a disposition to accord different treatment to the Austro-Hungarian plea because of the complex problems arising from the new conditions that apparently have developed in the dual monarchy since the President replied to Austria-Hungary's original request for an immediate cessation of hostilities.

The official text of the Austro-Hungarian note was delivered to Secretary Lansing today by the Swedish Minister soon after the regular Tuesday meeting of the Cabinet, at which, it was understood, the unofficial version, as transmitted by The Associated Press from Basle, Switzerland, received consideration. If any definite conclusion was reached, the fact was not revealed, officials stating that they could not indicate what disposition would be made of the note in advance of a careful study of the official version.

The text received at the Swedish Legation was in French, and it has not yet been translated at the State Department. After a preliminary examination it was said there that it did not differ essentially from the unofficial text as received from Switzerland. No indication was given as to when the translation of the note would be made public.

Probably Armistice First.

Those adhering to the opinion that different treatment should be accorded to the Austro-Hungarian request than was given to the plea of the German Government pointed to cable dispatches today reporting the establishment of the independent State of Hungary, of the recognition by that State of the independence of the Czechoslovak and Jugloslav provinces and also of German Austria, as suggesting the introduction of complex factors into the problem of settling with the dual monarchy. Even if some of the many nationalities that make up that empire becomes independent before peace is arranged, it was said that they still must bear their individual shares of the responsibilities for the acts committed by the empire. Logically each might have to sue for a separate peace.

It is believed, however, that the American Government will not be diverted from the pursuit of its main object by consideration of these individual uprisings in Austria-Hungary. It probably will follow consistently the course pursued in dealing with Germany and insist on treating first the proposition for an armistice, which it regards as a purely military question, leaving to the final peace conference the adjustment of the claims to independent existence of the various oppressed nationalities in Austria-Hungary.

If that course is followed, not only the remnant of the Dual Empire over which Emperor Charles still holds sway but the separatist State of Hungary and even Bohemia and the Jugoslav sections must accept the terms to be laid down by the Supreme Military Council at Versailles. This, many observers said, probably would involve disarmament, demobilization, opening of the Austro-Hungarian railways to the Entente Allies and guarantees in the shape of occupied fortresses to insure the safety of the Entente Armies against treacherous attacks in the rear if they should advance to strike Germany from the south.

Vienna's plea for an armistice is interpreted quite generally in military circles here as an offer to capitulate as completely as did Bulgaria. Military officials, both Allied and American, believe that the complete elimination of Austria-Hungary as a belligerent would bring the world war within sight of an end.

Effect of Capitulation.

While there is doubt that it would be practical to attack Germany from the south, the best informed Entente officers on duty here firmly believe that Germany would not attempt to fight on with Austria out of the war. The greatest fear the Germans have, they say, is of invasion of German soil, and in the end, they believe, Germany will capitulate rather than face that contingency.

Assessing the probable results of Austro-Hungarian surrender, officers pointed out that it would release the Italian armies for operations elsewhere. Unless Turkey has also dropped out of the fight by that time, it would seem logical, it was said, to expect that these forces would be turned at once to pressing the campaign against Constantinople. With Turkey also out, the two Italian divisions now in France could be quickly supplemented and another great army erected on that front to crush the wavering German lines.

One result of Austro-Hungarian capitulation which cannot be gauged reliably in advance is the situation of the thirty or more German divisions in Russia. The German General Staff is known to have reduced the German forces in Russia to what was regarded as the minimum of safety when the Spring drive in France was prepared. Recently, however, it has been learned that some of the divisions left there had been brought hastily to the western line and several hurried to the Danube front.

Lacking Austro-Hungarian help in Russia, the situation of the German forces there would appear to be perilous, and officers say it would become vitally necessary that they be so disposed as to rest upon the Russo-German frontier. That would mean a great curtailment of Russian territory they could police, and complete evacuation of Russia by the Germans was regarded as the logical result.

WAR SPIRIT RISES IN SPANISH CORTES

Romanones Denounces Neutrality Policy and Premier Maura Threatens to Resign.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The Spanish Cortes held an exciting session yesterday, according to a dispatch from Madrid to the Petit Parisien. Count Romanones, the Minister of Public Instruction, condemned the unrestricted neutral policy of the Spanish Government and other orators spoke in a similar vein. Count Romanones asserted that Spain should adopt a pro-ally policy. He added that if Spain wanted to enjoy a lasting peace she must declare her position without hesitation.

Premier Maura, according to the dispatch, declared his intention of resigning. He asserted that the political crisis would then become acute and that the entire nation would be compelled to intervene in order to bring about a solution.

RETURN TO BASIS OF PEACE TO BE SLOW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—In the great task of internal reconstruction after the war, the War Industries Board seems certain to continue in existence and play a large part in the transformation of war manufacturing back to peace time production. How to stop the manufacture of shells, guns, and army and navy supplies, without stopping the industrial wheels which make them, and to furnish new work for these wheels, is a problem which the War Industries Board will be called upon to solve.

Officials intimate that means will be found of continuing the current plans for eliminating strikes, of giving labor greater voice in the management of industrial plants, and of extending both labor and trade federations to promote collective bargaining. They suggest that the Government, through the War Finance Corporation, may aid in the conversion of industries from war to peace footing, reversing the existing priority of war enterprises. Railroad transportation, industrial production, and ocean shipping must be co-ordinated and supervised for a few years after peace comes as they have been during the war, in the opinion of Government leaders. Employment agencies, universities and schools, churches and other social organizations must cooperate to facilitate the placing of returned soldiers in the occupations where they are best fitted and most needed.

To do all this it is the belief in many official circles in Washington that most Government agencies which have sprung up during the war must continue to function for an indefinite time afterward. In Congress the spirit is reflected in at least three pending resolutions looking to creation of boards or commissions to study reconstruction. The Republicans advocate a survey by a committee of members of Congress. Senator Overman's resolution provides for appointment of a disinterested body of students of various problems. Senator Owen has a similar suggestion. Most Administration leaders are inclined to indorse Senator Overman's proposal.

President Wilson has discussed the questions of internal, as well as international reconstruction, with a few advisers, and it is understood that it was at his suggestion that the Council of National Defense went to work months ago gathering information from all departments and bureaus concerning their capabilities as peace-time bodies.

CO-OPERATE TO OUTFIT NEWLY-BUILT SHIPS

Navy and War Industries Board Will Aid Hurley—10,000-Ton Type Favored.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Navy Department and the War Industries Board are to co-operate with the Shipping Board in getting into commission newly launched vessels needed to take care of the War Department's enlarged military program.

These ships have been held up for lack of boilers and other fittings. Chairman Hurley announced today that the War Industries Board had agreed to divert immediately materials from other users to the manufacturers of the boilers and fittings, while the Navy Department would supply as much of such equipment as possible.

Mr. Hurley also said that the fittings manufactured for smaller vessels would be employed for the larger craft wherever feasible, and the commissioning of smaller vessels might be delayed temporarily.

The need at present, Mr. Hurley said, was for vessels of 10,000 tons and more. Construction of smaller vessels would proceed, he said, but not at the expense of the large freighters. Though no radical change will be made in the building program of the Emergency Fleet Corporation at the present time, it was intimated that in the future the majority of contracts would be for the larger type of ships. Gradually changes will be made in Great Lakes yards, where most of the smaller vessels are being constructed, so that larger ships may be built.

North Atlantic yards making small steel freighters have been notified that in the future they will be called upon to build ships of almost twice the tonnage of those now being turned out.

FALL OF GHENT NEAR, GERMAN FLANK IN PERIL

Enemy Is Still Trying to Hold a Corner Between Two Canals Along the Frontier.

SLUIS, Holland, Oct. 26.—Where a few days ago the Germans vigilantly guarded the Belgian-Dutch frontier are Belgian sentries, smiling and happy to be oncye again in their own country.

These are men who advanced with the Belgian army, proud to have freed their oppressed country.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was again in Belgium today and talked with many Belgian soldiers, who were delighted to welcome an American in their midst. They are all confident and state that if only the artillery could have been brought up more speedily the advance would have been two weeks earlier.

The Allies are now seven kilometers from Ghent and the city's fall is expected daily when the whole German flank near the Dutch frontier will be obliged to retreat.

The Belgian frontier is now very strictly guarded and passes are only obtainable from Belgian Headquarters. The electric current will be renewed soon for greater security.

This morning six observation balloons were visible above the allied lines from the frontier. The clear morning was very favorable for observation.

The Germans apparently attach great importance to the defense of the so-called "Wet Corner" between the wo canals on the Dutch frontier, for whereas they were obliged o leave much material behind on the coast in their hasty retreat, they have been obliged to bring up material from a considerable distance behind the front in order to defend the section.

They keep Stroobrigge also continually under fire in the hope of impeding the allied lines of communication with Bruges. Maldeghem and Aldeghem are also being heavily shelled.

EAGLE-1 IN COMMISSION.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Eagle-1, the first of the new type of submarine patrol vessels ordered by the navy, was put in commission yesterday at Detroit, and will be sent immediately to the Atlantic coast.

Several of the boats will probably be ready in time to get out before Winter closes the inland waterways.

BOLSHEVISM DYING, SAYS TSCHAIKOVSKI

MILITARY POWER NEEDED

ARCHANGEL, Russia, Oct. 23.—"Bolshevism already has spent its force. It is being kept alive by artificial means and its disappearance now is only a matter of time."

So I have just been assured by Tschaikowski, than whom probably no one has a better claim to be considered as the mouthpiece of democratic Russia, for he was the head of the unwieldly first northern government, consisting more or less of Socialistic members of the constituent assembyl, and remains head of the company of the present northern government, containing two members chosen by local industrial and commercial classes.

Moreover, he is one of five directors (elected by the congress of the constituent assembly at Ufa, now presumably having headquarters at Omsk) vested with general authority over the late empire—a directorate established in consonance with the wishes of the great union formed of all progressive parties for the regeneration of Russia, of which Tschaikowski himself is chairman.

"So far from being strong," he said, "the Bolsheviki merely show cleverness in the way they retain the co-operation of their fighting forces. This is done partly by lies, partly by terroism, partly by paying very heavily in cash and food, partly by allowing agents to indulge in all sorts of excesses. Bolshevism will disappear when the necessary military presure is applied, but the territory involved is enormous, and, as you know, the force hitherto employed has been very small.

Reds Distort World News.

Oct. 27.—From a battlefield prisoner we have just taken a copy of the Oct. 10 issue of The Red Army, a Bolshevist Moscow daily paper. It leads off in display lines of optimistic sensationalism, including "Poor Rising Against Rich, Siberia Ablaze, Fiery Rebellion, Arising Against Each Other Are Two Enemies, Work and Capital, Poor and Bourgeois, In Germany Revolution Has Started, Soldiers Are Going Against Their Officers Waving Red Flags and Singing Revolutionary Songs."

In the first article it is said:

"When all Russia was under the despotism of the Romanoff family we looked enviously to the republican powers. We dreamed of the freedom of France, Switzerland and America as something we could never attain. Now we know the weakness of all bourgeois republics. We know the word democracy is associated with the word republic only to cheat the people. In free America, so-called, the gross exploitation of work produces millionaires and steel kings."

An account of the meeting of the Moscow Soviet on Oct. 8 begins:

"We are feverishly awaiting the eve of the Western European revolution."

Then there is an exchange of compliments between a distinguished visitor and Commissioner Zenovieff at Petrograd, who said the educated masses in that city realized it was all rot about the Bolsheviki being like wild animals.

Upheld October Revolution.

Thousands at a meeting Zenovieff addressed passed a resolution to uphold the October revolution and grasp the outstretched hand of the proletariat.

The meeting asked why there was no freedom of the press. He replied:

"There is no freedom for papers that poison the people's minds like the Den and Novoe Vremya, but for hundreds of badly produced peasants' papers."

Zenovieff admitted the very poor output of the Putiloff Works, but after he had "publicly shamed" the workers the result had improved. He had opened a peasants' university at Petrograd, which it was hoped thousands would join, but he had only got 400.

Reverting to the question of the bourgeoisie, he said Petrograd had wrestled with it more energetically than Moscow. He added:

"You may see dozens of bourgeois laying wood blocks in Smolni courtyards, also unloading coal barges and cleaning out barracks, and at least doing more physical work than they ever did before."

Some, he jauntily added, had sent a numerously signed address to the Soviet expressing gratitude that they had been allowed to have the same ration cards as the working classes. Zenovieff said he was taking sable shoes and other warm clothing from the educated classes and giving them to the Red Army.

"True," he soliloquized, "they will make the soldiers rather dazzling, but they will rise to the occasion."

Incidentally, he said:

"The bourgeois under the Bolshevist government have disappeared. If we continue as we are doing we will teach all the Russian bourgeois, and after that the bourgeois of all the world."

Then came a speech by Lovarish Bucharin, who was about to depart with fraternal greetings to Vienna. He thought governments all over the world were bursting and crumbling, and said:

"We have to share our knowledge with the Western European proletariat. In the Western European movement they have no leader or system or determined policy. In this we must help them."

The article concludes with the cheerful lines:

"No quarter for the enemy. Death and damnation to traitors."

NEW MOVE BY JAPAN.

Invites America and Britain to Help End Strife in China.

PEKING, Oct. 29.—America and Great Britain having declined to interfere in Chinese internal affairs without the association of Japan, the latter has now invited the former powers to join in tendering advice to the President and the leaders of North and South, with a view to healing their differences and to offering their services as mediators.

Meanwhile the Northern tuchuns are preparing to assemble at Peking. It is expected that their decisions, unlike those of previous conferences, will prove to be pacifist. Hitherto there has been no definite proposal for a settlement from either side, but simply peace abstractions.

German Administration Is Moving from Brussels

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Oct. 29, (Associated Press.)—Between Oct. 10 and 22 various administrative departments were packing up and leaving Brussels for Germany.

According to prisoners, Brussels is soon to be evacuated and a line established between Antwerp and Namur.

This was the day on which the Germans were to make their withdrawal from the Lys to Ghent, according to statements of prisoners. These prisoners said that Ghent would not be defended more than three or four hours, after which a further withdrawal would be made to the line of the Dendre River and Antwerp.

ishing to a dangerous extent. Injunctions to maintain discipline by every available means indicate that the morale of the army is steadily weakening, although it is noteworthy that the French have remarked a general improvement of morale during the last fortnight, in response to the stimulus of the warning: "Peace is now certain within a brief period. Fight your best now that it may be as favorable as possible."

One statement signed "Von Jacobi," just taken by Debeney's army, runs:

"Officers must endeavor to explain the situation to their men at all times without waiting for the enemy's notes, which, if unfavorable, may provoke pessimism unless every one clearly understands that the German Government at this moment is devoting itself by every means to the re-establishment of peace. The peace it desires is one that the people will approve."

FRAMING ARMISTICE TERMS.

Versailles Conferees Discussing the Settlement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 30.—The diplomatic correspondent of The Chronicle writes:

"It is no secret that the interallied conference at Versailles has discussed the terms of the armistice to be granted to Germany, Austria, and Turkey. Whether those terms will be published is a matter of policy which will be determined by a conference.

"There is no reason to believe that Austria's and Turkey's application for an armistice, when the latter is officially before the associated Governments, which is not yet the case, will be treated differently from Germany's. Austria's latest note is regarded as an unqualified surrender as well as a demand for immediate peace, that is, without waiting for the conference which will settle the affairs of her partner.

"This may or may not be a ruse to help Germany to deal with her internal situation by enabling her to plead desertion by her allies as a reason for her predicament. In any case, the reply to Austria and Turkey is likely to be the same.

"Apply to the commander in the field for an armistice. The question of peace conditions will be settled later,' the allied attitude toward Austria, may well be identical with that toward Germany, except as regards the constitutional guarantees, which do not apply here.

"In the case of Turkey, the Bulgarian precedent will probably be followed. Credence should not be given to the report of peace overtures from Turkey coming through Switzerland. Turkish agents have been at work in Switzerland for months past, but their pretended powers have not been taken seriously. The official channel has been Washington.

"On Oct. 12 Turkey addressed a request to President Wilson to ascertain the terms of an armistice from the associated Governments. America not being at war with Turkey, the President was acting as intermediary. No reply has been given to the request for information, but one is obviously due, and that it will correctly convey the demand of Great Britain as the power most nearly interested and of her associates may be taken for granted.

"Such is the present position. The questions of peace conditions have not yet arisen, and consequently they are not likely to engage the attention of Versailles at this time, hence the Balkans have not been under discussion."

With the departure of the new quota New York State will have about 375,000 men in Federal military service.

ARMY BACKS WILSON FOR TRUCE OR FIGHT

WEIRD WAGERS RECORDED

Soldiers Discuss What Will Be the Next Step Rather Than What Should Be Done.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 29 (Associated Press.)—Germany's reply to President Wilson's latest communication and the reports concerning the Austrian note requesting a separate peace tonight had reached virtually the furthest advanced American troops throughout this sector.

As was the case with the previous notes and the various political developments of recent weeks, the news was promptly communicated to the fighting line by telephone from Main Headquarters through the army corps division and down to the brigades, where it was practicable. Behind the lines, where the news spread more rapidly, the men have watched the developments with that keenness of intelligence that marks the citizen-army.

The rank and file do not hesitate to comment and speculate on the final outcome of the negotiations, but in his long trips over the front and behind the lines the correspondent has found at each step that the disposition of the men is to speculate on the character of the next development rather than to express an opinion of what should be done.

The bulk of the American Army now has been soldiering long enough and seen enough hard fighting to become imbued with the principle that it is the American's duty to fight if ordered so to do and to accept without any question the orders of his Government, upon whose request he entered the war and upon whose decision he is willing to abide.

In other words, the general army viewpoint is that if the American Government declares for an armistice, then an armistice is what the army will approve of. If not, well and good; the men will go on fighting.

The discussion of the situation has mostly been quiet and earnest, but there also has pervaded the typical American jocularity, with weird bets being made as to when and how the war will end.

Meantime, the fighting goes on, men are landing at the bases and the great war machine moves forward as if peace had never been mentioned.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 29.—Lieutenant Maurice F. Lieutenant Maxwell was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1906.

LORD BEAVERBROOK OUT.

Retires as British Minister of Information Because of Illness.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Baron Beaverbrook, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and head of the British Ministry of Information, has resigned, according to official announcement made today.

In a letter to Premier Lloyd George, tendering his resignation, Lord Beaverbrook says it is due to ill-health and the necessity of undergoing an operation for enlarged glands.

Lord Beaverbrook is a Canadian, and as Sir Max Aitken was official eyewitness with the Canadian troops on the front in France throughout 1915. In December, 1916, King George conferred a peerage on him, and he assumed the title of Baron Beaverbrook. He has been very close to the Lloyd George Government and has filled various offices under it. On Feb. 10 last he was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and head of the newly established Ministry of Information. Lord Beaverbrook succeeded Sir Edward Carson in the Information Department.

CALL FOR 30,000 WORKERS.

Quick Overseas Service for Men Handy at Motor Trades.

A campaign to enlist 30,000 "Gas Hounds" for immediate overseas service in the Motor Transport Corps of the army has been begun by the War Department, and recruiting headquarters for this district have been established at 200 West Fifty-fifth Street, under command of Capt. E. R. Hunniwell. Men in Class 1A in the draft and in special limited service may be inducted into this branch, and applicants are instructed to bring their deferred classification cards and a copy of their physical report, if they were placed in a deferred class because of physical disability.

A list of men experienced in trades needed at once in the formation of new units for immediate service was given out last night by the recruiting officers. Those needed are auto repairmen, blacksmiths, carpenters, electricians, engine and assembly men, firemen, inspectors, millwrights, motorcycle repairers and drivers, painters, road testers, stenographers, stockkeepers, tire repairers, welders, upholsterers and trimmers, battery and ignition experts, and heavy truck drivers. The recruiting headquarters remain open until 9 o'clock every night.

Not only are some of the banks at their wits' end for legal currency to pay out deposits, but in places, especially Cologne and Duesseldorf, all except local, and therefore, valueless, currency has disappeared as if by magic.

Everybody who can possibly afford it, is trying to make his or her way eastward. Scores of houses stand empty.

Even in Berlin financial panic has seized the people, and the ordinary paper currency of the Empire has vanished. The Municipality has been compelled to issue emergency currency to the value of about fifty million marks, valid until February 1 next within the confines of Greater Berlin. Tradesmen may refuse to accept this currency, or, at least, decline to change the notes, except when compelled to take them in payment for goods already delivered.

The big German banks have published flaming appeals to "our fellow citizens" not to withdraw deposits and not to hoard currency notes. But the rush on the banks has grown worse than ever.

SAY IMPORTERS PLEAD FOR GERMAN GOODS

Government Officials Declare Merchandise Was Bought Before America Entered War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—It was the War Trade Board, it was stated tonight that licensed the cargo of German goods including toys, on board the Holland-Amerika liner Nieue Amsterdam and it was done at the request of American importers who bought and paid for the goods, the larger part of them before the great war began in 1914, and the remainder before this country's entry into war. An official said that Butler Brothers, who have announced that they would refuse the shipment of toys consigned to them, had been asking for an importer's license for a year.

As to statements that Belgian goods were excluded from the cargo at Rotterdam "by German authorities," and that the inclusion of the Belgian goods would have laid the ship liable to submarine attack, it was said that Germans had nothing to do with a shipment from a neutral country. A statement attributed to an official of the Holland-America Line that the State Department had been appealing that the German goods be brought over was met with the counter-statement that the State Department had acted upon the insistence of the American importers through the War Trade Board, the importers having made continuous pleas that the goods be admitted as they had been bought and paid for before this country entered the war.

BRUGES, Oct. 25, (by courier.)—Zeebrugge.)—The Stars and Stripes was the first allied flag flown in Bruges in the central square after the German evacuation. It was hung out by an American artist, S. Arlent Edwards, inventor of a color engraving process, who has been living in Bruges for the last five years.

"We had been anxiously expecting the arrival of the Allies for twenty-four hours," said Mr. Edwards to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, "and I had prepared to string the flag, and had arranged with the proprietor of the house opposite my rented apartment on the corner of the square—the Germans seized my house as soon as America entered the war—to hang it across.

"I was awakened at 6:30 o'clock Saturday morning by tremendous cheering, and, looking out of the window, saw a Belgian private surrounded by an excited crowd. I dashed across in a dressing gown and had the flag up five minutes later. Then we hung out a copper kettle, the largest brass object hidden from the Germans. At first the people didn't understand the reason. Then they caught on, and very soon there was a display of brass and copper at every window."

Mrs. Edwards gave the correspondent the hospitality of a bedroom and a delicious dinner in the newly liberated town—ham and eggs—almost the last of a huge store long prepared—wholemeal bread made of flour ground at night in a coffee mill from smuggled grain hidden at the bottom of an American steamer trunk, home-made jam, smuggled butter, coffee, and sugar with condensed milk.

Under Prussian Domination.

Like most inhabitants of Bruges, the Edwards family had not suffered personally from the Germans but had been made to feel the weight of Prussian domination nevertheless. During the first three years of the war the Germans had not molested them at all, although they were forced to obey the regulations as to being indoors after dark and producing papers at the Feldgendarmerie at regular intervals. Mr. Edwards had obtained a document bearing the official stamp from the American Consul at Ghent, stating that his house was the property of an American citizen, which he affixed to his courtyard door. Gradually the impression spread among the poorer population that he was the American Consul and now he is known thus throughout the city.

Constantly during the first three years people used to ask his advice and help in difficulties with the invaders and he was able to redress many grievances by an appeal to the German Chief of Police, who behaved with cold courtesy. Mrs. Edwards was a member of the local relief committee, and the couple's presence in Bruges undoubtedly contributed to relieve the German yoke.

But when America entered the war there came an abrupt change. On the following day a file of marines appeared with a curt announcement that the house and its contents were requisitioned and that the family might take its clothing but must leave within two hours. Mrs. Edwards was ill in bed, and with utmost difficulty her husband obtained forty-eight hours of grace, during which time sentries were posted with loaded rifles at all the doors. He also got leave to take his own work and materials, books, papers, desk and three or four pieces of furniture, but the rest, including his automobile, was pitilessly seized.

American's Home Wrecked.

After eighteen months of German occupation the house was in a deplorable condition. The furniture, glassware, and china were not only smashed, but pictures stolen and slashed to ribbons or torn from the frames, and there was appalling dirt and disorder everywhere. Once, when the breaking of woodwork and crockery was clearly audible by the neighbors, Mr. Edwards was told roughly:

"You damned Americans should have kept out of the war. You are lucky that we don't smash you instead of your furniture."

Fortunately, the family, anticipating trouble, had laid in ample stores of provisions in the cellar of a friend and hidden a quantity of copperware and some choice pieces from a china collection.

After America began fighting no letters might pass nor was money obtainable, but French and English newspapers came regularly—over a fortnight late—by an "underground" route.

Though the Relief Commission functioned admirably, it was smuggling that provided the greater part of their food. To get milk, Mr. Edwards wore a special belt with a row of tiny bottles, which were filled at a farm on the outskirts of the town, and walked back unmolested. The trick was widely copied, and one day he learned that the German sentries had orders to pass their hands over the persons of those entering the town; and then condensed milk became a general necessity, though fresh milk was still smuggled occasionally. The Germans tried to keep the milk for themselves by sending soldiers to milk all cows twice daily. The Belgians replied by milking the cows at night, and when the boches arrived the cow was nearly dry.

Smuggling and Bribery.

Especially during the last year the greed of the invaders increased smuggling enormously. By collusion with a German Inspector, one cow was requisitioned—and paid for in cash—thirty different times, each time the farmer splitting the proceeds "fifty-fifty" with the Inspector, who passed part of the graft to his superiors according to the best low-brow traditions.

Another farmer had a pig which for three long years never passed the weight of sixty kilos. Sometimes a German would remark on the perennial youthfulness of the animal, whereupon the farmer would wink and slip across a hundred-mark note. A little later some one would be notified that pork and bacon were for sale, and from a dark cellar where nineteen pig litters were carefully concealed a new thin young porker would be removed to the farmer's sty.

The American corroborated what the correspondent heard elsewhere about the license and debauchery of the U-boat men. Latterly, when their losses became very heavy—once mounting, it was averred, to ten submarines from Bruges alone in a single week—you could tell the naval officer on active U-boat service by his haggard and slovenly appearance.

A Belgian civilian doctor said he had treated many cases of morphine and ether poisoning among mere boys, who did not dare reveal the vice to their own medical officers, or, for that matter, the Admiral of the U-boat men. They might stagger, yelling in drunken ribaldry in the streets, with the lowest women on either arm, break windows, or molest civilians; they might even insult officers of the army—they were never punished.

Privileges of Doomed Men.

The Colonel of the Germans' Police Bureau was reported to have said when an army Captain complained of a gross outrage offered him:

"What do you want me to do? A fortnight's arrest for them means a fortnight's respite. These men are 'tode geweiht,' [consecrated to death.] An allied depth bomb will soon wipe out the memory of the insult you were forced to swallow.

In other respects, German discipline was strictly maintained, though a relaxation was noticeable in the last three months. The soldiers were forced to stand rigid when an officer passed, and when passing an officer to do the goosestep.

Strongly pro-Ally from the outset, the Edwards family followed the example of the population in boycotting the German theatre and cinemas, or cafés and restaurants where the Germans went.

Admiral Schroder saw to it that the behavior of troops in the streets was generally good enough. Mr. Edwards confirmed Schroder's harshness. In regard to Schroder, Mr. Edwards said:

"We had a startling demonstration last year of the British attitude toward Fryatt's murderer. Officers and men of an English regiment captured at Nieuport were made to file past the Admiral standing at the foot of the belfry in the central square of Bruges. Every one of the group of officers who marched turned his back on Schroder as they marched past. A few days later the Admiral posted a proclamation throughout the city to the effect that the incident had been reported in a Dutch newspaper in a manner reflecting on his Excellency. His Excellency regarded this as proof that spies still existed at Bruges, with means of communication with Holland, and accordingly gave the inhabitants warning not only that the persons concerned in espionage would be treated with the utmost severity, but that if any other case occurred of the Dutch press reproducing the events in Bruges derogatory to Germ[illegible]stige, a heavy fine and other [illegible]ishments would be inflicted upon [illegible].

Heavy Fines Imposed.

Fines to a huge amount were inflicted on the town on the slightest pretext, and a favorite punishment was an order that all inhabitants must remain indoors after midday for a stated period. Thus, when an imprudent citizen cried "Vive la Belgique!" when some prisoners were being entrained at the station, the town was fined 100,000 marks, and "indoors at noon" became the rule for the following week. The punishment was repeated when, on one occasion, some one cheered allied airmen bombing the port in broad daylight.

In this connection, Mr. Edwards said, he was convinced a greater part of the damage was done to civilian property in the port quarter—it was hardly noticeable, as the correspondent saw—and that the killing of civilians was the work not of the airmen but of one German battery whose shells, through defective fuses or perhaps deliberately to foster ill-will against the airmen, burst on or near the ground, instead of 1,000 yards high. Mr. Edwards had investigated several cases personally, and vouched that they all were caused by land shells along a regularly defined axis.

The artist gave a vivid description of the entry of the King and Queen in Bruges amid the tumultuous cheering of the frenzied population. On the central square they were received by the Burgomaster with an escort of a solitary gendarme named Georges Joye, who had refused to give up his uniform and old-fashioned rifle to the enemy. Despite fines and imprisonment, he declined to reveal the hiding place, and the Germans finally abandoned the attempt to overcome his obstinacy. As he stood there alone with fixed bayonet, the King and Queen shook him by the hand and congratulated him. Joye, greatly moved, stammered:

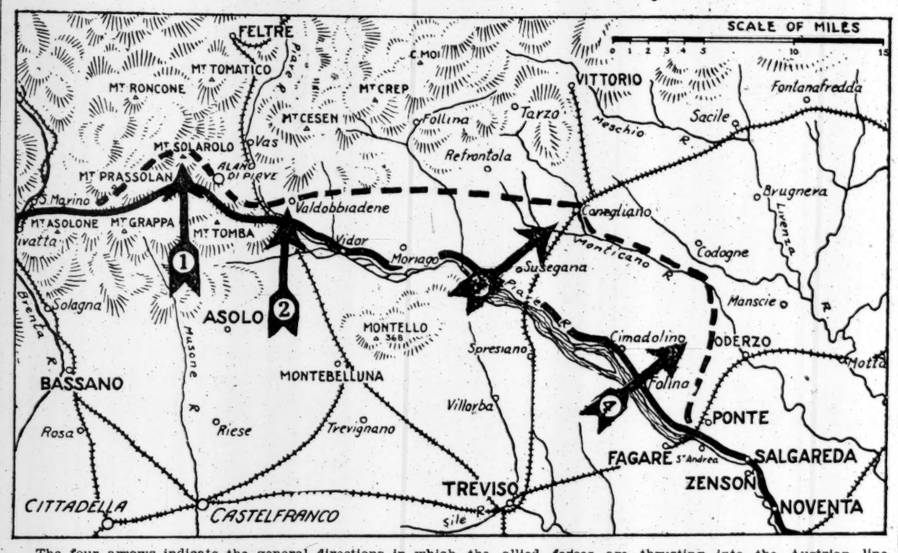
"It is too great an honor, too great an honor."

Kaiser's Visit to Bruges.

"Their Majesties' visit, which was practically unattended," concluded the American, "was a great contrast to the Kaiser's coming. The finest house in town always was ready for him and was constantly being repainted or redecorated—of course at the expense of the corporation. Hundreds of thousands of marks were thus spent, though the Kaiser was actually in Bruges perhaps fourteen days altogether.

"I shall never forget the last time he passed through the city a few months ago. The streets were sedulously cleared of all civilians and sentries were posted at every corner. Just before noon, the imperial car, driven at high speed and preceded and followed by two other automobiles, dashed across the square and into the street at this corner, under the windows of my apartment. I caught a glimpse of a wax-pale face with shoulders hunched in a military greatcoat and right hand twitching nervously at a white mustache. The Emperor looked like an aged man, oppressed unbearably by the shadow of retribution."

Theatre of Allied Drive in Italy



The four arrows indicate the general directions in which the allied forces are thrusting into the Austrian line. Italians in the upper Piave region have captured Alano di Piave, (see Arrow No. 1.) Important heights in the Valdobbiadene region (Arrow No. 2) have been taken by Italian and French forces. Italian and British forces (Arrows Nos. 3 and 4) have taken Conegliano, five miles east of the Piave and reached the Monticano River, which the Austrians were trying to hold and British cavalry and infantry had forced their way across at one point and were menacing Oderzo, on the railroad from Treviso.

day from Austro-Hungarian Headquarters, which reads:

Italian Theatre—In the Setti Comuni the fighting activity of the enemy yesterday was limited to isolated thrusts, which were repulsed.

East of the Brenta a great battle is raging on a front sixty kilometers (about 37 miles) wide. In the mountains between the Brenta and the Piave all enemy assaults again failed. The Stenkopf, south of Fontana Secca, which was lost to the Italians, was recaptured in a counterattack and its defenders captured.

An Entente attack was launched on the Piave, after the strongest artillery preparation, during the night of Oct. 26-27, near Valdobbiadene weak enemy detachments succeeded in gaining the left bank of the river, but most of them were pressed back. From the direction of Grave di Papadopoli the British thrust forward as far as Tezze and San Polo di Piave. The break through on a front of two to three kilometers was barred off on the flanks by our troops. Fresh fighting has been going on since early this morning on the Piave.

Americans May Join in Battle.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—American troops are on the verge of active participation on the major Italian front. This was the interpretation here today of the news from the Italian Headquarters that Americans are standing on reserve behind the British and Italian forces now driving across the Piave.

The news is considered significant not because of the size of the American contingent in Italy or the direct effect it may have on the battle, but because it indicates that the Italian drive is a definite part of the great offensive that is rapidly bringing complete defeat to the Central Powers. It has added meaning to officials here, also, since Austria is now pleading for an immediate armistice.

So far as official announcements show there are but two regiments of infantry and necessary auxiliary troops in the American force in Italy. These units and any others that may have been sent probably will operate as a part of one of the Italian or British organizations when the time comes to throw them into the line. The same practice was followed in France, where two Italian divisions have been employed at various times on the front as units of a French army corps.

The sending of American troops to Italy was not with the idea of adding military strength, but to demonstrate the unity of command and purpose on all fronts. For that reason the force detached by General Pershing for this purpose is believed not to have exceeded a brigade of infantry at most. The artillery support contributed by the Allies to the Italian front is largely British. Some American air units are in Italy and have participated in the work at the front.

THREE ARMIES IN ADVANCE.

Passage of River by Allied Forces Witnessed by King Victor.

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES ON THE PIAVE, Oct. 28, (Associated Press.)—The last lines of the Austro-Hungarian resistance on the central positions along the Piave River were broken today by the British, French, and Italian forces. A smashing blow was dealt to the Austrians. It resulted in the Allies making new advances, pushing forward as far as Vayolla, which was taken by the victorious Italians, notwithstanding desperate resistance.

Fifteen thousand prisoners had been taken by the British, Italians, and French up to late today.

The battle has been going on for five days, and has been marked by the desperate resistance of the Austrians. They have directed their artillery fire against pontoon bridges thrown across the Piave, and their bombing airplanes also have caused trouble for the Allies. The Allies not only have had to battle against the swift river current, but also to contend with the renewal of the pontoons and footbridges damaged by the Austrians.

Once across the river, the Allies have had to overcome strong Austrian trench positions and machine-gun posts.

King Victor Emmanuel saw the soldiers make the difficult crossing of the Piave. He was dressed, as usual, in a uniform made of the same material as that of the private soldiers. The King was under the fire of the Austrian guns, and was at various points where gas shells and shrapnel were falling. He spent much time near where there was a heavy bombardment to prevent the allied passage of the river.

All the roads leading to the mountains or the Piave are crowded with heavy masses of troops, guns, and other war material, proceeding to the front in orderly fashion. Whenever a staff automobile rushes by at sixty miles an hour, it is a common joke among the soldiers to exclaim:

"They are trying to beat us to Vienna."

The present battle of the Piave began officially on Oct. 19, but heavy fighting did not develop until Oct. 24, the anniversary of Caporetto and the beginning of the retreat to the Piave. The Italian official statements on the fighting have been reserved in their comments, owing to weather conditions, which threaten a rise in the Piave. Thanks to the fair weather of the last two days, the river has been left several miles behind in the region southeast of Montello. Movements across the river in force are increasing steadily and in the best order, despite the constant shelling from the Austrian artillery.

"We used to say that all roads led to Rome," said an Italian General speaking of the new advance, "but now it appears that all roads lead toward the land of the barbarians."

American soldiers are in reserve along the fighting zone. The correspondent saw an American battalion going through its "setting-up" exercises this morning near the river.

Gangs of Austrian prisoners captured in the drive already are at work digging graves for the burial of the dead. They affirm that they know nothing of the political situation at home and the efforts of their Government to arrange an armistice. The Austrian Army Post Office is said to have stopped the delivery of mail some time ago.

On the mountain front the weather has been unfavorable, but the Fourth Army under General Giorardino has attacked the Austrian positions with great spirit. Three hundred men of the 9th Battalion of storm troops during an attack west of Monte Grappa swept forward through the mud and rain, captured 700 Austrians, and brought the prisoners back to the Italian lines. Monte Pertica was taken by the Arditi. The Austrians had orders not to surrender, and the mountain height was covered with dead bodies when the remaining Austrians were driven away.

People living in the war zone are tonight surrounding the bulletin boards upon which is placarded the official statement that the Piave River has been crossed and that the battle is still going on. There were many impromptu addresses which were enthusiastically cheered by the civilians.

It is evident that the offensive is popular, as it has been warmly desired for many months, especially by the thousands of refugees who were driven from their homes last Fall by the advancing Austrians.

WANT PEACE LEAGUE DRAFT.

Interparliamentary Delegates Urge Allies to Begin on Program.

LONDON, Oct. 29, (British Wireless Service.) — Resolutions unanimously passed at the recent conference of the French, Italian, Belgian, and British sections of the Interallied Parliamentary Committee recommended that the nations now united in the fight for liberty should maintain their close association until the dangers threatening them had been removed by the complete overthrow of the enemy powers.

Another resolution said that it was of paramount importance that the Governments of the allied nations should forthwith proceed to prepare in consultation a scheme for the establishment after the war of machinery designed to secure and develop a "Society of Nations" as a proper means for attaining a durable peace guarded by the joint action of free nations.

It was stated by the committee that the losses of mercantile tonnage due to submarine warfare should be made good as far as possible by the transfer of enemy tonnage. The committee also urged upon the allied Governments the project of constituting an interallied independent air force for the purpose of overcoming if need be the last resistance of the enemy by a campaign of raids over territory. Common industrial control of the production of aeronautical material was recommended.

SWEDEN BARS RUSSIANS.

Notifies England She Can Care for No More Refugees.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 26.—The overflow into Scandinavia of Russian refugees seeking an asylum in Finland has created such a problem that Dr. Hellner, the Swedish Foreign Minister, has taken up the question with Great Britain, informing Great Britain that Sweden has had to refuse to receive a new invasion of the Russians.

Thousands of victims of the Bolshevist régime have fled into Finland and have compelled the Finnish population to divide with them the already meagre supplies of food. The food situation has become so serious in Finland, it is reported, as to endanger public health. Some time ago the Finnish Government asked Norway and Sweden to give shelter to some of the Russians.

Although food is scarce in Scandinavia, a large number of Russians were permitted to come into Sweden and Norway, but recently the Governments of those countries have been compelled to inform Finland that they could no longer permit the Russians to enter. The housing problem in Sweden and Norway also is very bad, even if the food difficulties could be overcome by means of increased importations from allied countries.

In some Government circles in Sweden it is declared that the only rational solution of the Russian problem would be to send the whole stream to America, as Europe for some time will not be able to feed and shelter the Russians. Most of the refugees belong to the former well-to-do classes in Russia.

PAUL WEST'S BODY FOUND.

Discovered in Seine in Paris, Near Where He Left a Note.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The body of Paul West of New York, who came to France to work for the American Red Cross and who disappeared last week, was found yesterday in the River Seine. The Paris edition of The New York Herald says the body was found close to the bridge where he left his cap with a note, and which was found after his disappearance. The body had lodged beneath a barge, and was fully dressed in the Red Cross uniform and overcoat.

Mr. West, who was a writer and playwright, had been in poor health.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—Paul West, whose body was found yesterday in the River Seine at Paris, was a native of this city, and his early training in newspaper work was received here. His father, Paul West, was general counsel for the West End Street Railway. He died while his son was attending the Peekskill Military Academy, and it was necessary for the young man to assume the support of the family. Paul West later joined the editorial staff of The New York Sunday World. He was the author of many musical comedies, songs, and motion-picture scenarios.

CRUEL TO CAPTIVE BRITISH.

Sir George Cave Tells Commons of Outrages Committed by Germany.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Sir George Cave, the British Home Secretary, today gave a long account in the House of Commons of Germany's ill-treatment of British war prisoners and her continued violation of agreements concerning prisoners of war.

The Home Secretary declared that Germany ought to be made to pay for these violations.

51 HUNGRY GERMANS LURED INTO CAPTIVITY

Go to Americans for Promised Tobacco and Finally Decide They Will Not Return.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 27, (Associated Press.) — Americans now count among their prisoners fifty-one members of the Second German Landwehr, who are the most sadly disillusioned men from the German Emperor's Army. The men still are convinced that a shabby trick was played on them when they were taken prisoner, though they are quickly becoming reconciled to their lot by their generous rations of food and tobacco.

The Germans for several days had been coming unarmed out of their trenches, creeping forward to a point midway between the two lines where bread and tobacco had been given them by Americans. The donors, they told an American intelligence officer today, wore crosses on their shoulders.

The other day when they came over they were told that the next time each man would receive five sacks of tobacco instead of one sack. The opportunity was too good to be lost and instead of groups of three, four, and five, as heretofore, fifty-one men came in a group eager for tobacco and food.

The Germans were hospitably received at the customary rendezvous, split into small groups and invited to go to another spot where the distribution would take place. That spot proved to be the intelligence office of the American Division, where the Landwehrs were informed that they were prisoners.

The Germans indignantly demanded to be sent back to their lines immediately together with their rations of five sacks of tobacco and bread. For a long time they could not be induced to say why they had been basely betrayed, but they gradually came to renounce their demand that they be returned, especially when they saw the treatment accorded by the American soldiers to them and even to the other prisoners. The Landwehrs will receive their extra rations as promised.

FRENCH ADVANCE CHAMPAGNE LINES

CLOSING IN ON GUISE

Debeney's Army Captures Outlying Positions and Increases Gains to the South.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—In an advance west of Banogne, on the Champagne front between Sissonne and Château-Porcien, the French today took 850 prisoners, according to the War Office announcement tonight. This was one of the results of the Fifth Army's attack on the 7½-mile front between St. Quentin-le-Petit and Herpy.

East of the Oise, General Debeney's First Army continued to close in on Guise, capturing German first line trenches and barracks and hospital south of the château. Debeney has also made gains farther south of Guise on the banks of the Peron.

The text of the night communication follows:

Between the Oise and the Serre Rivers there have been spirited artillery actions, notably in the region of Crécy-sur-Serre.

To the west of Château-Porcien, the indefatigable troops of the Fifth Army undertook today a new advance on a front of twelve kilometers between St. Quentin-le-Petit and Herpy. The battle is being fought with magnificent spirit on our side and great stubbornness on the part of the enemy, who has orders to halt us at any price.

"On our left, in spite of an abundance of machine guners who tried to check our advance, we succeeded in passing beyond St. Quentin-le-Petit and carried our line to the neighborhood of Hill 137.

"West of Banogne we also made progress. In the center our troops have repulsed the enemy beyond the road of Recouvrange-St. Ferveux over a width of three kilometers.

"To the right we have conquered Hill 156 and advanced more to the east. Prisoners to the number of 850 have actually been counted.

Aviation, Oct. 28.—Our reconnoitring machines have pressed very far into the enemy zone and brought back hundreds of photographs, many of them being taken between thirty and fifty kilometers from the front. Nine enemy airplanes were downed or fell out of control. A captive balloon was set on fire.

During the night our bombing squadrons dropped sixteen tons of projectiles on large railway stations and important points of concentration, particularly on the railway stations of Hirson, Vervins, St. Gobert, Mont Cornet, Marle, and Audun-le-Roman, and on the aviation grounds of Mars-la-Tour and on large depots at Provizy. Numerous fires were started by our projectiles, namely at Provizy, Hirson, and Marle.

The artillery fire has been rather lively in the region of the Oise, especially opposite Grand Verly. In the course of the night the French, overcoming the resistance of the Germans, approached slightly nearer to Guise. We captured the barracks and hospital near the railway station and the first line trenches south of the château.

More to the south we have passed beyond the Louvry Farm. On the right of the Peron, French elements continue to make progress east of Monceau-le-Neuf and have taken forty prisoners. On the front of the Serre there has been great machine gun activity. French patrols everywhere are in contact with the enemy.

REPORTS CHECK TO FRENCH.

Berlin Says Monday's Attaacks on the Oise Canal Failled.

BERLIN, Oct. 29, (via London.)—Yesterday's French attacks against the Oise Canal broke down under concentrated artillery fire, according to the day report from German Headquarters.

North of Valenciennes German troops repulsed strong detachments which attempted to cross the Scheldt northwest of Condé. South of Valenciennes the British temporarily penetrated the German line.

In the Lys lowlands we repulsed partial attacks of the enemy near Olsene. Strong enemy detachments which attempted to cross to the east bank of the Scheldt, northwest of Condé, were thrown back by a counterattack. South of the Scheldt strong British attacks near Famars temporarily penetrated our lines.

[Section missing.]

Valenciennes also was subjected to a strong enemy fire.

Attacks of the French against the Oise Canal between Etreux and Lesquielles broke down under our concentrated artillery fire. Weak detachments which advanced across the canal were thrown back by a counterattack.

West of Guise enemy attacks did not succeed in developing fully, owing to our fire.

In the Souche sector, on both sides of the Laon-Mosle road we repulsed strong attacks by the enemy.

An infantry regiment under Captain Preusser threw back the enemy completely.

East of Artres partial enemy attacks were repulsed. The enemy continues the destruction of places in and east of the Scheldt lowlands.

The German official communication issued this evening says:

Between Nizy-le Comte and the Aisne very violent French attacks this afternoon failed.

HIGH HONOR FOR DEBENEY.

Made Grand Officer of the Legion for Series of Victories.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—General Debeney has been promoted to Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor. General Pétain transmitted the insignia with full military honors.

The citation accompanying the promotion referred especially to General Debeney's success in stopping the Germans from reaching Amiens, his capture of Montdidier, and the advancing of his lines to the Somme.

MUST FREE LAON CIVILIANS.

French Will Adopt Reprisal Measures if Germans Refuse.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The French Government has protested to Germany concerning the carrying away by force of civilian residents of Laon and has informed Germany that the repatriation of German civilians from France will be stopped unless the Laon civilians are returned immediately to the keeping of the French Government.

The action of the Germans in carrying off the civilians of Laon, including Mayor Ermant, was in violation of the agreement concluded between France and Germany last April. The Germans also carried away 300 French civilians from Furnet.

LISBON HONORS WILSON.

Avenida das Cortes to be Named for the President.

LISBON, Oct. 29.—In recognition of his services to the allied cause and as a mark of respect and honor, the Municipal Government of Lisbon has voted unanimously to name one of the city's most prominent highways after President Wilson. The street, a wide and residential avenue, has been called "Avenida das Cortes," but now will be known as "Avenida Presidente Wilson." It extends from the River Tagus to the House of Parliament, and is one of the city's chief arteries.

Arrangements are being made for a formal dedication with appropriate ceremonies, in which Thomas H. Birch, the American Minister, will be invited to participate.

LIEUT. PURYEAR ESCAPES.

TOURS, France, Oct. 27, (Associated Press.)—Lieutenant George Puryear, the first American aviator to escape from Germany, arrived today at Tours, where he was received at the aviation headquarters.

Lieutenant Puryear brought down a German airplane last July, and, thinking that he was over French territory, followed his victim to the ground. He was surrounded and ordered to surrender, and then discovered that he had landed inside the German lines.

While in Germany the Lieutenant was an inmate of several prison camps. After escaping, he passed through a thickly populated section of the country.

ENEMY'S HUGE LYS LOSSES.

LONDON, Oct. 29, (British Wireless Service.)—German losses in the abortive offensive in the Lys River salient last Summer were 14,000 killed, 6,000 prisoners and about 80,000 wounded and missing, according to an authoritative calculation.

The Germans in June prepared a great offensive and by the end of July had brought up enormous quantities of ammunition. The dumps extended to a depth of fifteen miles. In one area of five miles by three miles the Germans abandoned 1,500 tons of ammunition.

Brazil's First Year in War Honored.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—In celebration of the first anniversary of the entrance of Brazil into the war on the side of the Allies, American and French officials today gave a reception. President Poincaré and Foreign Minister Pichon were represented and the Japanese Ambassador and the Ministers from Portugal, Serbia and Belgium attended in person. Gabriel Hanotaux, the former Premier, and the Brazilian Minister made addresses.

New French Envoy to Spain.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—G. F. Alapetite, the French Resident General in Tunis, has been appointed Ambassador to Spain. Senator Etienne Flandin will become Resident General in Tunis.

Heavy Fog Stops Navigation.

For the third morning this week the harbor was blanketed yesterday with fog which stopped steamship navigation and delayed ferry service when the crowds of workers were coming from the suburbs. Pilots said it was the worst fog they had experienced in years.

BRITISH WIN IN A RAID NEAR MORMAL FOREST

Take Seventy Prisoners and Inflict Heavy Casualties Southeast of Valenciennes.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—British troops made a successful raid this morning on the border of Mormal Forest, southeast of Valenciennes, capturing more than seventy Germans and inflicting heavy casualties.

The repulse of a local attack near Favars, south of Valenciennes, and artillery duels and patrol encounters were the only other features of the operations on the British front in the last twenty-four hours.

Telegraphing from his headquarters tonight, Field Marshal Haig says:

In a successful raid made by us this morning northeast of Englefontaine we made prisoners of more than seventy Germans and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy.

Apart from artillery activity and patrol encounters on different parts of the front, there is nothing of special interest to report.

HAVRE, Oct. 29.—The official communication from Belgian headquarters tonight says:

The situation is without change.

In the period between Oct. 11 and 27 the total number of prisoners captured on this front was 18,293 of whom 331 were officers.

The Belgian Army captured 7,362 of these, the Second British Army 5,354, and the French Army 5,577. Between Sept. 28 and Oct. 14 12,000 prisoners were taken. Thus in one month the total number of prisoners reached more than 30,000. Material of all kinds was also captured, but has not yet been inventoried.

Between Oct. 14 and 27 509 cannon were captured and 12,000 machine guns.

DOWN 42 GERMAN PLANES.

British Destroy 32 Outright—Successful Bombing Raids.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—"Thirty-two enemy machines were destroyed yesterday, and ten were driven down out of control," says a British official communication dealing with aerial operations issued tonight.

The British Independent Air Force has again been busily engaged in bombing German positions far behind the battle-line and has met with good results, according to another official statement.

"On Monday we carried out heavy attacks on the Morhange and Frescati airdromes," says the communication. "Monday night we attacked the Bädische soda factory at Mannheim and the railways at Treves and Saarbrücken. The railway junctions of Longuyon, Tecouvies, and Thionville were also attacked with excellent results.

making his score eight machines. Lieutenant Samuel Kane of Columbus, Miss., also downed a Fokker in the region of St. Georges. This was Kaye's fourth aerial victory.

Three German airplanes are believed to have been brought down in an aerial battle over Banthéville late Monday between an American patrol of eight machines and thirteen Germans. The American patrol had attacked four German machines, when nine other enemy airplanes joined in. The Americans fought the entire thirteen until three German machines were seen to fall. The ten others turned tail and escaped. The American machines returned safely.

The American troops improved their positions in the region of Aincreville and east of the Meuse today. The Americans have consolidated their positions in the Grand Pré sector, firmly establishing themselves on the southern edges of Bourgogne Wood. Talma and Belle Joyeuse Farm are in No Man's Land.

Around Wavrille the Germans attempted a local counterattack, but were repulsed. An officer and four German privates were taken prisoner. There was fierce fighting near Belleu Wood, which the Americans hold.

Verdun Again Under Fire.

The artillery was very active on both sides, the Germans using heavy guns from various parts of the front, shelling Verdun, which now is almost a daily occurrence. The American guns replied to the enemy batteries around Bois l'Ecurey, Reville, and Chaumont. The Germans also shelled Banthéville and Cunel.

Fires burned most of the day in the neighborhood of Dun, Andre, Andevanne, and Doulcon, which are believed to have been caused by American bombs or shells. There are no indications that the Germans are withdrawing.

PERSHING MAKES REPORTS.

Three Enemy Airplanes and a Balloon Downed on Monday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Continued aviation activity on the front of the American First Army in spite of bad weather was reported by General Pershing today in a second communiqué for Monday. The communiqué follows:

"American Headquarters in France, Oct. 28.

"On the Verdun front the day was marked by heavy artillery fire on both sides of the Meuse. An enemy counter-attack against the Bois Belleu was repulsed. In the Woerve our detachments successfully raided the enemy's lines and captured prisoners.

"In spite of poor weather conditions our aviators were again active on the front of the First Army and shot down three enemy airplanes and one observation balloon. All our machines returned."

Section B of the early Monday communiqué received last night says:

"It was reported at 6:25 P. M., Oct. 27: Northeast of Grand Pré patrol of the 78th Division early on the morning of Oct. 27 captured La Belle Jeyeuse, which was found unoccupied.

"It was reported at 10:35 A. M., Oct. 28: Increased enemy artillery activity with harassing fire, high explosives, and gas, on Baptheville, Gunel, Brieulles, and the Bois de Dannevoix."

Outside the Walls

There are still many manufacturers who never go beyond the confines of their own buildings. They never go past the shipping-room door. They make things, but they do not distribute them.

Some one else is allowed to assume the rôle of "pedlar" and visit other cities, other states, other nations.

And if the "pedlar" prefers to distribute goods bearing his own name and trade-mark—it is permitted.

War has enormously increased manufacturing capacity.

War has not increased distribution machinery.

When peace comes, there will be more goods than convenient buyers.

The manufacturer, whose trade-mark is best known to the buyer, will be chosen by preference. The distributor listens only to buyers.

Are you making now or are you holding now, during this war time, the preference of the buying public for your trade-mark?

SENATE DEMOCRATS TO SHUT OFF DEBATE

MINORITY RAISES GAG ISSUE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—With many Senators out of town, engaged in political campaigns in the various States, there appeared to be slight expectation today that there would be any real work done by the Senate again until after election. The Senate is scheduled to meet on Thursday, and the Republicans who are still at the Capital say they will again block any effort at adjournment over election day.

On the other hand, Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, announced today that he did not intend giving the Republicans who remained here an opportunity to make political speeches on President Wilson's appeal to the voters to elect a Democratic Congress. The Virginia Senator intends to invoke the no-quorum rule against any attempt the Republicans may have under way. That, under parliamentary procedure, would result in an adjournment without any Senator having the privilege to speak.

The Democrats feel that the Republicans, in blocking adjournment yesterday, were actuated only by a desire to keep the Senate open for an airing of their political views.

Senator Watson of Indiana conferred with Republican associates today at the Capitol. Later one of the conferees remarked that, if the Democrats invoke adjournment because of no quorum, it would merely be applying the gag to the Senate.

"If the Democrats want to take the odium for applying the gag, that is their business," remarked one of the Senators.

Statements came today from various persons in Democratic and Republican circles and there is plenty of evidence that the row over the President's appeal will continue unabated up to the morning of election day, a week hence.

Quotes Rodman Wanamaker.

Postmaster General Burleson, who is usually credited with being the political spokesman of the Cabinet, authorized the statement that he sincerely regretted "that certain Republican leaders have thrust partisanship into the Congress contest, which under our Constitution was unavoidable, at this critical period of the world war." Mr. Burleson included in his statement a letter from Rodman Wanamaker of Philadelphia, a prominent Republican, saying that no one was a true American who stooped to criticism of the President or expressed fear of his methods. In a second message, giving Mr. Burleson permission to use the letter, Mr. Wanamaker said: "We are not Republicans nor Democrats; we are Americans."

Homer S. Cummings, Acting Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said that in issuing his appeal to the voters President Wilson had done only what President Lincoln had done in the civil war and what President McKinley had done in the Spanish war. Mr. Cummings gave out a statement in which he attacked the Republican National Committee for its alleged fathering of a statement to the effect that twelve Northern States had suffered casualties of 29,885 in the fighting abroad, while twelve Southern States had suffered only 6,671 casualties among its troops.

Mr. Cummings attacked this sort of political campaigning. He denied another charge attributed to the Republicans that more money had been spent on account of the war in the South than in the North. He deprecated such statements as an effort to revive sectionalism.

Ferris Produces Record.

Congressman Scott Ferris, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, issued a long statement to refute the allegations of the Republicans, in answer to President Wilson's charges that Republican Senators and Representatives had been anti-Administration on war measures. He cited ten "offenses" of the Republicans in Congress. The first was that 101 Republicans in the House of Representatives voted against tabling the McLemore armed ship resolution, while 181 Democrats voted to table it. "Which party served its country best that day?" Mr. Ferris asks. Other "offenses" are that a majority of the Republicans in Congress voted against the Shipping bill, a war preparedness revenue bill, the bill establishing a Government-owned armor plant, and the Cooper Amendment to the Armed Ship bill, which would permit the sending of munitions of war to the allied nations. He also charges that 32 Republicans and only 16 Democrats voted against the resolution declaring war on Germany.

Senator Gerry of Rhode Island ridiculed in a statement the claim of the Republicans that they have attained a "high percentage" in voting on war measures. He said:

"Notwithstanding the preposterous claim of the Republicans, the American voters will respond to the call of the President and give him a Democratic Congress."

Fess Replies to Tumulty.

Representative S. D. Fess, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, issued a statement today, replying to the declaration by Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, that Mr. Wilson followed precedent in asking for a Congress to uphold his policies. Mr. Fess's statement follows in part:

"Mr. Tumulty's letter in response to the wish of the President, in which he attempts to justify the open letter of President Wilson requesting a Democratic Congress, fails of its purpose.

"First, no President in our history has made such a request to the American electorate.

"Cases cited are on a par with utterances of political leaders not clothed with the prestige of the power of the Presidential office. Had such a request been made by Lincoln or McKinley, which never was made, they might have been free from the charge of an attempt to capitalize the patriotism of the country for partisan purposes, because, unlike President Wilson, they had a minority which attempted to block them at every turn in their prosecution of the war.

"The first war Congress under Lincoln enacted three outstanding war measures to supply funds for the speedy prosecution of the war. The Morrill act was the first and the Democrats voted almost solidly against it. The Legal Tender act, which provided further money power, was the second, and the vote stood 93 for it, all Republicans, and 59 against, including all the Democrats who voted. The third outstanding war measure was the National Bond act to supply a needed increase in currency. It was resisted by every Democrat in the Senate but three, while in the House the vote stood 78 to 64, almost a strict party vote. This opposition culminated in an announcement by the Democratic Party in National Convention in 1864 in the midst of the war by declaring the war a failure and a demand for a 'cessation of hostilities.'

"This platform of six resolutions was confined to opposition to Mr. Lincoln and the war.

"McKinley in 1898 was confronted with an opposition minority too recent to be forgotten. It was well expressed in the vote on the fiscal measure to supply funds for the prosecution of the war, when out of 159 Democratic members of the Congress all but six voted against it.

"These facts should be examined in comparison with the conduct of the Republican minority in this war.

"In nine measures including the major war measures the Republicans actually cast more votes than the Democratic majority.

"In twenty-six measures there was not an adverse Republican vote cast. In all of the war measures the Republicans cast almost their solid vote."

WILSON OPPOSES NORRIS.

Indorses Morehead, Nebraska's Democratic Candidate for Senate.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 29.—Indorsement of former Governor John H. Morehead of Falls City, the Democratic candidate opposing George W. Norris, Republican, for election to the United States Senate, has been given by President Wilson.

In a telegram to Mayor E. P. Smith, who asked the President for a statement on the Senatorial situation in Nebraska, President Wilson said of Mr. Morehead: "We need men with just his steadfast loyalty to the cause which now stands in need of unfaltering support."

Names Another Otranto Victim.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The name of Sergeant Burroughs C. Blackmon of Penona, Fla., has been added to the list of American soldiers lost in the sinking of the British steamer Otranto off the coast of Scotland, Oct. 6, the War Department announced tonight.

HUGHES SEES WILSON LOWERED IN DIGNITY

Says Republicans Will Support Him, Not as a Party President, but as Head of Nation.

WHITMAN ATTACKS SMITH

Tells Union League Club Character of Men Democratic Candidate Has Put Into Office.

President Wilson's appeal for the election of a Democratic Congress was made a target by Charles E. Hughes, Governor Whitman, and Robert C. Morris in speeches last night at the Union League Club reception given to the Governor and his fellow-candidates on the Republican State ticket.

Governor Hughes in a speech he delivered as President of the club and Chairman of the meeting, scoffed at the suggestion that the election of a Republican majority in either or both houses of Congress would involve a reflection on the President and a repudiation of his leadership.

Governor Whitman, who arrived long after Mr. Hughes had spoken, in the hottest attack he has made at any time on his Democratic opponent, Alfred E. Smith, told his audience of club members and their guests how in his opinion compliance with President Wilson's request would work out in the present election in this State. In connection with this he accused Smith of having appointed to confidential positions, while he was Speaker of the Assembly, men identified with poolrooms and gambling houses, and men with whom records and activities the Governor became familiar while he was District Attorney of New York County.

Mr. Hughes was warmly received after an absence of weeks, during which he has been conducting the now completed aircraft investigation. His address follows:

"We meet once more in this historic and patriotic club in the exercise of the right which no one can deny us of expressing our political preferences. Permit me a personal word at the outset. For several months I have been absent from you, engrossed in a difficult but necessary task which has been performed with the single thought of ascertaining and presenting the exact truth with respect to one of the most important fields of our war activity. That task, I am glad to say, has been finished, and it is with the keenest pleasure that I return to the genial hospitality of this club and take up again my official duties as your President. It was with the sense of deep pride and gratification that I learned from time to time of the splendid efforts you have put forth in connection with the Fourth Liberty Loan. I congratulate the War Committee, under the able leadership of Mr. Fairchild, upon what it has accomplished. True to the traditions it cherishes, the spirit of service and sacrifice has dominated the Union League Club in this war for the destruction of unscrupulous military power.

"I have said that we are here in the exercise of our right to express our political preferences. And why should we not express them? Have we no interests at stake, no loved ones in the ranks, no hearts responding to the nation's call, no sacrifices to endure? Is our contribution in lives, in devotion, in fortune, in readiness to serve, so slight that we must forego the privilege of effective representation in the nation's councils? Are we to give up the right of suffrage, or, if we are permitted to exercise that right, is a vote for Democratic Congressmen and Democratic Senators and Democratic State candidates to be the final test of our service to the nation?

"Let the Record Speak."

"I deeply regret that this issue has been raised. I deplore it as a citizen, anxious that in this hour of strife we should have the utmost unity in national endeavor, but solicitous that this unity should be preserved by taking counsel together and hearing the voice of all parties after the methods of a republic and not by abject submission according to the example of autocracy. I am glad to be told that no political party is paramount in patriotism. Of course not! Read the answer in our Liberty Loans, our service in arms, in the trenches and on the sea, and for that matter in the votes in Congress. Let the record speak. Have not Republicans in every permitted field of effort fought and toiled, have we not spent our days and nights in anxious labor, have we not given without stint or limit, with no thought of party or of partisan advantage, that this war might be won? Yes, we are patriotic, that is not questioned; but must we patriotically toil and give without seeking a voice in the National Assembly, yielding our representation to Democrats, not as more worthy or more loyal, not as more sacrificing or intelligent, but to Democrats as such, simply because they are Democrats, in order that in this most critical period there may be exhibited, not the unity of the nation achieved through the action of both parties, there members vying with each other in patriotic endeavor and resolving their differences through fair discussion in the national legislative body, but the unity of a mere party supremacy?

"The issue is a transcendent one, for it speaks to the conscience and fundamental purpose of every voter. I want to see complete victory in this war; to see tyrannical and arbitrary military power crushed; to see the dawn of the new era of the peace of justice. And did I think that the Republican Party would not, through its representatives, aid in the efficient conduct of this war and in the settlement of a righteous peace, I should leave the party. It is because I believe that the Republican Party is an important and necessary agency in the winning of this war and in establishing a just peace that as a Republican, but not in a narrow partisan spirit, I join wholeheartedly in the earnest support of the Republican candidates.

Suggestion Unfortunate

"It is said that the return of a Republican majority to either house of Congress would be interpreted as a repudiation of the leadership of the President. I think that from a national standpoint the suggestion is most unfortunate. If the President stood before the nations of the world only as a party leader, his influence would be slight indeed. His just influence is based on the extent to which he faithfully represents the sentiment of this nation, regardless of party. He will not be the effective spokesman of the nation, save as through consultation and deliberation with those representing the important thought of the nation; he can be said to express a strongly preponderating if not unanimous sentiment. But how is the sentiment of the country to find expression if we do not send to the nation's assembly those who represent our opinion? How is the nation's will to be truly voiced if voters do not express their honest convictions? No! There is a better way. We are all for the war. We are unanimous in our earnest desire to drive through to complete victory. Let us have free expression, let us send our representatives to Congress, let there be fair and open discussion and free consultation and then we can trust the future. With the country almost equally divided between two parties, the freest expression and choice of representatives should be welcomed. But it is said that a return of a Republican majority will be misunderstood abroad. By whom? By the Germans? They know that the Republican leaders are intent on complete victory. By the Allies? They have no reason to doubt that their interests would be safe in Republican councils. No, we shall not be misunderstood. We shall support the President as the President, not as the President of a party, not as the President of half the nation, but as the President of the entire nation as he acts according to the genius of our institutions, and we shall save him from the lesser dignity and influence of mere party leadership.

Fearful of Tammany.

"We welcome tonight our State candidates. They are men whom we know and trust. It is safe to say that in no State in the Union has the National Administration had more hearty and efficient support than has been given by the Republican administration in the State of New York. Measure after measure points to the well-directed activity of the State administration in support of the war. We see no reason for trying to make the world safe for democracy by putting Tammany Hall in control at Albany. I distrust Tammany even in its most amiable aspect. I distrust Tammany particularly when it talks of economy. I know it never practices economy at the expense of the faithful. It was only a few years ago that I heard much preachment of economy and denunciation of Republican extravagance. But there ensued certain years of Democratic control which made our citizens hang their heads in shame. We do not think that the people of the State are disposed to take a chance this time. We propose to re-elect Governor Whitman. His administration has been a credit to the people of the State, and he deserves our confidence."

The meeting was called to order and Mr. Hughes introduced as the presiding officer of the evening by Robert C. Morris, Chairman of the Campaign Committee of the Union League Club, under whose auspices the reception and meeting were held. Mr. Morris said in part:

"We are here this evening to express our conviction that the Administration which has conducted the affairs of this State for the last four years should be continued. Until the President issued his proclamation to the effect that the only patriotic vote this November would be a Democratic vote, we saw in our New York election only one issue, whether Tammany Hall should control the business of this State.

"Such was the main issue of this campaign a few days ago. Yet the strange political philosophy that controls the Federal Administration has now injected an entirely new idea. Our Democratic friends tell us that, in other crises, we Republicans have taken a similar stand. They insist that, in 1898, several Republican leaders urged the election of a Republican Congress on the ground that the nation should support the President in the war with Spain. But they have not yet shown us that President McKinley himself made any such plea. What confessedly partisan leaders may say, is one thing; but when the President, who is President of all the people, who is President of Republicans as well as of Democrats, issues from the White House a statement which practically says that Democrats are the only patriots, and that Republicans who insist on voting for Republican candidates are virtually traitors, he has committed an act for which we shall find no parallel in our history.

"Let me instance a leader whose name is revered above all others in these halls—Abraham Lincoln. In 1864, the Democrats nominated General McClellan on a platform which declared that the civil war was a failure, and demanded peace on practically any terms. Lincoln then could honestly have denounced the Democrats as disloyal and unpatriotic, and have declared that the election of his opponent would have been received with enthusiasm by the South. It is a historic fact that the fate of the nation absolutely hung upon the result of that election. Yet Lincoln refused to make any such attack upon McClellan and the Democrats who were supporting him and his policy of disunion. He had too much respect for his office, and too great an affection for his fellow citizens, even the misguided ones, to insult them publicly in this way.

"But apparently we are living in different times. I think that the American people will resent this attempt at Presidential dictation. I know the people of New York City and New York State will resent it in the one way that will make their resentment most effectual—by voting for all the Republican candidates next Tuesday."

Of the elective state officials there were in attendance besides Governor Whitman, Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo, State Treasurer James L. Wells, and State Controller Eugene M. Travis, all of whom are candidates for a third term, as is the Governor. Senator Charles D. Newton, who is candidate for Attorney General, was also on hand. In the speech he made he told the club members that he was the only "greenhorn" on the ticket. Messrs. Hugo and Wells spoke before the Governor, who had been addressing other metings, arrived and Controller Travis made a speech after the Governor had finished.

"I cannot see how we can contribute toward making the world safe for Democracy, as suggested by the President, by installing Tammany Hall at Albany," said the Governor. "A good deal has been said in the last few days in an effort to convince the people of this State that my opponent is well fitted for the position to which he aspires by his proximity to the State Government during the many years he served in the Legislature. Much has been said, also, in an effort to convince the voters that Mr. Smith, if elected, would make independent appointments.

"Why," the Governor shouted, "Al Smith never made an appointment in all his life that had not been dictated by Tammany Hall; he never undertook an official act that was not dictated by Tammany Hall; he never made a speech that was not dictated by Tammany Hall."

At this point the Governor had his audience mystified as he slowly unfolded a diagram of the Assembly Chamber and held it up.

"I hold in my hand the plan of the Assembly Chamber for the year 1913, a diagram taken from the legislative manual for that year," the Governor went on. "To the right of the Speaker's desk is the Speaker's room, occupied, as you will see, by the Speaker and the Speaker's clerk. The name of the Speaker's clerk appearing in the diagram is Patrick J. Hogan.

"Patrick J. Hogan came from the Fourth Ward of New York. He was employed for a little while by Mr. Keleher, a milkman. Leaving Keleher, he went to work in a policy shop for Gramman and O'Connor, on James Street. He worked there until he was put out of business by the anti-policy society. I was President of the anti-policy society, and I know what I am talking about. From the policy business he went to work in the poolrooms, where he became well known as a horse racing gambler in the pool room of Bob Davis at the corner of Fulton and Dutch Streets. When this was closed he worked in various poolrooms, making handbooks, until the Hon. Alfred E. Smith, Speaker of the Assembly, appointed him the Speaker's clerk.

"You will notice on this diagram, at the left, the clerk's room. You will notice the names—Deputy Clerks, Lewis Cohen and John J. Kenny.

"Lewis Cohen is a well-known gambler on the east side and one of the best-known stuss dealers in the City of New York. He was appointed by the Hon. Alfred E Smith, Speaker of the Assembly, as Deputy Clerk of the Assembly in 1913.

"The next name that you will notice on this diagram, taken from the legislative manual of this State, is John J. Kenny. John J. Kenny was arrested as a youth with Nigger Mike Salter for stealing overcoats. He worked as a bartender in various places of ill-repute until he acquired the infamous Chatham Club in Doyers Street in the heart of Chinatown—the most notorious resort of thieves in the City of New York—known to the police and to the public generally as headquarters for thieves and yeggmen. Many Chinamen and white girls frequented it. The license was finally revoked by the State Excise Commission on the charge that the place run by this Deputy Clerk of the State of New York was a disorderly house.

"Kenny is well known on the race tracks and is a proprietor of poolrooms. Kenny was appointed Deputy Clerk of the Assembly of the State of New York by the Hon. Alfred E. Smith, its speaker, in 1913.

"If you will go down to the City Hall today or tomorrow you will find as Assistant Sergeant at Arms of the Board of Aldermen one Con Crowley. Con Crowley's son, of the same name, within the last six months was arrested and locked up for running a gambling house within three blocks of the City Hall. He was running the gambling house, and also running 'true to form.' His father, Con Crowley, Assistant Sergeant at Arms of the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York, appointed by its President, Alfred E. Smith, was in the gambling business for years. He has made books on the track in the Summer and usually gone South in the Winter. Perhaps Mr. Smith cares to tell you about Con Crowley's gambling house in Fulton Street, and who are the partners in that concern.

"You will also see, if you go down to the City Hall, Carl Winters, a well-known sheet writer in gambling houses in this city, holding office by appointment in the office of this man who aspires to be Governor of New York."

At this point Governor Whitman produced a copy of an old speech he had made while first running for Governor in 1914, which dealth with Matthew in 1914, which dealt with Matthew zer's confidential aids until he turned upon him and gave the Tammany men in the Legislature some of the information upon which Sulzer's impeachment was brought about.

"He had been convicted of wife-beating and charged with falsifying public records he was paid to protect, for a consideration," said the Governor. "Like the scoundrel and crook and criminal that he is, he turned on Sulzer for a consideration. Do you know where that scoundrel is today? You can find him by going down to the City Hall, where he holds the greatest appointment in the gift of the President of the Board of Aldermen, now Democratic nominee for Governor. He is his assistant and draws a salary of $4,500.

"He did not get that position because Mr. Smith likes him—I do not think he does. He holds his job because Tammany Hall wants him to hold it. Horgan had to be placated—he knows too much about Tammany and had shown in his treatment of Sulzer that he had to be taken care of in order to remain silent."

LEAGUE ATTACKS WILSON.

Republican Club Officials Issue Proclamation on Congress Fight.

The Republican League of Clubs of the State of New York, which, according to its officials, has a membership of 100,000, issued a statement at the Republican Club last night attacking President Wilson and his Administration. The league's Executive Committee met earlier at the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway, and voted to issue the statement.

The statement "indicted" the President on seven specifications, beginning by assailing him for his appeal for a Democratic Congress, and asserting that his aim was "to make him Autocrat of the United States at the very time when the chief aim of the war is to destroy the autocracy of Europe." The proclamation says Republican Congressmen have been pro-war and have not opposed the President in his conduct of the conflict.

"The platform of the Republican Party is 'Unconditional Surrender,' and Republican participation in the Government will in no wise be deemed a disturbing factor by our Allies, for each of them in the stress of conflict has adopted a coalition government. Mr. Wilson was elected against the vote of practically half of the country, the forward-looking half, against the backward-looking half, upon the platform largely that 'he kept us out of war.' He chose his coadjutors upon this basis, with a group of Southern sectionalists and pacifists of his party in command of Congress. It is not Wilson's war. It is the nation's war. And it must be the eternal verdict of history that if there had been a leader, when war became the stern duty of this nation, with inspiration and preparedness the lives of millions and measureless woe and waste might have been spared."

Repeating phrases from the President's writings and utterances like "too proud to fight," "peace without victory" and "neutrality in deed and thought," the league questions his fitness to be "the arbiter of the world's destiny" and finally declares "there lurks the well-grounded suspicion that he is against the party of unconditional surrender because he harbors some purpose short of that."

SWANN'S OFFICE CRITICISED

Grand Jury Hands Presentment to Judge Malone in Graziadio Case.

The Grand Jury yesterday filed a presentment with Judge Malone in General Sessions criticising the manner in which District Attorney Swann's office had presented the case of Arthur Graziadio to the jury for a first degree murder indictment. Graziadio was accused of being concerned in the killing of an east side storekeeper on Aug. 7. A previous indictment was dismissed by Judge Malone last Friday.

In the presentment, signed by Edgerton Parsons, an insurance broker at 51 Wall Street, foreman of the jury, it was stated that the manner in which the case was presented was not in conformity with the standing and dignity of the Grand Jury, and that the evidence produced was not sufficient to warrant indictment for murder or any other crime, however trivial.

When District Attorney Swann read a copy of the presentment he said:

"The whole proceeding is unique and evidently inspired. I will take no notice of it and it will have no effect on this office. It was a gratuitous act."

Graziadio, who had been rearrested by order of Mr. Swann, was arraigned before Magistrate McQuade in Harlem Court and held for a hearing today.

SOME TAILORS GOING BACK.

Five Shops Meet Demands—Strike Situation In Other Trades.

According to the officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, 1,500 garment workers of the 15,000 who are striking for a 20 per cent. wage increase and a forty-four-hour week in place of forty-eight hours, will return to work this morning. It was said at strike headquarters, 192 Bowery, that four shops had agreed yesterday to meet the workers' demands, while five others surrendered on Monday, the first day of the walkout.

The strike, which is directed at members of the American Men's and Boys' Clothing Manufacturers' Association, affects 250 shops in Manhattan and Brooklyn. Leon Mann, Managing Director of the employers' association, said yesterday that he had advised Professor Ripley of the Board of Labor Control of the Army Quartermaster's Department, that the employers were willing to arbitrate with the workers.

Charles Hillman, President of the Amalgamated, announced that the strike would not affect the production of army uniforms, as members of the union had been instructed to remain at work if they were employed on Government contracts. R. G. Bostwick, an examiner for the Federal War Labor Board, who is in this city, said yesterday that neither side in the garment controversy had applied to the board to arbitrate their differences, and that in any event he doubted the board's jurisdiction.

The Federal Food Board was making preparations yesterday to mediate between the Brooklyn master bakers and their journeymen bakers in the event a settlement is not reached by tomorrow in the demand of the men for an increase of $6 a week in wages. A strike of bakers in Brooklyn would, it was said, probably precipitate a walkout in shops in Manhattan and the Bronx, and this contingency the Food Board is anxious to prevent.

E. J. Deering, business representative of the International Association of Machinists, District Lodge 15, announced yesterday that the members of the union who had been on strike at magazine and newspaper plants would return to their jobs today pending a decision by the Federal War Labor Board in the matter of an increase in wages. This morning at City Hall R. G. Bostwick and J. F. Keirnan of the War Labor Board will begin taking testimony in the demand of the press feeders for higher pay.

FLIES TWO MILES A MINUTE.

J. M. Schoonmaker, Jr., Makes Record Time Going to Father's Bedside.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29.—A new record time for an airplane flight between Dayton, Ohio, and Pittsburgh was claimed today by James M. Schoonmaker, Jr., son of the Vice President of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad, who covered the distance of 228 miles in a De Haviland battleplane yesterday afternoon in 1 hour and 45 minutes. An average speed of more than two miles a minute was maintained.

Young Schoonmaker, who is chief engineer of the Dayton-Wright Airplane Company, received a telephone message yesterday morning that his father, who just had undergone an operation, was seriously ill. He immediately decided to make a flying visit to his bedside and obtained permission to use a De Haviland battleplane. With Howard Rinehart as pilot, he left Wright Field, Dayton, at 11:15 A. M. and landed here at 1 P. M. on Brunots Island.

Schoonmaker today said the fastest previous record airplane time between Dayton and Pittsburgh was 2 hours and 5 minutes.

Head of Lunch Company a Suicide.

Newark Cabarets to Close Friday.

An order was issued yesterday by Police Commissioner John C. McEnroe of Newark ordering all cabarets in the city to close and to remain closed for the duration of the war. The order, which goes into effect at 1 o'clock Friday morning, was issued at the request of the Surgeon General's Department, U. S. A. The order will not interfere with bona fide restaurants having instrumental music on a raised platform or in balconies, but no vocal music or dancing will be permitted. Hall owners will be permitted to rent their halls for balls and receptions to regularly organized clubs or societies now in existence or which have been in existence three months prior to the date of the affair.

Votes Here In Minnesota Election.

The first vote for next Tuesday's election was cast in County Clerk Schneider's office yesterday by Maurice M. Crowley, a traveling salesman of Minneapolis, under a new law in that State by which a voter when unable to cast his vote at home on election day, may at any time in advance of the election swear to his vote before a public official and have it mailed to his place of residence.

MANUFACTURERS TRUST COMPANY

COURTESY PROGRESS

EFFICIENCY SERVICE

THE MANUFACTURERS TRUST COMPANY has paid for $12,000,000 Fourth Liberty Loan Bond subscriptions. Out of this total, $3,000,000 in cash bonds were sold over the counter. In addition to this it sold coupon books to small subscribers to the amount of about $350,000. To accomplish this a tremendous amount of work was required, not only by the regular employees of our Institution, but by twenty additional employees, some of whom kindly volunteered their services.

As the quota of our Company, based on resources, and as fixed by the Federal Reserve Bank amounted to but $5,197,000, we believe that our record for patriotic service in exceeding our quota in the Fourth Liberty Loan will be unsurpassed by that of any other institution in the entire City.

THIS gratifying result could not have been achieved except by the most intensive, loyal and patriotic work on the part of our Officers and Employees, to all of whom we extend grateful appreciation, which is shared by our expression of gratitude to our customers and friends for their enthusiastic and wholehearted support and for their splendid co-operation in our efforts.

Let us all look forward hopefully and cheerfully, determined in the future, as in the past, to carry to a successful conclusion any task our Government may assign to us.

CALLS ROOSEVELT A CARPING CRITIC

A WELCOME FOR SMITH

Candidate Gets Ovation at the Wigwam as He Assails Governor Whitman.

Tammany Hall turned out last night to welcome its candidate for Governor, Alfred E. Smith. It was Mr. Smith's first appearance at the Fourteenth Street organization during the present campaign, and some 2,000 of his friends, mostly women, gave him a noisy, old-time Tammany send off. The big audience also expressed its enthusiastic approval of an answer to Colonel Roosevelt's Carnegie Hall speech by Samuel Untermyer. Mr. Smith made a vigorous attack upon his Republican opponent, Governor Whitman, and Mr. Untermyer aroused the greatest enthusiasm when he said of Mr. Roosevelt's speech:

"A more wicked, distorted, vitriolic assault would be difficult to imagine. It represents the outbreak of years of pent-up gall, hatred, and jealousy, and I predict that it will prove a ghastly failure and will react as it deserves. We need have no fear that this State and country will not stand behind their President at such a time."

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Democracy of New York County, and Mr. Untermyer presided. After he had been introduced by Representative Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, and the band had played "The Star-Spangled Banner" Mr. Untermyer called upon the audience to rise and give three cheers for "the world leader, our valiant Commander of the Army and Navy, our beloved President, Woodrow Wilson." The cheers were given and a "tiger" and then Representative Smith read the President's appeal. This, too, received great applause.

Chairman Untermyer's Speech.

Samuel Untermyer said, in part:

"We are met tonight at the supreme moment in our history, when victory is within our reach and we have but to garner its fruits with the aid of the same superb leadership and guided by the same masterly statesmanship that have carried us triumphantly through this great ordeal. It is wellnigh incredible that it is this critical moment, just as we are on the eve of triumph and the fulfillment of our fondest dreams for the future of humanity, that the Republican Party has selected to precipitate this petty, ignoble broil in the hope of sowing the seeds of discord and of undermining the confidence of the nation and of our allies in our commander-in-chief by launching a series of bitter partisan attacks against his leadership.

"The effort is to rob our leader, who is now the acknowledged spokesman of the civilized world, and whose vision and organizing genius have made this result possible, of his magnificent handiwork, and to dim the glory and prestige of the nation lest the opposition party thereby suffer in influence. It is a spectacle that should bow our heads in shame.

"A more wicked, distorted, vitrolic assault would be difficult to imagine. It represents the outbreak of years of pent-up gall, hatred, and jealousy, and I predict that it will prove a ghastly failure and will react as it deserves. We need have no fear that this State and country will not stand behind their President at such a time.

"Chief among the offenders is a man who, notwithstanding his intense partisanship and his faults of temperament, has long held a high place in the affections of the people. Much has been forgiven him in the past and at this particular time much more will be forgiven him because of his past services and the sacrifices that have been made by his brave and patriotic sons, for which they, and not he, are entitled to the glory. But there is a limit to the forbearance of even the most generous of people, and I believe he has passed that limit, for we are in no mood to permit bitter political expediency or personal jealousy and animosity to play havoc with the grim business that the nation has in hand.

"Continuous Fault-finding."

"'His intemperate partisanship, fanned into flame by personal hatred and envy, appears to know no bounds. His attitude has been throughout this war one of continuous, blind, bitter carping and ungenerous fault-finding at a time when support, encouragement, and calm and discriminating criticism constitute the highest duties of citizenship. At no time since we entered the war, in fact at no time since the outbreak of the European war, has he had a kind, just, or encouraging word to say concerning any of the many colossal constructive things that have been done and that have evoked the wonder and the enthusiastic praise of the world. If he could not or dared not openly condemn, he maintained a sullen silence—and silence is no easy task for that gentleman under any conditions.

"He has been, throughout, the highest discordant note among the men of his party who hold the public attention. He is the self-appointed ringleader of the little band of malcontents in whom the national pride and admiration that they should have felt and voiced for the great deeds that have been done by this administration have been stifled by hate and jealousy, and who have blindly refused to accord to this world-leader the credit that is justly due him.

"Here is a sample of the diatribes that have been dripping from his pen. This particular fulmination was let loose throughout the land on Friday morning—the day before the President felt forced to issue his appeal—through The Associated Press, under cover of a telegram to leaders of his party in the Senate:

"'The language of the fourteen points and the subsequent statement explaining or qualifying them is neither straightforward nor plain, but if construed in its probable sense many and possibly most of these fourteen points are thoroughly mischievous, and if made the basis of a peace, such peace would represent not the unconditional surrender of Germany, but the conditional surrender of the United States. Naturally they are satisfactory to Germany, and equally naturally they are, in this country, satisfactory to every pro-German and pacifist and Socialist and anti-American so-called internationalist. * * * Moreover, we should find out what the President means by continually referring to this country merely as the associate instead of the ally of the nations with whose troops our own troops are actually brigaded in battle. * * * When the German people repudiate the Hohenzollerns—then and not until then it will be time to discriminate between them and their masters.'

"What can he mean by this screed criticising the President for referring to our allies as our associates, except to be painfully hypercritical at every opportunity? And what, pray, is the point of the German people repudiating the Hohenzollerns in view of the President's note to Germany that appeared in the press of the preceding day, the concluding paragraph of which is as follows, and to which this telegram was supposed to be a reply: 'If it (America) must deal with the military masters and the monarchical autocrats of Germany now, or if it is likely to have to deal with them later with regard to the international obligations of the German Empire, it must demand, not peace negotiations, but surrender. Nothing can be gained by leaving this essential thing unsaid.'

"When one contrasts some of the assertions in the speech delivered by Colonel Roosevelt last evening with the facts, one is reminded of the old days when he was President and was adding day by day to his Ananias Club, that grew so rapidly in membership that at the close of his term the country wondered whether there were any men left in public life who had not qualified as members. So utterly bewildered does one become in wading through this maze of disingenuous and untruthful statements and implications that it is difficult to know where to begin the task of disproving them. Some of the situations he attempts to create are not without their unconscious humor, especially when he pillories the President as a partisan and an autocrat and complains of his failure to invite Republicans into his Cabinet. Imagine Colonel Roosevelt in the guise of a preacher of nonpartisanship.

Forced Upon President.

"It is not true that this issue has been injected into the campaign by the President, or that it was invited by him. It has been forced upon him by the conduct of the Republican leaders in and out of Congress, culminating in bitter and concerted attacks upon his splendid diplomacy and leadership within a few days before he found it necessary to issue his appeal to the patriotism of his country for support in his policies.

"The President's appeal to the country for the election of a Congress that will give him its whole-hearted support instead of backcapping him while pretending to sustain him is the climax of months of insidous partisan assaults upon his prestige and authority in the vain search for an issue on which to conduct the now pending Congressional campaign. Within the last few weeks, with the elections in sight, their predicament has become desperate and so they have allowed themselves to be persuaded to ruthlessly attack his diplomatic policy, that is now in its most crucial stage, and at a time when, above all others, it behooves good citizens to support their Chief Executive and the commander-in-chief of their army.

"If you really want an illustration of superb mendacity permit me to refer you to the claim of the Republican leaders to credit for having voted for the men and money necessary for the conduct of the war. Having voted for the war, at least some of them, there was nothing else for them to do. They dared not do less. In answer to their claim that they did this as unstintingly as the members of the President's own party, let us glance at the record.

"The McLemore resolution, which would have warned Americans off the high seas, and which was in itself a recognition of Germany's right to sink passenger ships, had 103 Republican House supporters and only 32 Democrat this resolution. The resolution declaring the existence of a state of war with Germany was opposed in the House by 32 Republicans and 16 Democrats.

"Seventy-six Republicans and 47 Democrats in the House voted for the Cooper amendment, which would have prevented the arming of American ships for defense against submarines. On the Espionage bill 97 Republicans and 1 Democrat were opposed. One hundred and sixty Republican members of the House and only 1 Democrat voted against the Shipping Board bill, while in the Senate 20 Republicans and only 1 Democrat voted against it.

"I congratulate you on the presence among you of so many women citizens and voters. To me, who have been an ardent champion of suffrage for more than twenty-five years and during the 'dark ages' when it was considered a fad and a reproach, this gathering is indeed gratifying, for it represents the realization of my dream for their enfranchisement. Has it occurred to you that it is to the great Democratic City of New York and to the Democratic Party of the city that you owe your enfranchisement? It would be improper for any one to ask, and I do not for a moment suggest, that you should vote for the candidates of the Democratic Party on any such ground. It is, however, well for you to remember the facts and not to permit yourselves to be misled by claims upon your loyalty that are contrary to the facts."

Mr. Untermyer departed from his set speech to say a few words about Governor Whitman. Referring to the fact that he has been indorsed by the Prohibition Party Mr. Untermyer declared that the Republican leader of the Senate had once said that "more rum has been consumed in the Executive Mansion at Albany during the last four years than has ever been consumed there in the previous forty years."

Cheers for "Al" Smith.

Other speakers were Harry C. Walker, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and Bird S. Coler, candidate for Controller; Mrs. John Jerome Rooney and Miss Helen Todd. But the crowd was plainly interested in "Al" Smith, and when he appeared the cheering lasted several minutes.

Mr. Smith began his speech with a resume of what were, he declared, "the constructive acts of the Democratic Party while in control of the Legislature at Albany." He cited the ratification of the Federal Income Tax amendment "the year after its defeat by a Republican Assembly." To this he added a long list of labor laws and acts due to the Democrats.

He then pointed to the Widows' Pension law, the Workmen's Compensation act, the direct election of United States Senators, and reduced telephone rates. Then he added:

"Contrast this with the four years of Whitman. Four years devoid entirely of an constructive act or constructive policy of any kind.

"Four years of empty selfcentred government operated to advance the political fortunes of an individual, with no thought or consideration for the public good or the public welfare.

"There was a time when I believed that Governor Whitman's lack of knowledge of the affairs of this State ran only to finances. I gradually grew to believe that there were many other phases of the State Government with which he never familiarized himself. After reading his speech of last night in Long Island City I am prepared to make the statement that he knows nothing about what has taken place in this State in the last ten years.

"He invited labor to look over my legislative career to find out where I stood on legislation in the interest of labor. He cannot be serious in that statement. He evidently intended it for his immediate audience. Every man, woman, and child in this State knows tonight that no man in all the State's history devoted as much time to the study and passage of laws in the interest of men, women, and children that labor. I did. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, said: 'From my association with Mr. Smith when he was Vice Chairman of the Factory Investigating Commission, I became fully conversant with his sterling qualities of heart and mind in addition to his effective co-operation in securing the enactment by the New York State Legislature, of various laws in the interest and welfare of the masses of the people.'

"There is not a labor organization in the State of New York that has not passed resolutions indorsing my work at Albany. There is not a newspaper in the Eastern part of this country that did not comment favorably upon the labors of the Factory Investigating Commission and the laws that grew out of it.

Whitman No Expert, He Says.

"The Governor said last evening 'I don't pretend to be an expert on labor legislation.' I should say he ought not to so pretend, because not only is he not an expert but he apparently knows nothing about it.

"I charge that his Administration weakened the Workmen's Compensation act by restoring the direct settlement clause. I repeat the charge and I tell him that he cannot camouflage with John Mitchell's letter about advance payments to injured men. They are two entirely different things. To provide for advance payments it was not necessary to restore the ambulance chaser and bring back all the old evils of the liability laws written in the interest of the casualty companies, that the Workmen's Compensation act was intended to abolish.

"The Governor says I never earned a dollar laboring with my hands. He is wrong again. When he was an Amherst College student I was working in the Fulton Fish Market at the hardest labor that any man could do. I started before sunrise and worked until dark night. I know labor's needs. I have lived and worked all my life among men and women who labor for their daily bread and I will continue to live among them when I am the Governor of this State, and when I come to New York they can meet me and find me in my old neighborhood and talk to me. They won't have to break through hundreds of pounds of gold lace in the St. Regis Hotel to make known their troubles."

REPUBLICANS WORK HARD.

Wilson's Appeal Stirs State Headquarters to Vigorous Action.

With practical unanimity candidates on the Republican State ticket and Republican leaders from up-State who had come to this city yesterday to attend the Union League Club meeting declared that President Wilson's appeal for the election of a Democratic Congress would have the effect of rolling up the biggest Republican vote on record in this State, even leaving out of consideration the natural increase resulting from the enfranchisement of women.

Many Republicans who are not candidates and not actively engaged in the work of the campaign or in party management and some who are, however, in talking about the situation with friends professed the greatest degree of uncertainty and misgiving as to the effect of the President's appeal to the country. One United States Senator who was visiting this city yesterday and one candidate for office on the Republican ticket expressed themselves as dissenting from the opinion most generally expressed in Republican circles.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, said that the Republicans were working as never before to elect a Republican Congress, and that this aim was all but attained. Mr. Hays said that he had a batch of letters and telegrams on his desk, from all parts of the country, and they all indicated that the Democratic prospects had been injured by the President's appeal.

The effect of the President's appeal on the women, of whom the Republican leaders had claimed a large majority, and on the independent voters generally, Republicans who discussed the President's action yesterday freely admitted that they had been unable to gauge, and that the uncertainty worried them. One thing is certain, President Wilson's action has put life into a campaign that up to the time he made his appeal was the most somnolent and lethargic on record. This speeding up is sharply reflected by the activity at Republican State headquarters, where there is a scurrying to and fro entirely out of keeping with the assertions of State Chairman Glynn and other headquarters functionaries that the President's appeal has made doubly sure the victory that they claimed before it was made.

TEMPERATURE GOES TO 69.

Weather Bureau Records Show It Was Hottest Oct. 29 in 44 Years.

The temperature yesterday reached 69 degrees at noon, within three degrees of the record for Oct. 29. The Weather Bureau records that on Oct. 29, 1874, the temperature reached 72 degrees. What made the high temperature of yesterday particularly depressing was the humidity. It was 99 per cent. at 8 A. M., and at noon, the hour of the highest temperature, it was 85 per cent. A year ago the temperature was 55 at noon.

The highest temperature recorded by the Weather Bureau for October was in 1881, when, on the first day of the month, thermometers registered 88 degrees.

PROPHET STATESMAN HE CALLS MR. WILSON

AT ONE WITH LLOYD GEORGE

Dr. Guttery Sees No Danger of Their Disagreeing Over Principles of Peace—Tells England's Aims.

The Rev. Dr. A. T. Guttery, President of the National Council of Free Churches of England and Wales, who is visiting this country, said yesterday, after returning from Washington, where he was received by President Wilson, that there was no real difference between the peace views of President Wilson and those of David Lloyd George. He told the President that in the view of the Protestant churches of England the head of the American Nation was a prophet-statesman who maintains supreme those moral aims which are the final sanction and surest pledge of victory.

Dr. Guttery was commissioned by the National Council of Free Churches, which comprises all Christian churches in England except the Catholic and Anglican, to convey to President Wilson the message that they adhered to the broad principles he had proclaimed for the settlement after the war. After his interview Dr. Guttery said he was convinced that there was no danger of disagreement between the United States and England and her Allies over important decisions on the question of peace.

Voices Moral Convictions.

"The Free Church Council," said Dr. Guttery, "holds President Wilson in the highest regard, as voicing the moral convictions of the free peoples on the war. He represents a nation which more than all others has least to gain in the material and imperial sense from this war. No man can charge America with any selfish purpose, which fact gives the representative of America great weight in the councils of the Grand Alliance.

"We in Europe, especially in Britain, do not pledge ourselves in detail to the fourteen points of President Wilson's program of peace, nor do we think it fair to him to discuss them as details in a program. They are rather steps toward an ideal goal and we are sure that President Wilson, with his great wisdom, will be prepared in the future, as he has been in the past, to accept modifications as circumstances may demand.

"There are certain factors of detail which the English Free Churchmen are determined to gain before we can even enter upon the consideration of the larger ideals. We insist upon it that there shall be a demobilization of the enemy armies before even an armistice is granted to Germany. We insist upon an entire evacuation of all invaded territory before the Allies shall cease hostilities. There must be granted to Berlin no easier terms than we granted to Bulgaria. Germany and Bulgaria are at least equal in crime and must share the same condemnation.

"We believe that in some spectacular way, Berlin itself should be the scene where peace terms are dictated by the free nations and we Free Churchmen also demand that an international court of sufficient authority shall inflict personal punishment on imperial criminals who have outraged all international law in their conduct of the war.

"England grows stronger every day in the conviction that there should be at least a payment of ship for ship that has been sunk by submarine piracy. While we do not ask for any indemnities for ourselves, we demand that Belgium, as far as it is possible, shall be restored by forced contributions of German wealth and labor. We demand that the just claims of France, Italy, the Balkan States, and the Slav races shall not be regarded as matter for discussion, but for decision by the allied nations.

British Aims Within Wilson Terms.

"While I have no authority to say that these terms would meet with the approval of President Wilson, I am convinced that they are contained within the scope of his fourteen points. The peoples of Europe rely on America and its great President to co-operate on this just settlement before peace can be arranged.

"England regards President Wilson as a 'prophet-statesman' in the sense that with unrivaled clearness, he has pierced beneath the superficial events and interests to the great faiths which alone give the war sanction and interpretation. We regard him as being in America what we used to regard Gladstone as being in England, and as we today regard Lloyd George, a great Free Churchman and Prime Minister.

"I had a most interesting and frank conversation with the President, who showed a large knowledge of English public men and affairs, and my own personal impression is that there is perfect unity of aim between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George. My interview has enriched me with a real message of cheer and courage for the people at home. I think Mr. Wilson is in every sense a great American and a great soldier of humanity."

AUTOCRACY'S DOOM AT HAND, DANIELS SAYS

Predicts It Will Come in Thirty Days and Foresees a Big Job for Our Navy.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 29.—Plenty of work after the war was promised to munitions workers at the Naval Torpedo Station here by Secretary Daniels, who made an unexpected visit to this city today. The Secretary addressed officers, enlisted men, yeowomen, and many men and women munition workers in front of the Commandant's house at the station, and then went to the Naval Training Station, where he reviewed a brigade of apprentice seamen and later addressed the men.

The Secretary was enthusiastic in his praise of the munition workers, and declared that without their efforts it would have been impossible for the American destroyer flotilla to have made its splendid showing against the U-boats.

"When German autocracy is destroyed," he said, "as I pray God it will be within the next thirty days, and as it is sure to be by the prowess of our arms, there is going to be a big job for the navy. So the great establishment which we have begun here is but the foundation upon which we will build a larger naval establishment."

At the training station the Secretary spoke of his pride in the navy's patriotism, and particularly complimented the Marine Corps for its work overseas.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 29.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, in an address here tonight urging the return of a Democratic Congress in the election next Tuesday, said Republican politicians in their desire to get control of the Senate and House had forgotten their duty as Americans. They have raised false cries, he asserted, in the hope of getting the people to forget the one dominating issue.

Never during the prosecution of a war, said Mr. Daniels, have the people denied to their President the co-operative aid of a Congress in harmony with the policy to which the Republic is solemnly committed, and never until this year was "the Pecksniffian cry raiseu by any party: 'You must elect a Republican Congress to uphold the hands of a Democratic President.'"

"During the months that the President and leaders of his party have been busy with policies to win the war," continued the Secretary, "republican politicians and reactionary would-be profiteers have been thinking of nothing but capturing Congress. Such would-be profiteers have called upon their fellow reactionaries to 'put up more money to carry Congress this year than we spent in 1916.' Why? They try to camouflage the people by saying they do not like the brand of notes coming from Wilson's typewriter. No more does the Kaiser or the Junkers. But Great Britain, France, Italy and all Democratic nations in Europe indorse them and make them their own.

"Let the people know the secret of the big money the reactionists are putting up to elect a Republican Congress. These men of the Plunderbund are not thinking about patriotism but paytriotism. They are not thinking about securing permanent peace, or even about war. They are thinking about after the war, and they are straining every nerve to secure a Congress that will repeal or destroy the wholesome legislation and progressive steps which have marked Wilson's Administration.

"It is not the plain voter of any party, his heart aflame with patriotic zeal, who has for weeks been playing politics with the gravest consequences that ever confronted mankind. It is the Republican politician, who sometimes poses as a statesman, who has busied himself with raising false issues in order to try to get control of Congress. He is not pro-German. He simply has forgotten his duty as an American and dropped down to his lower plane as a partisan. Forgetting the weightiest matters, he beats the party tomtoms and raises ancient political catch-phrases in the hope that the people can be made to forget the one dominating issue: Is America to bring the war lords to their knees and lead in securing permanent peace?

"That is the only issue. Woodrow Wilson is the chosen leader of America. His fourteen demands in his address of Jan. 8 have been indorsed by every disinterested statesman in the world. It is the greatest utterance of the war. The war will not end until those fourteen principles are secured.

"Let every voter in America read and reread the President's fourteen items of 'the programme of the world's peace.' That is all that is necessary to convince them of their wisdom and show them Wilson's vision of world statesmanship.

"What does the President ask of the American people? This and nothing more: That hope of partisan advantage be adjourned until 1920 and a Congress in harmony with America's demands be chosen. What man who wishes to present a united front to Prussianism and a consistent attitude to our brave allies will jeopardize the future by refusing this support in this hour of national crisis."

Weeks Refuses to Enter Debate.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—Senator John W. Weeks, candidate for re-election, today declined the invitation of his political opponent, ex-Governor David I. Walsh, to a joint debate. Senator Weeks said he would not debate the question of his own patriotism with any one.

DOMESTIC DRAMA IN 'PETER'S MOTHER'

Mrs. de la Pasture's Novel Is Faithfully Dramatized at The Playhouse.

WOMAN AND EGOIST MAN

An Interesting Novel Makes a Rather Prosy Play—Some Able Acting.

PETER'S MOTHER, a comedy in three acts by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, founded upon Mrs. de la Pasture's novel of the same name. At the Playhouse.

Sir Timothy Crewys...Charles A. Stevenson
Lady Mary Crewys.....Selene Johnson
Peter.....Philip Tonge
Lady Belstone.....Katharine Stewart
Miss Georgina Crewys.....Lillian Brennard
John Crewys, K. C.....Lumsden Hare
Canon Birch.....Walter Howe
Doctor Blundell.....Frederick Truesdell
Mrs. Hewell.....Kathrine Lorimer
Sarah.....Gypsy O'Brien
Ash.....Herbert Belmore

For one purpose the drama is forever inferior to the novel—for the purpose of divulging a novel. "Peter's Mother," a story of English domestic life which achieved a very deserved success in the early years of our century, was presented last night at the Playhouse. The stage version, being made by the novelist herself, is scrupulously faithful to its original, except that the young hero loses his right arm at Gallipoli instead of in the Boer war; and the net result was to remind one of the rare excellences of Mrs. de la Pasture's book.

The heroine is one of the innumerable women who in England are said to live out dull, sequestered lives in subservience to the egocentric male. In America there are fewer of the type—but that is another story. From seventeen to thirty-six Lady Mary was cabined, cribbed and confined by Sir Timothy. Then he died; and their son, Sir Peter, started her off again on the same régime of egocentric domesticity. In character Sir Peter is a younger brother of Meredith's Egoist; in its dramatic scheme the play is very much on the lines of Ibsen's "Ghosts." The Egoist walks again.

Being a popular novel in the ripest English tradition, the ending is of necessity happy. Little Miss Sarah Hewell sees how matters stand and by the simple expedient of capturing the young veteran's heart knocks at last one ray of understanding into his unimaginative head. Lady Mary escapes from the prison of Barracombe House into matrimony with her cousin, John Crewys, K. C., and into the ampler life of London, Rome and way stations.

In the novel, thanks to the subtle insight of the author into the workings of the feminine heart and to her strong sense of domestic character in conflict, this story made excellent reading. In the play there is scarcely a line not taken from the book; but the effect is somehow of a very dreary household doing little or nothing, but eternally talking about themselves.

The production seems to be mainly sponsored by Lumsden Hare, though the name of William A. Brady figures also. If the managerial instinct is somewhat in abeyance, the art of the actor has full sway. The performance is all but perfection.

Mr. Hare is quite charming as the K. C., hero of an Indian Summer romance. The Lady Mary of Selene Johnson has tricks of vocal lilting which are not wholly fortunate, but emotionally is simple and sincere. As the young egoist, Peter, Philip Tonge (well remembered as the young Lieutenant in Barrie's "New Word") misses something of the icy intolerance of the character and its gelid stupidity, investing it with a charm which is perhaps not untrue to the author's intention and is certainly most welcome. The Sarah of Gypsy O'Brien is full of sylphlike grace and elfin charm. But to name the members of the company is to praise them. It is a pity they could not have been assembled, not in a dramatization but in a play.

MAURICE DAMBOIS PLAYS.

Young 'Cellist Displays His Gifts in French and Belgian Music.

It was pleasant to hear the plangent tones of Maurice Dambois's violoncello last night at Aeolian Hall after a hailstone chorus of piano recitals. The gifted young Belgian virtuoso offered a program composed of French and Belgian music for his beloved instrument. He was at his best in the D minor concert by Edouard Lalo, an effective work "grateful" to the solo performer, and offering a rich orchestral background, absent, of course, last night. The sonorous tone of Dambois and his technical handling were in happy evidence again, though in a rather banal sonata by Breval (1736-1825) the concert-giver played dryly at times. In sooth the fiddling passages in the Rondo were a thorn in the flesh; nor was the intonation in the upper positions impeccable. But the fine style which he attacked the beautiful Lalo concerto, and the unaffected sentiment of his cantabile, displayed in the Introduction to the Rondo, proclaimed the serious artist. The Intermezzo was dainty, and fairly pulsed with rhythmic life.

We cannot unreservedly praise a new composition, "Poème," by Joseph Jongen, because its repetitions produced mood-monotony. The dirge-like cantilena suffered for this reason, broadly bowed as it was. A group of original compositions and novelties of Hahn and Inglebrecht closed an interesting musical evening.

As a solo instrument the violoncello is apt to induce weariness unless in the hands of a master. Maurice Dambois is a master. Samuel Chotzinoff contributed an effective accompaniment at the piano. There was plenty of enthusiasm in the audience.

Opera Seat a War Relief Prize.

Miss Oolah Duke has put at the disposition of the New York Committee of the Italian War Relief Fund of America at 347 Fifth Avenue a paid subscription, tax free, to an orchestra seat for the twenty-three Saturday matinees of the opera this season. The committee announces that it will be presented to the person who by noon of Nov. 11 shall make or procure the largest contribution to the resources of the fund in excess of $500. The money received will be equally divided between aiding Italian soldiers blinded in battle and the purchase of clothing and books for school children of Italy.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Morosco Theatre will remain dark until Monday, Nov. 18, when Florence Nash will be seen there as the star of "Rennant," a comedy by Dario Niccodemi and Michael Morton. Charles Emerson Cook is making the production.

Sam Sothern has been engaged for the American production of Barrie's play, "Dear Brutus," in which William Gillette is to star. Sothern appeared in the London production of the piece.

The complete cast of George V. Hobart's farce, "Stop That Man," includes Edwin Nicander, Sylvia Ingen, Consuelo Bailey, Brandon Hurst, Harry Ingram, William Caryl, Paul Dietz, Joseph Brennan, and Alice Wilson. The piece will have its first performance in Providence tomorrow night.

Two features of the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic, the battle tank and a patriotic tableau, will be shown at the Strand Theatre at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

MUSIC NOTES.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, owing to serious illness of his wife, is unable to leave Detroit to appear with the Symphony Society of New York in its opening concert on Thursday. His place will be taken by Leo Ornstein, who will play the MacDowell Concerto.

William Hinshaw announces that tonight and Saturday matinee will be the last performances of "Madame Butterfly," at the Park Theatre, with Maggie Teyte and Orville Harrold. Next week the Society of American Singers will revive "The Pirates of Penzance."

INTERPRET FOOD RULES.

Board Explains That Chipped Beef or Eggs on Toast May Be Served.

The Federal Food Board yesterday made public an interpretation of the new general orders for public eating places. The letter points out that General Order 2 does away with the service of bread and toast as a garniture or under meat, but does not forbid the serving of poached eggs or chipped beef on toast. This order is intended to do away with the wasteful practice of serving bread and toast simply to make a dish look attractive.

"General Order 4," the Food Board's statement said, "means that liver and bacon, mixed grills, and mixed cold meats, breast of chicken with Virginia ham or bacon, sweet breads and bacon, club sandwiches containing chicken and bacon or any dishes made up of more than one kind of meat shall not be served. This order, however, does not forbid the service of bacon and eggs or ham and eggs.

General Order 5 prevents the use of bacon as a dressing or an accompaniment to any kind of meat or poultry. Under General Order 7 Welsh rarebit cannot be served. It is explained that General Order 10, forbidding the burning of unused food, was framed because of complaints reaching the Food Administration that some public eating places had been unable to dispose of their waste to hog breeders or garbage reduction plants. Proprietors of such eating places should notify the Food Administration.

"The letter calls particular attention to the fact that 'if patrons desire it one mutton, one lamb chop, one veal chop, or one pork chop should be served to an order and reduced portions of ham and bacon should be served. Prices should be adjusted accordingly.' The letter explains that this does not mean that a portion shall consist of only one mutton chop or one lamb chop, &c., but that it does mean, 'if you are serving more than one mutton chop or one lamb chop, &c., that a patron may call for only one chop. If your portions of ham and bacon are large, a patron may call for a reduced portion.' The letter emphasizes that it should be understood when such a reduced portion is served the price should be reduced accordingly."

It was announced yesterday that the Childs restaurant at Columbus Circle, which up to last Saturday night had been open twenty-four hours a day, would hereafter close at 1 o'clock in the morning ordinarily and at 12 on Saturday nights. The closing was made on the request of Dominick Henry, Police Inspector of the Fourth District. Inspector Henry said yesterday that a "morbid" crowd gathered at the Childs eating place after other restaurants and cabarets had observed the 1 o'clock closing hour.

That the retail distribution of sugar in New York may be accomplished with fairness to the dealers themselves as well as to the public at large, the dealers are now accepting a form of pledge which they will ask the consumer to sign, stipulating that the purchases of the month will not exceed the allowance of the Food Administration of two pounds monthly for each member of the family, including servants. The form submitted by the dealers to the Food Board has been approved. The board yesterday laid plans to delve into the price of fish in this city.

WOMAN AIDS SHIPWRECKED.

Lightkeeper's Wife Saved Exhausted Sailors' Boat from Swamping.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Frank Thompson, wife of the assistant keeper of the Barnegat Light, after the sinking of the former Cuban steamer Chatarro through striking a floating mine off the Jersey coast Sunday night, probably saved the lives of nine of the crew when they were too weak to prevent their small boat from being swamped in the surf at the inlet. Crews of fishing smacks returning here tonight brought the story.

Mrs. Thompson was acting as a volunteer watcher early yesterday when she saw a small yawl bobbing up and down on the waves just outside the breaker line. Through the heavy fog she could just make out the forms of men apparently exhausted pulling feebly at the oars. They were in danger of being swamped, when she rushed from the keeper's house and fought her way into the surf until she was waist deep in the water.

Grabbing the bow of the yawl as it swung around by a big comber she struggled until she had righted the craft and pointed its nose to shore. Then she dragged into shallow water and beached it. She assisted seven of the men safely to the sands and helped to carry two others, too exhausted to walk, to the house.

Her cries by this time had summoned her husband and one of the Coast Guard reliefs and they arrived in time to assist Captain Ulgnolo, commander of the vessel, and thirteen other survivors who were in a second boat.

Inlet skippers state that the Captain told the Coast Guards that six of the crew were killed by the explosion that sank the Chatarro in less than ten minutes. Their bodies are supposed to have gone down with the steamer.

Wounded Nurse Tells Rally Meeting Home Needs Must Be Met.

The $200,000 fund campaign for the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, 321 East 15th Street, reached a total of $56,626 at the rally held yesterday at the McAlpin Hotel. Announcement was made that Miss Lydia Ferguson, soprano, who will give a folk song recital on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10, at the Punch and Judy Theatre, will turn over the proceeds from the sale of box seats to the Infirmary fund.

Speakers at the rally yesterday were Mrs. John Francis Yawger and Miss Madeleine F. Jaffray, a nurse who wears the Croix de Guerre and has been commissioned a Lieutenant in the French Army. Miss Jaffray told of her experience at the front and made an appeal for hospitable treatment of our soldiers when they return home. "But we must not forget our babies and their mothers here at home," she added, "in our enthusiasm for what our allies in Europe are doing and suffering. We must see that the splendid work of the New York Infirmary is continued in the fullest degree."

POLISH VETERANS TO MARCH

They Will Be Received by Mayor Hylan at the City Hall.

The twelve Polish veterans who have just arrived in this country to stimulate the movement to raise a Polish army in the United States will be received by Mayor Hylan in City Hall at noon today, and for the first time in history the flag of Poland will fly above the City Hall. The veterans, each of whom has been wounded and decorated with the Croix de Guerre and who are under command of Lieutenant John Chodzko, will leave for City Hall from the Battery at 11:30 A. M. tomorrow.

They will proceed up Broadway, escorted by the Polish Military Mission and a large number of Polish organizations of this city. Following the reception in City Hall, the veterans and their escort will proceed up Broadway to Union Square, where they will disband.

SEES GREEK GLORY RETURN.

Primate Says Entry of St. Sofia Will Fulfill Nation's Prayer.

The Rev. Meletios Metaxakis, Archbishop of Athens and Primate of Greece, was guest of the American-Hellenic Society last night at a dinner at the Ritz-Carlton. Besides the members of the society, with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as presiding officer, there were present a large number of representative Greeks.

The Archbishop said it was the last opportunity he would have to address his Greek compatriots, as he expected to leave for his home land within a few days. He arrived here two months ago, and, in speaking of his impressions of America during his travels in the interests of the Greek Church, he said he was deeply impressed with the realization of the democratic ideals of liberty today, which had been preached by the great Greek philosophers and teachers in classic times.

"I have been convinced," said the Archbishop, "that the free peoples of this country demand that the territories of Hellenism shall be given back in order that a great national unity may be the future ideal for Greece. I have been asked by Americans if Greece is able to govern and care for Constantinople if it were returned to her, and I say that she is more able to take charge of that city at this time than the original thirteen Colonies were under George Washington to undertake the government of their new republic when it was first thought of. I am waiting eagerly for the time when the children of Greece will be able to enter their historic temple of St. Sofia and complete their long-unfinished prayer."

Dr. Butler, in introducing the Primate, spoke of "the soul of Greece which was restoring her national life to vigor and fruitfulness." One of the great lessons of the war, he added, was that "we are beginning to think of nations in terms of their soul and not merely in terms of size or material splendor."

Bishop Darlington of Harrisburg, Penn., paid a tribute to the Archbishop of Athens, saying that his presence here had stimulated the idea of church unity all over the world, regardless of creed or religious forms.

Police Commissioner Enright, on behalf of the Mayor, expressed to the Greek Primate his hope for the future success of his country and his church.

Officers of local Greek organizations at the dinner included among others Nicholas Manousis, head of the National Union of Dodecanesians, or dwellers in the twelve islands in the Mediterranean now under Italian military rule; Peter Stavrakos, President of the Lacedemonian Society, and George Georgakis.

Great concern is felt by the son and husband of Mrs. Leo W. Vogel, who left her home, 246 West Fifteenth Street, on Oct. 18, and has not been in communication with them since. Mrs. Vogel suffered a nervous breakdown a short time ago and has been in ill-health since that time. It is not known where she could be, nor is it understood how she could remain away for any length of time, as she was not prepared for a long trip, having with her only the clothes she wore, a black skirt and small black hat, a long black cape with a wide, light fur collar. She carried a black travelling bag with the letter "V" on either end.

Mrs. Vogel is 42 years old, 5 feet 2 inches high, and weighs 110 pounds or less, has blue eyes and brown, wavy hair, turning gray at the temples, clear skin and fair complexion.

"Follies" Stars in Midnight Frolic.

The valiant aid lent the performer by the intimate atmosphere of the roof garden was demonstrated anew at the performance of the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic on Monday night, when Eddie Cantor, Ann Pennington and Will Rogers, in their various specialties, scored far more decisively than is their customary wont in the "Follies." A belated decision to keep the Philadelphia playhouses closed has resulted in another week of idleness for the "Follies," and in this extremity three of its principals are appearing for a farewell week on the New Amsterdam roof.

Lives Are at Stake!

Loaned Automobiles Will Save Them!

The Brooklyn Chapter of the American Red Cross needs automobiles to convey the district nurses of Brooklyn and the Red Cross aides from house to house in its fight to check the Spanish influenza and pneumonia epidemic in Brooklyn.

One automobile enables a nurse to make 40 visits to patients in a day where she could otherwise make only 8.

You will make the tripling of this work possible if you lend the Brooklyn Chapter of the Red Cross your automobile for a half-day, a whole day, several days or a week. Kindly help us if you can.

A UNITED LEADERSHIP.

The utterances of certain Republican leaders may have given rise to the impression that President WILSON asked the country to be good enough to elect a Congress made up exclusively of Democrats. In his Carnegie Hall speech Mr. ROOSEVELT said that if the President's appeal is justified then "no man who is a Republican "and no man whether a Republican "or not who puts loyalty to the people "ahead of loyalty to the servants "of the people is to have a voice in "determining the greatest questions "ever brought before this Nation." The only way to exclude Republicans from having a voice in settling these great questions is to keep them out of Congress altogether, and of course the President does not intend or expect such a result.

We may be deemed exigent and unreasonable in suggesting that these Republican leaders take the trouble to read Mr. WILSON'S appeal in order that they may know just what he did say. Here are the two vital paragraphs:

> If you have approved of my leadership and wish me to continue to be your unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, I earnestly beg that you will express yourselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both the Senate and House of Representatives.
> I have no thought of suggesting that any political party is paramount in matters of patriotism. I feel too deeply the sacrifices which have been made in this war by all our citizens, irrespective of party affiliation, to harbor such an idea. I mean only that the difficulties and delicacies of our present task are of a sort that makes it imperatively necessary that the nation should give its undivided support to the Government under a united leadership, and that a Republican Congress would divide the leadership.

It is a majority vote, not a unanimous vote, that Mr. WILSON desires in Congress. If he gets all that he desires, all that he asks for, the Republicans will still have a great deal to say about his policies. Neither party will have the exclusive privilege of determining whether a peace treaty, for instance, shall be ratified by the Senate. The Constitution declares that the President "shall have power, by "and with the advice and consent of "the Senate, to make treaties provided two-thirds of the Senators "present concur." Neither party will have two-thirds of the next Senate. If there be a Democratic majority in that body, nevertheless Republican votes will be necessary to make up the required two-thirds. In any parliamentary body, the opposition has highly important functions. By its challenges it forces the majority to justify measures proposed by its leaders, under pain of defeat through the votes of open-minded members convinced by opposition arguments. Majority rule in legislatures is tempered and made reasonable by minority criticism.

Mr. WILSON asks that in the critical decisions to be taken during the next year the Government of the United States be not divided against itself. Plain warning that with a Republican majority in Congress it will be divided against itself has been given by the leaders of the opposition party. Their partisan appeals forced from the President an appeal for united leadership, for a majority that would not be continually opposing him and obstructing his policies for partisan advantage. They are seeking such an advantage now by their criticisms of the President's war policies, by their amazing misrepresentations of his manner of receiving the peace overtures of enemy countries. In civil and military quarters abroad, where opinions are not colored by interests in our domestic politics, the President's treatment of these overtures has been approved as showing consummate skill, leaving to the enemy no alternative but full surrender, with the attainment of all the war aims for which the Allies have fought. It is only in this country, and from Republicans, that he is charged with aiming at a "negotiated" peace, a peace that would imply surrender for the United States.

The President asks only that the leadership, the Government, be not divided; that he be not embarrassed in his action upon the great matters of the war by a purely selfish and partisan opposition. He would not have feared that if the Republican leaders had not openly threatened it. He makes acknowledgment of the loyal support given him by Republicans in Congress. The threat now made, publicly made, with specification of policies and measures, is that should Republicans control the next Congress this loyal support will be withdrawn, that he will encounter that opposition which he declares would be most embarrassing, that leadership will be divided. There are good reasons for the belief that these Republican leaders have altogether mistaken the feeling of the country, that they have mistaken the attitude toward the President and his policies of a very great part of their own organization. Had they viewed the matter with more calmness of mind they might have reasoned that, since the country has shown a wonderful unity in supporting the President since we entered the war, it would be reasonable to suppose that they would continue to support him until the end of the war, a period which in all probability will include Tuesday, Nov. 5, the day of election.

SUBMARINE HEROES AT BRUGES.

Mr. WALTER DURANTY'S dispatch in yesterday's TIMES, telling of the short and riotous life of the German submarine officers in Bruges, paints vividly a crapulous life. One seems to see some Flemish Little Master portraying almost too actually the excesses of ALVA'S Spanish infantry, or the little diversions of the Free Companies, the reckless mercenaries that followed the famous Condottieri, the Reiter and the Lanzknecht whose exploits anticipated, though at their worst they far from equaled, those of their twentieth-century successors.

We see the submarine officers highly paid, exempt from close official scrutiny into their amusements, living on shore a life much like that of the buccaneers and pirates, their more respectable ancestors. The adventurers who served under the Jolly Roger, the swaggering cutthroats of Flint and Blackbeard, sure to be hanged to the yardarm at last, drank and made merry in about the same way, according to their humbler lights and coarser surroundings, as these undersea Siegfrieds. As a rule, however, they had to lurk about obscure colonial ports. West India rum, more burning than the climate, was their ordinary tipple. The pirates of Bruges had a beautiful, quiet, mediaeval city to revel in. Ancient houses, their windows stained beautifully by the lapse of centuries, were put at their disposal. They had the pick of the best-stocked wine cellars of Belgium. With the curious fondness of the parvenu, they seem to have favored most what Mr. GREELEY used to call "champagne wine." Condemned to the nerve-biting life-in-death of the submarine, their occupation growing more dangerous every month, they consoled themselves with the old philosophy of men doomed to death. In the case of professional murderers like these, however, one thinks rather of the final drink of the eighteenth-century highwayman just before he donned the "wooden collar" at Tyburn.

The house of a millionaire of the classic name CATULLE was the club and headquarters of these gentle souls. They turned the basement, as they would have turned Catacombs or Cathedrals, into a rathskeller, perhaps the finest flower of German civilization. They adorned it with caricatures and cartoons. They scrawled over its walls characteristic Epicurean beer-hall rhymes. They hung up gaudy-colored lamps. And then, like JAMSHYD, they reveled and drank deep. Their wet record in this one house was ten thousand bottles. It is not much. The Olympian GOETHE is said to have drunk thirty thousand bottles, but his was a long life and these gentlemen were all for a short and merry one. In this house, and whatever other house was dishonored by their presence, they went through the usual German frolic of smashing all the crockery and furniture. The feast of unreason was usually ended by burning up the whole establishment.

THE ITALIAN VICTORY.

An Italian offensive in the Venetian Alps and along the Piave River seemed to be overdue, but Marshal FOCH had to bide his time. Great strategist as he is, untoward conditions had to be reckoned with. A campaign extending all the way from the English Channel to the Adriatic would have appealed powerfully to the imagination of the soldiers of the allied armies, but in Italy the troops were not adequately equipped with guns and ammunition. In the first week of the Austro-German offensive in late October last year the invaders claimed to have taken 250,000 prisoners and stated that the Italians had lost 2,300 guns. To send them French and British reinforcements and restore the morale of their army so that the enemy could be held in the mountain passes was a problem in itself, requiring time for its solution. No major operation could be attempted until their artillery deficiency was made up.

The favorable moment had come. In Albania the Austrians were giving way before the Italians, in Serbia the Austrians had been beaten back to the Danube and were trying to stiffen their lines with troops taken from the Italian front. The Germans, fighting desperately on the defensive in France, could not spare a division for service in Italy. In fact, it was Austria that had to go to the help of the Germans in the Metz sector. The signal was given by Marshal FOCH for the belated major operation; guns and munitions had recently been going forward to the armies commanded by General DIAZ. The first blow was struck just before the anniversary of Caporetto of painful memory.

The initial attack took place in the Alpine country, and, strenuous work as it was, the movement was a feint. The fighting in the mountain country must be continued until Winter sets in, for to neglect the enemy on that part of the front would be to risk his descent into the plains, in the rear of the main Italian Army attacking along the Piave. The object of the offensive is to drive the Austrians altogether out of Italian territory and back across the Isonzo. When that is accomplished the Italians will be in a better position in respect to their ancient enemy, and the Austrians will be in a chastened state of mind. It may not be necessary for the Italians and their allies to fight a decisive battle between the Piave and the Tagliamento and pursue the Austrians in rout to the Isonzo; the object would be attained if the enemy sued for an armistice, after sustaining heavy reverses, for a condition of any truce would be the evacuation of Italian territory.

The Austrians have not been able to hold back the Allies along the Piave River, indeed to offer any serious resistance. General DIAZ, who was too weak at the time of his last advance to continue it beyond the river, is now seeking a decision. Everywhere the Allies are victorious, and so many prisoners are coming in, 15,000 by a recent count, that the Austrian Army in Venetia seems to be facing disaster.

THE COLONEL'S FOURTEEN POINTS AND THE PRESIDENT'S.

It may have escaped general notice that Colonel ROOSEVELT, in his Carnegie Hall speech, laid down fourteen peace conditions, just as President WILSON did in his address to Congress on Jan. 8. It is interesting to compare the fourteen points made by the President with the fourteen points made by the Republican leader; the more so as in most particulars they are exactly alike except in diction. There is, however, a general difference, which is that President WILSON proposes not only terms of peace now, but suggests a sketch of the government of the world after the war, while the Republican leader confines himself to peace terms.

The President's first point was "open covenants of peace," no nation thereafter to make "private understandings of any kind" with another; open diplomacy. The Colonel's first point is "the unconditional surrender "of Germany and her vassal allies, "Austria and Turkey." The Colonel proceeds to make equally fundamental with this unconditional surrender the freeing of the subject races.

On that subject the President declared, first, that Belgium "must "be evacuated and restored, without "any attempt to limit the sovereignty "which she enjoys in common with "all other free nations." The Colonel declares that Belgium "must be restored and amply indemnified." As for Alsace-Lorraine, the President declared that "the wrong done to France by Prussia in 1871" "must be "righted in order that peace may "once more be made secure in the in"terest of all." The Colonel more bluntly says, "France must receive back Alsace and Lorraine." The President's words supplied subject for argument about his meaning until a few days ago, when The Associated Press made the statement, evidently on his authority, that he meant the return of Alsace and Lorraine. There is here no difference between the party leaders.

The Colonel's fourth point is that "Germany be forced to carry out her "broken promises to the Danes of "North Schleswig." That question had not come up in January, when the President made his list of points, but it seems generally understood that the Danes will receive full justice. Fifthly, the Colonel would have "all "of Poland made a separate common"wealth, with a seaport on the "Baltic." Austria and Prussia must disgorge, as well as Russia. The President declared for "an independent Polish State," including "the ter"ritories inhabited by indisputably "Polish populations," and with "a free and secure access to the sea," its political and economic independence "guaranteed by international covenant." There is mightly little difference in principle there.

Sixthly, the Colonel proposes to make "Finland, the Baltic provinces, "Lithuania, and Ukrainia as abso"lutely independent of Germany as "of Russia." The President calls for "the evacuation of all Russian terri"tory and such a settlement of af"fairs affecting Russia as will secure "the best and freest co-operation of "the other nations of the earth." Presumably he had the Baltic provinces in mind, as he must have had Ukrainia, when he said this, and meant that their future should be arranged for in the future. The Colonel, perhaps, goes too far in assuming that these provinces, especially Ukrainia, will want to be independent of Russia when they have a free chance to express themselves, unhampered by Germans or Bolsheviki.

We have taken the Colonel's points a little out of the order in which he stated them so as to group those relating to German territory. Returning to his fundamental point of Austria and Turkey, we cannot make any peace which is not based, he says, "upon "the freeing of the subject races of "Austria and Turkey from the yoke "of the Austrian, the Magyar, and "the Turk." This corresponds to President WILSON'S tenth point, which is that the peoples of Austria-Hungary "should be accorded the freest "opportunity of autonomous develop"ment." But the President has explained officially to Austria that that point no longer stands, for after it was laid down the Czechoslovaks made themselves into a nation which we have recognized; and we also, he says, are in sympathy with the national aspirations of the Jugoslavs. He proposed that the non-Turkish portions of Turkey should "be assured an un"doubted security of life and an ab"solutely unmolested opportunity of "autonomous development." The difference is that the Colonel would make Syria, Mesopotamia, and Armenia independent and the President would make them autonomous. Eighthly, the Colonel "would not subject the Ger"man or the Magyar to the domin"ion of any one else," nor permit those nations "to lord it over any one else." "Not autonomy but freedom "to all the nations that now cower "under the tyranny of Germany and "her allies." It seems as if the Colonel had said a great deal more than the President there, but really he has not, except in the case of Turkey. He disavows the whole idea of autonomy to the Jew of Palestine and the Christian of Armenia, and calls for absolute independence for all who now "cower under the tyranny of" Turkey and Austria.

The Colonel's ninth point is that the Rumanians in East Hungary should be "restored to Rumania." So they should be; it was to liberate them that Rumania entered the war, and it would be highly inconsistent to restore Italy's and France's "stolen children" and not restore Rumania's. The President calls for the "evacuation" of Rumania, as well as of Serbia and Montenegro, and proposes that the relations of the Balkan States in the future be "determined by "friendly counsel along historically "established lines of allegiance and "nationality," with international guarantees of their independence and territorial integrity. Both the President's point and the Colonel's should be accepted. Tenthly, the Colonel would have "the Italians of Southwest Austria joined to Italy." The President declares for "a readjust"ment of the frontiers of Italy along "clearly recognizable lines of nation"ality." There does not seem to be any difference there. The Colonel's eleventh point is that the Greeks should be "safeguarded in their rights." The President had nothing to say about Greece that was not covered by his general declaration on the subject of the Balkan States, already cited.

Twelfthly, the Colonel would have Constantinople made a free city, while the President declares for the internationalization of the Dardanelles. The Colonel's fourteenth point is this:

> The German stranglehold must be removed from Russia, and we should ourselves help Russia so far as she will permit us to do so, and we cannot efficiently do so unless our Government acts with infinitely greater wisdom, forethought, insight, and resolution than it has shown in its handling of the Siberian matter for the last six months.

The President's language on that subject was:

> The evacuation of all Russian territory and such a settlement of all questions affecting Russia as will secure the best and freest co-operation of the other nations of the world in obtaining for her an unhampered and unembarrassed opportunity for the independent determination of her own political development and national policy and assure her of a sincere welcome into the society of free nations under institutions of her own choosing; and, more than a welcome, assistance also of every kind that she may need and may herself desire. The treatment of Russia in the months to come will be the acid test of their good-will, of their comprehension of her needs as distinguished from their own interests, and of their intelligent and unselfish sympathy.

Three of the President's points have no counterpart in the Colonel's list. They declare for the freedom of the seas, the reduction of armaments, and the impartial adjustment of rival claims to colonies. Is the difference between the Colonel's points and the President's sufficiently great to furnish forth matter for a campaign issue?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Influenza and the Weather.

If more were known about the conditions, atmospheric and other, by which the spread of the influenza is extended or checked, it would be possible to speak with a closer approach to certainty as to the influence which the weather of the last two days has had on the epidemic. The common assumption, however, is that heat and humidity are favorable to the disease and unfavorable to its victims, and for this belief there is not a little support in common experience.

But the malady, it is obvious, and only too obvious, can work its ravages in clear, cool weather such as prevailed in the earlier weeks of October, while now there at least seems to be a decrease in the number of new cases. That proves next to nothing definite, for at this time a decrease in the epidemic, whatever the weather, is to be expected. Already great numbers of the more susceptible folk have been attacked, and either died or recovered, and a diminution of the scourge is inevitable when, as the phrase is, "it has burned itself out." That happy moment, unfortunately, has not yet arrived, and the Health Commissioner has done well to warn the public that no precautions can be safely neglected.

It is characteristic of influenza epidemics that they do not come in a single wave, but usually in several, separated by periods when the inclination is to suppose that the trouble is over. What precautions to take are not very well known, and, so far as announced by the most expert advice available, they consist in little or nothing except to follow with especial care the rules of life known by everybody to be conducive to health at all times. The special measures, such as the wearing of masks and the use of protective serums, have been but dubiously set forth, with the result that the utilization of them has been on a far smaller scale than their theoretical merits seem to justify.

A general resort to masks will never be made except under something like legal compulsion, and as for the several sera that have been prepared, the statement that they are "in the experimental stage" is the familiar and effective condemnation that has so often delayed medical progress.

But He Really May Have Said That.

One of the very recent foreign dispatches quotes the Kaiser as saying, "I will not abandon my sorely tried people." Of course it seems impossible that even he, in the existing circumstances, should make a statement that would be out of place anywhere except in the libretto of a comic opera, but possibility, for a man with the Kaiser's illusions as to his own importance, position, and quality, goes so very far that it would be rash to deny, offhand, that he could have said a thing so much more than utterly absurd.

There is no reason for supposing that he still does not think his right to rule of divine origin, and, holding that conviction quite sincerely, as he doubtless does, it follows that he would think abdication an abandonment of the duty laid upon him by his birth. The absurdity lies in his premise, not in his conclusion, for from the premise the conclusion comes logically and inevitably.

According to the Kaiser's theory of government, his people are indeed "sorely tried." They have not been misled or deceived, for, "by definition," neither was thinkable. That they have been defeated, to him, proves nothing more than that they and he have been subjected, for reasons beyond mortal comprehension, to severe trials. Naturally, it is his duty to stand by them, and theirs to stand by him.

Facts and common sense are irrelevant in such a case as his, and what is more probable than that he should talk nonsense seriously, now as always?

The Troops That Took Vaux.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An advertising agency is a good thing at times, but when an advertising agency misrepresents its goods there is a possibility of it becoming a detriment to the advertiser. There are a few organizations in France that really do not need an advertising agency—their work has been honorable enough to speak for itself. There are two regiments of marines in France and they are a part of my division, and I know their service has been honorable, let us say just as glorious as many other infantry organizations of the United States Army that are now in France.

But from time to time, and very often, too, certain papers of the United States write as if certain organizations were doing the whole thing alone over here. For example, in your pictorial issue of Aug. 11, 1918, you show a picture of the town of Vaux, France, and announce that this town was stormed by the marines. Now, as I am in command of the battalion that actually took Vaux and as we are all very, very proud of her reputation and of her high standard as a shock outfit, will you kindly correct this error? Also, out of respect for the high standard of veracity THE NEW YORK TIMES has ever maintained, please remember that there are today over 1,750,000 American troops abroad, and about 6,000 of them are marines in the two excellent regiments the Navy Department has sent over.

To Investigate Balkan Atrocities.

The joy of the Serbians over the news that already two-thirds of Serbia have been recovered from the clutches of the foes has been greatly marred by the sad story of the unbelievable atrocities and devastation committed by the enemies in their retreat or during the occupation.

It would be in the interest of justice, therefore in the interest of the permanent peace among nations, that those atrocities should be impartially investigated and reported to the court of the public opinion of the world by honest disinterested men.

Would you help me in arranging that some representative Americans go to Serbia in order to investigate the matter? The Serbian Government will gladly welcome their arrival and do all in its power to help their mission of independent and impartial investigation. V. R. SAVICH,

THE KAISER'S PRAYER.

I have brought you defeat's obligation
To add to the griefs that you bear,

My hands are the red hands of Cain;

The Fatherland reeks with my sins,
But save me, I pray you, tomorrow,
When Justice its reaping begins!

I have killed both my comrades and strangers,
I have murdered on land and on sea;
No soul has been safe from the dangers
Suggested or ordered by me.
I have tried to kill all who defied me,
That I might rule land, air, and wave,
But oh, let not this be denied me—
My body I beg you to save!

CAILLAUX TRIAL OPENS IN APATHY

SENATE AS A HIGH COURT

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The long-heralded Caillaux trial began today. There has not been a ripple of excitement in Paris in anticipation of what in normal times would be a great event. But the times are far from normal. This is a cas célèbre, with all its celebrity worn threadbare before it began.

There is interest, of course, in the outcome, rather than in the trial itself, but it is entirely dispassionate, although mixed with sorrow and humiliation that a man who has been prime minister of France must be tried on a charge of high treason against his country while at war. But that about sums up public feeling toward the trial. There is no chance of any new political issue or alignment growing out of what may now happen. Caillaux and the public are entirely disposed to take both the verdict and the punishment with calm.

With all France about to be rid of its enemies in the fighting of whom millions of men have been sacrificed, there cannot be much interest in the fate of one man, even though an ex-premier. Caillaux's name has hardly been mentioned in the Paris papers for a week, and his case has been entirely crowded out of boulevard conversation by the excitement of the great military victories and the intense interest in what may come of Germany's begging for an armistice.

The great victories of the allied armies have brushed the Caillaux case out of the public mind, not only because of their own importance, but also because with the coming of victory the very thing Caillaux himself stood for becomes as if it never had existed. He was above everything else a defeatist. His politics were the politics of defeatism, and the question for the court is: Did he in furtherance of that policy commit the crime of high treason?

Leaving aside the details, the Caillaux record leading up to the present, the situation may be most accurately stated as that of a materialist who could not appreciate and did not take into account the idealism and moral force of his own country. As a member of former Governments, even as Prime Minister, which post he held until just before the war began, his policy was that France should do anything necessary to advance her material and commercial interest in her relations with Germany. He was willing that France should be humiliated politically by Berlin if he thought commercial advantage could be gained thereby.

His principle in that respect did not alter with the beginning of the war. From the outset he was convinced that France could not win. He harped on his theory that France, being a Republic, could not defend herself successfully against Germany's military monarchy. He endeavored to create a panic of fear in French minds. His purpose was to end the war on any terms for the sake of the mere economic rehabilitation of France, regardless of everything else, as soon as possible.

It was out of such a defeatism policy that came the situation which led to the arrest of Caillaux on a charge of having communication and dealings with the enemy. Although Caillaux was the leader of the Radical Party before the war, the following he has left in France, if any, is entirely personal. Defeatism has been forgotten in victory, and its chief apostle would have scant influence at this moment, even were he a free man, without the charge of treason hanging over him.

It is a bit of irony that the Caillaux trial, which had been looked forward to as the big culminating event in the series that began with the Bonnet Rouge cases, should attract less attention than those preliminary affairs and the Malvy case.

Gallery Nearly Empty.

PARIS, Oct. 29, (Associated Press.)—Sitting as a High Court, the French Senate today began its sessions for the trial of ex-Premier Caillaux, Deputy Louis Loustalot and Paul Comby. The accused persons were not present, as the proceedings were only preliminary.

The indictment against the three prisoners was read by the State Prosecutor. The court appointed a Committee of Investigation to study the enormous mass of evidence transmitted by the magistrates who have been investigating the case. The evidence is contained in more than 7,000 documents. When the committee has finished its inquiry, the court will resume its sessions. It is not known how long the committee will require to look over the evidence.

Only a few persons were in the public gallery. When the roll was called eighty-nine Senators answered to their names, showing that there were fifty-four absentees. The legal representatives of the accused were not present, but M. Crecaldi, M. Caillaux's counsel, was in the public gallery.

The address of Theodore Lescouve, the prosecutor tonight takes up eight closely printed columns in the Temps. The prosecutor concluded his address by charging the accused men with having conspired against the external safety of France by manoeuvres and machinations with the enemy and by aiding enemy enterprises.

M. Lescouve gave quotations from documents in Caillaux's handwriting which were found in the safe of a bank in Florence. He said he did this to show that Caillaux considered the French press more responsible for the war than Germany. The prosecutor said that Caillaux in April, 1915, believed the war was lost and that this defendant always was more occupied concerning the making of peace than the winning of the war. The program Caillaux had drawn up for France after peace would have meant civil war, the prosecutor added.

M. Lescouve dealt at length with Count James Minotto, son-in-law of Louis F. Swift, a Chicago packer, who is interned in the United States, but who is alleged to have made a confession concerning a plot engaged in by Caillaux, Count von Luxburg, former German Minister to Argentina, and himself to disrupt the Entente Alliance and bring about a new war in which the Teutonic allies, with France, Italy, and Spain, would be arrayed against Great Britain and Russia.

The prosecutor gave a detailed biography of Minotto and traced his relations with Baron von Seebeck, son of a German officer, and Hugo Schmidt, Western United States agent of the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, both of whom are interned in the United States.

Conversations of Caillaux while in Italy also were freely gone into by the prosecutor. Caillaux was quoted as having said in Italy that the war could not last until the Autumn of 1917 owing to France's lack of raw material for the manufacture of munitions and because of revolution in Algeria and Senegal.

TO GIVE OUT MINOTTO STORY

Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker, who investigated the ramifications of the Caillaux case in this country and South America, announced yesterday that as soon as the deposition made by Count James Minotto is offered in evidence by the French Government at the Caillaux trial in Paris, the full text will be made public here. It consists of many pages, and the statements regarding the activities of Caillaux in Buenos Aires are corroborated by the testimony of Americans and depositions obtained in the Argentine capital.

Mr. Becker said that Minotto told of carrying oral messages between Count Luxburg and Caillaux, the messages relating to the alleged conspiracy to restore Caillaux to power in France, disrupt the Entente alliance, and align France with Germany and the latter's allies in a new war against Russia and England.

When he met Luxburg in Buenos Aires in 1915 Minotto, Mr. Becker added, was there as a representative of the Guaranty Trust Company of this city. He said there is no evidence to show that Minotto had gone to South America with beforehand intention of acting as the go-between for Caillaux and Luxburg.

The investigation of the secret plans said to have been made by Germany to retain a trade foothold in this country, which is being directed by Mr. Becker, has begun. It was at first expected that a series of public hearings would be held. It is now understood that the witnesses will be examined privately and the facts made public in statements by Mr. Becker.

The investigation will have the widest possible scope and will include German plans for maintaining her before-the-war interests and influence in the metal, steamship, wool, chemical, and other industries. Scores of witnesses are to be examined and a great mass of canceled checks and other evidence, all of German origin, will figure in the investigation.

MALONE BACK IN THE FOLD.

Ex-Collector Says the Women Will Support Wilson, Too.

Dudley Field Malone, ex-Collector of the Port, who deserted the Democratic Party and supported Morris Hillquit in the last Mayoralty campaign and who since then has given most of his time to woman suffragist propaganda, is back in the Democratic camp again, supporting the Democratic State ticket and making speeches in support of the President's appeal. In a letter written to Alfred E. Smith Mr. Malone said:

"The great issue before mankind is: Shall a democratic and permanent peace, the very object of the war, be established upon the program of President Wilson and confirmed by a Senate supporting him, or shall secret diplomacy, the schemes of international profiteers, the strife of tariff rates and counsels of vengeance and hatred again control the discussions of the peace table! Ex-President Roosevelt and Senator Lodge have dragged this momentous issue into the hot attack of partisan politics.

"When Senator Lodge recently attacked President Wilson's diplomacy, even before the President had received the German note, and when Mr. Roosevelt urged the defeat of the fourteen diplomatic points of the President's program which have the ardent support of England, France, Belgium and Italy, then these Republican leaders, by threatening the united support of America compelled President Wilson to appeal to his fellow-countrymen to support him and his party at the coming election. Were Mr. Roosevelt or Senator Lodge or Mr. Taft or Mr. Hughes in the White House today and the acknowledged liberal leader of the world, as is President Wilson, I would vote the Republican ticket from top to bottom, State and national, to support our President in these critical days.

"Some politicians are saying that the new voters, the women, are going to vote en masse for the Republican Party. From my long service in the battle for woman suffrage I do not believe that women are going to be herded into any party by either men or women politicians. The women of New York will cast their first vote not as women but as thoughtful independent citizens. For no one realizes more completely than the women of the nation that the President has conducted the great war with the most thoughtful care of our boys abroad and, by his appointment of General Pershing, with brilliant military success. And American women also know that, while the war will be fought until militarism is destroyed and permanent peace assured, yet President Wilson will not sacrifice the life of a single soldier or sailor after these democratic objects are obtained. If the President were a candidate at this election, I am confident the great majority of women would warmly support him, and the only way they can vote for him now is by voting for the Democratic Party in the State and for a Democratic majority in Congress."

LODGE BACKS NEWBERRY.

Massachusetts Senator Denounces Ford in Letter Sent to Detroit.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—Unqualified indorsement of Truman H. Newberry, Republican candidate for the Senate, is contained in a letter from Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, given out today at Newberry headquarters.

"The Senatorial election in Michigan, it seems to me, is the most important single election in the United States," says the letter. "Mr. Newberry is a man of high character and distinguished public servant. Opposed to him is Mr. Henry Ford, who belongs to no political party, who has been nominated at the request of the President, and whose only claim is that if elected to the Senate he would vote blindly in obedience to the President's direction. He has been notorious throughout the country as an advocate of peace at any price. The contemptuous remarks he has made about the flag of the United States are known from one end of the land to the other. The exemption of his son from military service has shown his utter indifference to the highest patriotism."

NEWBERRY CASE DROPPED.

The Federal Grand Jury, according to a report at the Federal Building yesterday, has dropped its investigation of the primary campaign fund raised by Michigan Republicans to nominate Lieut.-Commander Truman H. Newberry, U. S. N., for the United States Senate over Henry Ford. It was said that after considering much evidence the jury was not convinced that there was enough to warrant an indictment. Special United States Attorney S. R. Rush, who came here from Washington to conduct the investigation, returned there yesterday.

Immediately after his departure Assistant United States Attorney Ben Matthews requested Judge Mayer to extend the sessions of the Grand Jury for one week beyond Nov. 4, when the body ordinarily would have been discharged. He said he wished to present other matters than those relating to the Newberry inquiry before the jurors. Before leaving for Washington Prosecutor Rush would not say whether the investigation was off. He said his position prevented him from making any comments.

COPELAND SATISFIED BY INFLUENZA TOUR

NURSES ASK FOR MORE PAY

Many Cases in Private Homes Are Being Cared For by Various Charitable Organizations.

After a personal tour of inspection of the east side, from Chrystie Street House to the Bronx Bureau of Health, Health Commissioner Copeland said yesterday when he returned to his desk that every single thing he had seen and all he had heard only confirmed his optimism.

He said this in the face of the fact that figures for yesterday show an increase in influenza, a total, the health authorities say, swelled by deaths and new cases that should have been reported on Saturday and Sunday. In the period for twenty-four hours ending at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, 4,073 new cases were reported, an increase of 1,261 over the preceding twenty-four hours. There was also an increase of 217 in pneumonia cases.

The Commissioner's tour of inspection started from Hunter College, Sixty-eighth Street and Lexington Avenue. He was accompanied by Dr. Margaret Wilson, and the automobile was loaded down with garments of all sorts, including nightdresses, wrappers, sheets, and pillow cases, all made by the students of Hunter College. Dr. Copeland's visits to the various community centres and district headquarters confirmed the report made by Dr. Lee K. Frankel, Chairman of the Emergency Advisory Committee, that there had been a decrease in the last few days in the number of influenza cases reported at the centres.

Many Serious Pneumonia Cases.

"I have been very much impressed with what I saw on my trip," said the Commissioner. "I saw groups of women who have been working heroically night and day without let-up, and I have seen homes in which several members of the family are ill, and homes that death has visited. I found that among the Italians dozens of expectant mothers had died.

"It was gratifying to me to find that no new cases are being reported and to learn from the workers that within the past forty-eight hours there has been a falling off in reports of new cases, and this in districts where the disease has been busy. I found, however, that the workers have under care many serious cases of pneumonia and when it is considered that the death rate from pneumonia is about 50 per cent., one can realize that there will be many deaths still from this cause."

In speaking of his tour, Dr. Copeland said he now believed that doctors were reporting their cases more promptly than at any time since the epidemic began and this prompt reporting is reflected in the total of new cases in the last twenty-four hours. He again urged the necessity for reporting cases promptly, so that departmental care can be provided and steps taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

He said also that his trip had shown him there was still need for nurses. The appeal for business men and women volunteers who were willing to sacrifice part of their time at night relieving overworked nurses brought scores of volunteers into the temporary service of the Department.

The regular nurses of the Health Department believe they are poorly paid and they have appealed to Dr. Copeland for more money. In sixteen years, they say, they have had a raise of $60 a year. They will, on Jan. 1, next, receive a $160 raise already authorized. A majority of these women get $960, some get $1,020 and others get $1,140.

"The nurses had a representative before the Board of Estimate to plead for an increase in pay for them," said Dr. Copeland. "I said then that they ought to get more pay and this is one of the things I will take up in my report. I will ask more pay for them."

Reports of New Cases.

New cases of influenza and pneumonia and deaths from these causes reported yesterday were distributed thus:

	New Cases.		Deaths.
	Inf.	Pneu.	Inf.	Pneu.
Manhattan	1,340	241	173	1[illegible]
Bronx	986	103	47	4
Brooklyn	1,247	253	154	12[illegible]
Richmond	167	22	5	3
Queens	833	83	46	1[illegible]
Totals	4,073	702	425	350

Dr. Copeland's eight-year-old son is ill with influenza. He was a student at the Ethical Culture School, in Central Park West. Dr. Copeland said that ten days ago the school, which contained about 1,200 pupils, was closed, not because there was influenza in the school, but because of fear of it. Dr. Copeland said as soon as he found it out he protested and was told that parents were frightened and teachers disturbed because of the epidemic. He contended that his son's case was evidence that children are better off in school, under supervision, than playing about in the streets.

A report received by the Commissioner yesterday showed that there are 4,114 cases under care in the homes in Manhattan and the Bronx. These cases are being cared for as follows:

ARMOUR GAVE $5,000 TO REPUBLICAN FUND

NEWBERRY SPENT NOTHING

Ford Likewise Reports No Expenditures—$19,000 Placed In Calder's Hands.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Republican National Committee's detailed report on pre-election expenses filed tonight with the Clerk of the House of Representatives showed receipts of $492,345 and expenditures of $469,096, most of which was sent to aid in the various State campaigns. The Senatorial and Congressional National Campaign Committees received $35,000 each.

The largest contributions were $5,000 each by J. Ogden Armour and J. H. Taylor of Chicago and Alfred J. Sweet of Auburn, Me. The other contributions ranged down to $50. James A. Patten, Chicago, gave $3,500; Will H. Crocker, San Francisco, $3,000; C. M. Warner, New York, $2,500; E. J. Buffington, Chicago, $2,000; Samuel P. Colt, New York, $1,500; Mrs. L. W. James of Baltimore gave $3,000 and Ethel Crocker of San Francisco $1,000.

Money sent into the States was denoted in the report as "cash advance," and went to the following: A. J. Sweet, Maine, $5,000; John W. Hart, Idaho National Committeeman, $11,000; T. A. Marlow, Montana National Committeeman, $16,000; W. C. Cook, South Dakota National Committeeman, $5,000; A. T. Hert, Kentucky National Committeeman, $21,000; Jacob L. Babler, Missouri National Committeeman, $22,500; H. G. Humphries, Nevada National Committeeman, $5,500; John M. Morehead, Senatorial candidate in North Carolina, $3,500; C. A. Spiess, New Mexico National Committeeman, $11,000; Senator William M. Calder, New York, $19,000; John W. Blodgett, Michigan, $1,000; Maurice McKenzie, New York, $15,000; Patrick Sullivan, Wyoming, $5,000; Frank L. Smith, Illinois, $25,000.

Wide variations in campaign financing are shown in the individual statements already filed. In the Southern States, where Democratic nomination is equivalent to election, candidates reported their principal expenditures in the primaries and nothing spent since in many instances.

In the Northern and Western States several candidates, including Henry Ford, the Democratic Senatorial candidate in Michigan; Truman H. Newberry, his Republican opponent; Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, Republican, and Senator Nelson of Minnesota, Republican, have filed reports that they personally have received and spent nothing.

Mr. Ford's pre-election report states that he has "not received or expended any sum of money or other thing of value for or in connection with the said election," and has made no promises or pledges of any character. The "Non-Partisan Ford for Senator Club," Mr. Ford states, has received $581 and spent $335. His opponent, Mr. Newberry, states that he has not given, contributed, expended, received, used, or promised any money or thing of value, nor authorized their receipt with his knowledge or consent.

Among the other candidates who report having spent nothing are:

Chairman Ferris of the Democratic Committee says he has spent $75, while Democratic Leader Kitchen reports the expenditure of a like sum. Speaker Clark of Missouri has spent $450.

O'LEARY WILL BE EXAMINED

The Federal authorities will probably take some action today to ascertain the exact physical condition of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, whose trial for conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the draft law was stopped last week following the receipt of a report that the prisoner was ill and probably suffering from Spanish influenza. For more than a week O'Leary has been in Bellevue Hospital and to date he has refused to permit doctors representing the Government to examine him.

Dr. Henry Ewing Hale, acting under instructions from the Federal authorities, went to Bellevue to examine O'Leary yesterday, but O'Leary refused to be examined. A second physician who went at the request of Judge Cushman of the Federal Court, before whom O'Leary is to be tried, was also unable to examine the prisoner. Acting on the supposition that O'Leary will be able to appear for trial, a new panel of 250 jurors was ordered yesterday to report to Judge Cushman. One-third of the jurors called when the case started a week ago failed to report. Judge Cushman has ordered them to show cause before him tomorrow.

In one year the infirmary treated more than 700 mothers and new-born babies. Its dispensary cared for 28,741 sick women in 1917.

The numberless calls on physicians during the influenza epidemic have thrown on the infirmary a great burden of service.

FUNERAL OF I. N. HOFFMANN.

The funeral of Isaac Newton Hoffmann of the financial staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES took place yesterday afternoon. The body was taken from the chapel at 120 East 116th Street to Washington Cemetery, where services were held by Rabbi Nathan Krass of the Central Synagogue, Fifth-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue. In a brief address at the services Dr. Krass said:

"Mr. Hoffmann's life was as truly sacrificed for love of country as is that of the soldier on the battlefield. Unable to go to the front because of the duty laid upon him by the care of his brother's family, he devoted mind and body, with no thought of self, to the problem of helping the war. His work for the Fourth Liberty Loan was final and fatal for him. Suffering from influenza throughout the three weeks of the drive, he worked day and night in reporting its progress, despite the warnings of his colleagues and the pleadings of his family to take a rest. Only when the returns were in and the loan had proved a success did he consent to go to bed. In the delirium which followed he talked of nothing but the loan. His last request was for the final figures. A soldier on the home front, he gave up his life."

At the funeral were Mr. Hoffmann's brother Jacob and his sister Rebecca. Another brother, Abraham, and a sister, Therese, are seriously ill and could not attend. In Moscow, where they have been since the beginning of the war, are his mother, his sister Jane, and a married sister, Mrs. H. Gruet.

BE FRANK PROVES FLEET AT A MILE

PASSING SHOWER IN VAN

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 29.—There was quantity as well as quality in the card presented by the Maryland State Fair Association this afternoon, eight well filled races being decided, including two stake events. Unfortunately the star numbers on the program lost considerable interest because of the withdrawal of Edward B. McLean's The Porter from the Glendale Liberty Handicap and of Billy Kelly from the Potomac Handicap for two-year-olds.

It was scarcely expected that Commander Ross's fleet gelding would go to the post after his defeat by Eternal yesterday, as he was called on to travel a mile route and give a lot of weight to several good youngsters. That he would have had his work cut out was proved by the handy manner in which the Calumet Stable's Be Frank carried 108 pounds and nicely rated by Jockey Ensor turned the mile in the good time of 1:39 1-5. The well furnished son of Sir John Johnson appeared to be not at all disconcerted by the increase of the distance from that usually negotiated by juveniles. He moved smoothly and had little difficulty in coming away from A. H. Morris's Translate in the stretch.

Another two-year-old was in the limelight in the Glendale Liberty Bond Handicap, an all-aged event. J. H. Rosseter's Passing Shower was believed to have little chance against the smart sprinters opposed to her in this race at six furlongs, but under the light weight of 98 pounds the filly went to the front early and managed to stave off the challenge of J. W. Parrish's five-year-old Bulse.

There was considerable interest in the steeplechase, which was limited to three-year-olds and was looked on as a trial event for the Elkridge Stake to be run at Pimlico. Most of the competitors were making their début through the field, but all had been well schooled. Elysian, owned by Mrs. T. J. Donohue, had the advantage of having raced at Aqueduct in a similar event and was well handled by Med Henderson. He scored rather an easy victory over J. A. Murphy's Water Toast, which ran over the obstacles for the first time and is likely to improve.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For 2-year-olds, claiming; six furlongs. Manoeuvre, 110 pounds, (L. Ensor,) $12.80, $11.10, and $5.40, won; Dainty Lady, 105, (G. WILLARD WON'T BOX HERE.

Champion Engaged for Two Bouts for Sports Fund in Texas.

Jess Willard, world's heavyweight boxing champion, does not intend to journey to this city for the purpose of boxing for the United War Work Campaign Fund, according to a telegram made public yesterday by Chairman James W. Coffroth of the National Boxing Committee.

Willard's telegram came from Wichita Falls, Texas, where the title holder is inspecting some of his oil holdings. It was in answer to a wire Chairman Coffroth dispatched to him several days ago. In this message Coffroth submitted the names of some likely and formidable rivals for Willard, should he agre to box in this city for the fund. Among those suggested were Jack Dempsey, Fred Fulton, Billy Miske, Battling Levinsky, Willie Meehan, and Jim Coffey. Willard's reply to this message follows:

Just returned to Wichita Falls, where your wire awaited me. Will be unable to come to New York. Have promised committee this State to put on at least two shows. Committee here will make arrangements for boxing partner.

Chairman Coffroth stated that he would not accept Willard's refusal as final. The Western promoter plans sending another telegram to the heavyweight champion in an effort to convince Willard that the greatest financial returns can be reaped by a bout in New York in which he is one of the principals.

UNCLE SAM TO SHOW HORSE

Noted Son of Adam Will Be Seen in Exhibition at Garden.

Delayed in transmission from Washington, the entry of the thoroughbred stallion Adams Express, owned by the United States Government, was received yesterday by the National Horse Show Association for the annual exhibition, which opens on Nov. 11 at Madison Square Garden with the entire gross receipts to go to the American Red Cross. This is the first time the Federal Government has ever appeared as an exhibitor at the Horse Show, and the purpose is to afford an object lesson in the type of horses suitable for improving the cavalry stock of the country.

Adams Express is a superb chestnut, standing 16.1 hands high, and is regarded as the most perfect specimen of the thoroughbred type in any of the Government remount stations or stud farms in the United States. He is a son of the celebrated French horse Adam, imported by a syndicate of American breeders several years ago at a cost of $125,000. Adams Express was a superior race horse, and he is highly prized as a sire by army officers of the Remount Service.

In the ring against Adams Express at the Garden will be the nine-year-old stallion Bulgaria, also a son of Adam, entered by W. D. Cleland; Oyama, by Commando, entered by Troop K of the New York State Guard, and J. Marc Willet's Uncas Chief, by Ben Strome, that won the first prize last year. The stallions are to be judged by R. Lawrence Smith on their appearance and suitability for improving the breed of horses for the army and general use.

CUBAN VICTOR OVER JANOWSKI AT CHESS

The centre of attraction in the sixth round of the masters' tourney at the Manhattan Chess Club, played yesterday afternoon and evening, was the board on which the Cuban champion, Capablanca, was engaged against the French champion, Janowski. After thirty moves the Cuban expert added another victory to his score.

The game, opened by the Cuban, was a queen's gambit declined, and after the usual opening moves, Janowski was staggered by his adversary's thirteenth move. It was a very pretty move with a knight. Having advanced his king's bishop's pawn to its fourth, Janowski's pawn position became rather disorganized in consequence of Capablanca's knight move. Seven moves later Capablanca made another startling move with the other knight, which netted him a pawn, and at his twenty-eight turn he brought his queen into play, Janowski's position fell like a house of cards, and two moves later he resigned.

Meanwhile, the Canadian champion, Morrison, had successfully conducted a Ruy Lopez against the United States champion, Marshall, so much so that he succeeded in winning a pawn. This advantage, however, was somewhat neutralized by Marshall, who had brought his king prominently on the board. In this interesting position the game stood adjourned.

Kostich relied upon the Philidor defense in his game against Black. The latter, however, by very energetic play escaped from a seemingly difficult position. Later on Kostich renewed the attack, and after four hours of play his position looked rather promising, while Black thought that he could use the exchange, thereby equalizing matters.

Taberski Easily Defeats Downs.

Frank Taberski, pocket billiards champion, defeated William Downs in an exhibition match last night at Doyle's Academy by a score of 100 to 31. Taberski had a high run of 28. The match was promoted for the purpose of raising funds for the Coin Box Fund, devoted to supplying billiard paraphernalia to the various clubs in the city utilized by soldiers and sailors on furlough. The sum of $50 was realized.

FOOTBALL BY SEARCHLIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 29.—A little planning has enabled the midshipmen to make use of the half hour at the end of their practice period which, since the return to the old system of time, would be unavailable for practice. The squad has been moved to a field where it comes under the sweep of a powerful searchlight of the Reina Mercedes, the station ship. With the ball painted white no difficulty is had in continuing the practice.

In addition to Captain Ingram, Butler, one of the stars of the backfield, who has been suffering with a lame knee, was in practice this afternoon. Ewen, regular right end, who has lumbago, is better and will put on his uniform tomorrow. On the other hand, Butler, who was the veteran of the backfield Saturday, has hurt his foot and must rest a few days. Ingram may not be in condition to play against the Philadelphia marines on Saturday.

W. AND J. MAY PLAY HERE.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Oct. 29.—West Virginia University today canceled the game scheduled with Washington and Jefferson for Thanksgiving Day at Fairmont, W. Va. The cancellation came in a long distance telephone conversation, manager H. A. Stansbury of West Virginia had with Graduate Manager R. M. Murphy of W. and J. Stansbury said that the rules laid down for military work at the institution left no period for practice and that it would be impossible to place a team in the field.

Mr. Murphy said today that he would endeavor to fill the date with an army camp team. He has applications from several of the leading camp elevens for the game. Sol Metzger, athletic director at Camp Dix, and former W. and J. Coach, it is learned, will try arrange if possible a game between the Dix team and W. and J. to be played in the metropolitan district or some other big centre.

SHAW MAY BE LOST TO COLUMBIA TEAM

Star Half Back Likely to be Called for Aviation Practice Within a Week.

Charley Shaw, star half back of the Columbia S. A. T. C. 'Varsity football eleven, may be lost to the team within a week, according to a report he received yesterday. Snaw was one of the four football regulars recommended to the infantry officers' training school at Camp Lee, but he applied for a transfer to aviation. He was told yesterday by Dean Hawkes that his application had been acted upon favorably by the War Department, and that he had been assigned to the Aviation Corps for instruction. His orders to leave the Columbia post are expected within a few days, although it is believed that he will be available to play against Amherst on Saturday.

Shaw's going will deprive the Columbia back field of one of its most brilliant players, and one who could be counted upon to gain ground whenever the occasion demanded. Kraus, Robson, and Parks, the three other football men who were recommended for training at officers' camps, have not received word as to when they may be expected to leave, but it was said yesterday that they probably would not be called until the middle of next month.

All the cripples on the squad reported for practice yesterday, with the exception of Canapery, who is still on leave because of sickness, although he is ex-Charley Brickley's team last week. Houlahan, the big half back, who was out of the game against Camp Merritt, got into the practice, and so did Memmott, whose shoulder was supposed to have been broken in the practice scrimmage with Charley Brickley's team last week. Houlahan was in the 'Varsity back field in Zychlinski's place.

Practice continued until long after dark, to the accompaniment of cheers and songs by the entire post, which had early drill, and was then marshaled in the bleachers for singing and cheering practice.

Tom Thorp was assigned regularly to coach the line men, and had both the 'Varsity and second team forwards at work with the charging machine for almost an hour. Five new candidates, among them Howard, who played at Horace Mann School last year, reported.

GREAT RUN BY GREENLEAF.

Ralph Greenleaf, the young Monmouth (Ill.) pocket billiards player, showed improved form yesterday in the two blocks of his 1,200-point match with John Layton at Daly's Broadway Academy, and advanced to the lead in the total score. Greenleaf took both afternoon and evening blocks, bringing his count for the two days of play up to 400, while Layton's total is 372.

In the evening Greenleaf made what is said to be a new record high run for New York City at this game. In his fifth turn at the table the youthful Westerner corraled a total of 96 points before missing. This run gave Greenleaf the lead in the play to date. He took the contest by a score of 134 to 72, requiring eight innings to complete his string. He ran 14 in his second inning, and followed this with 15 in his third. Then came his record run in the fifth frame, and to this he added 9 more points in his last turn at the table. Layton had a high run of 21.

In the afternoon Greenleaf was victorious by a count of 114 to 100 in nine innings. The young Westerner, although closely pressed by Layton, finished his 100 points in eight innings, and in the ninth made 14 more before Layton made his 100. Greenleaf had a high run of 34 and Layton one of 28.

Assurances have been received, the announcement stated, that this sanction would be given.

It was also announced that should Cornell decide not to play Pennsylvania on Thanksgiving Day the date would be given to Dartmouth, which was scheduled to meet the Quakers here on Nov. 9.

Hamilton to Play Marquand Today.

We suppose that if the Forefathers of Miles Standish's time were dashing up and down the rockbound coast to-day, they'd be just as hard on their clothes as they were in 1620!

Well, at least they would have the satisfaction of learning that in all the intervening centuries, the world even now knows no better wools than those which still come from the seat of the woolen industry of those early days—County Norfolk, England.

We use them in our suits of *"Forefathers' Cloth"—a cloth which is as faithful a reproduction of ye cloth of ye olden tyme as modern spinning, weaving and dyeing can produce. Very durable.

Edwin Booth was smooth-shaven

THE admirable art of the great actor whose "Hamlet" was America's proud possession for so many years was heightened in no small degree by his intellectual cast of face. And that fine, thoughtful face Booth always kept clean-shaven. In his life work as an actor, his razor was a vitally necessary implement whose time-tested design gave perfect balance—and whose long, keen blade saved time—a silent character in the drama that nightly brought pleasure to so many, and one whose part was always faithfully played. Today, as in Booth's time, this razor's general design still stands unequalled—improved only by the added safety and convenience of the guarded

FOUR FUNDS FOR Y. W. C. A.

Widow Is Made Trustee of $900,000 Fund for Mr. Stokes's Brothers and Other Persons.

RIDGEFIELD, Conn., Oct. 29.—Numerous societies and benevolences benefit by the will of James Stokes, millionaire philanthropist, of New York and Ridgefield, which was filed in the Probate Court here today. Mr. Stokes died here on Oct. 4. His widow, Mrs. Florence Chatfield Stokes, and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York are made executors and trustees.

To his widow he bequeathed all his personal belongings, furniture, and automobiles, the town house at 58 Park Avenue, New York, and all previous gifts to her are confirmed. She is also made trustee of a $900,000 fund to be used for the benefit of his brothers, Thomas and William, and his sister, Olivia. The sum of $50,000 is set aside for use by the widow for relatives, friends, and former servants. A like sum is named, the income of which is to go to his brother Thomas, and each brother and sister is to receive $2,000 to purchase some remembrance of Mr. Stokes. To each niece and nephew $1,000 is left for the same purpose.

Cousins are to receive bequests of $10,000 and $15,000. To John R. Mott and Franklin Gaylord, who carried on charitable work for Mr. Stokes abroad, $10,000 and $15,000 are bequeathed, respectively; $10,000 to his secretary, S. P. 1,000 LIBERTY MOTORS BEING MADE WEEKLY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Production of American aircraft has now reached a state where it is virtually limited only by the facilities for transporting the airplanes to France. The production of Liberty motors during October reached 1,000 a week—a total which had not been expected before December.

Latest compilations show that since June 1 about 2,500 fighting airplanes of all kinds have been shipped to the American forces in France. None of the belligerents at any time since the beginning of the war has had more than 3,500 airplanes in service. The 2,500 airplanes shipped included nearly 150 heavy bombers.

Reports from all production centres show the totals rapidly growing. The American forces have been moving so rapidly in recent weeks that it has been necessary to give up some transportation space which was intended for airplanes to other material, but the full movement of aircraft is expected to be in swing again in a few weeks. Tonight's reports showed that more airplanes were now awaiting shipment than could be loaded on vessels.

Captain R. E. Lee Back, Wounded.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 29.—Captain Robert E. Lee, grandson of the Confederate leader, arrived at Camp Grant from France today to act as an instructor. He served with the 33d (Wildcat) Division until wounded.

MAY FORFEIT CONTRACT.

The Public Service Commission will hold a public hearing at 10 o'clock this morning to determine if steps shall be taken looking to the forfeiture of the contract of the Inter-Continental Construction Corporation for the construction of the Interborough four-track subway line in Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, from the Plaza to New York Avenue. This section at the beginning of October was about 90 per cent. completed and is holding back the work on the adjoining sections. The commission may take over the contract and finish it with its own forces or let a new contract.

The Inter-Continental Construction Corporation asserts that it is one of the heaviest losers on its work, as a result of war conditions. The contract, delivered on June 15, 1915, provided that the work was to be completed by April, 1917. The price was $2,744,263.

Shortage of Felt Machinery.

In a new ruling by the War Industries Board, orders have been issued which may affect the use of felt in the piano trade and other industries using felt material. It is understood, however, that piano manufacturers have a good supply in stock for present uses. Action on this matter was taken following an announcement that the Government intends to make a new gas mask that requires a large amount of felt. From reports received there is not any apparent shortage of felt or of materials used in its manufacture. There is, however, a great shortage of felt-producing machinery. In fact, according to the Felt Section of the War Industries Board, the Government requirements for felt are far in excess of the mill capacity of the country.

Disagree Over Shoe Exports.

British importers of American footwear are complaining about shipments of certain boots and shoes destined for trade in the United Kingdom. Through an agreement between the War Trade Board of the United States and the British Government, footwear for this trade made or put in process prior to Feb. 23, 1917, was to be shipped by the American manufacturers. However, when the quantity of goods filling this condition was totaled it was found that there was a difference of 260,000 pairs between the list compiled by the American Chamber of Commerce in London, based on figures supplied by British importers, and that made up by the War Trade Board on the strength of reports received from manufacturers in this country. The missing 260,000 pairs are the cause of the trouble.

Fixes Price for Wool Grease.

Black Furs Are Selling.

Despite the present unseasonable weather, a demand for black and other dark furs at retail is reported here which is striking back to the manufacturing trade in the shape of duplicate orders. Much of the increased business being done on black furs is attributed to the many deaths resulting from the influenza plague. A special run on Hudson seal garments is told of despite the sharply increased cost of these goods this season.

Bagmakers Conserve Metals.

Several methods of conserving leather and metals are being made use of by local manufacturers of fancy handbags. In one case frames of three-ply veneered wood are used. These frames are handillumined in ancient Aztec designs. Very tiny beads are "sanded" over the paint while it is wet, after which the frames are put through a baking process that makes the designs permanent. The effect is novel. The same concern is also using a shell frame and handle that is all in one piece. Its unique construction reduces the possibility of breakage to a minimum.

Gray Goods Sales Limited.

Limited buying of printcloths, notably 39-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 64-60s, for delivery through the first quarter of next year, was reported here yesterday, and for shipment in the last two months of 1918 sales were made on the latter construction, as well as 38½-inch 64-56s and 60-48s. In the sheetings there was some trading in light goods, such as 5.50s and 6.15s, at full prices for November-December delivery. Second hands let out more sateens during the day. Fine-yarn cloths continue weak in price, but neglected.

Skirt Men on Spring Goods.

Never very busy selling goods at this time of the year, manufacturers of separate skirts are marking time and giving the bulk of their attention to turning out Spring lines. Duplicating by retailers, while light, is said to be as good as usual for the end of October, in spite of the epidemic, and special orders show no material dropping off. One of the features of the business that is passing just now is the call for black skirts. Whether this is due to the more or less general mourning or to the season's vogue for dark garments is not clear.

Demand for Willow Furniture.

Although the season for willow furniture usually opens about the middle of January, it appears that this year has been an open season for this class of merchandise. Reports indicate that business is exceptionally good, although there has been a decided increase in the price of the finished product. Some of the firms are working almost entirely on Government orders. The Y. M. C. A. recently placed large contracts for this kind of furniture for use in its buildings. The influenza epidemic has caused considerable trouble in the factories during the last few weeks, but at present conditions are becoming more settled.

Conference on Color Situation.

At a meeting and luncheon of the Textile Color Card Association held in the banquet hall of the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon, Frederick Bode, President of the association, told those present that the objects sought were color standardization and stabilization, the introduction of seasonal tendencies, and general color information. With these objects in mind, a standard color card was created first, and subsequently seasonal cards were introduced, and from time to time objective have been issued giving color information. During the course of the meeting the new color card for the season of 1919 was shown.

INVESTMENT OUTLOOK

Statistical authorities agree that unless there should be entirely unlooked for developments in the war situation, the present bond market affords investors the opportunity of a generation, and that whether peace comes within the next few weeks or months, the trend of prices should be upward.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Liquidation continued on the Stock Exchange yesterday in a smaller and much more restrained market. After the first pressure of selling had been met prices improved, and it was in the middle of the afternoon that the best quotations of the day were recorded in many instances. This improvement was quickly followed, however, by fresh selling in the issues in which there had been very active speculation and the decline in these shares had a sobering effect on the list as a whole.

The improvement in international issues and the further decline in exchange indicated pretty clearly that the continued reaction in the stock market was not due to any new estimate of the significance of the news bearing on the world struggle. The direct explanation of the sharp reduction in the volume of trading, and also of the further setback in prices, lay in the measures which were being carried out to prevent the unnecessary use of credit in speculative operations. In calling upon a number of brokerage concerns to reduce their loans to the level of Sept. 6, (when the Money Committee began the measures which it has lately been resorting to to direct the course of credit operations,) the financial authorities are making it plain that the credit conservation program is to be carried out along very definite lines.

It is to be presumed that those responsible for the extension of credit have a twofold purpose. They desire on one hand to prevent credit being used in a way in which it would contribute nothing to the supreme national effort, but they also, most probably, desire to remove from temptation those who might be prompted to place their funds at the disposal of speculation instead of devoting them to the important purposes of the times, foremost among which is the meeting of the nation's financial war requirements. The care with which the situation is being safeguarded is suggested in another but collateral direction in the instructions issued yesterday by the Stock Exchange to houses which have been dealing in Mexican Petroleum to report their transactions to the Stock Exchange.

It is not because credit is scarce that it is necessary to safeguard it, but because speculation must needs be put in the background at a time when all the resources of the country, great as they manifestly are, should be first of all placed at the disposal of the nation itself. An interesting side light on the supply of credit was provided yesterday in the news that the recent offering of American Tobacco notes had been subscribed to a total of seven or eight times the amount of the issue.

The Steel Corporation's quarterly statement showing a large reduction in the earnings compared with the previous quarter and the decision of the Directors to reduce from 3 to 2 per cent. the extra dividend which it has been the recent practice of the company to pay in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 1¾ per cent., bore out the prediction made in some quarters that, owing to increased taxes and to other causes, the Steel Corporation would have to do a little less well by its stockholders than it had been doing of late. However, the ability of the Steel Corporation to set aside in a single quarter more than $100,000,000 for taxes and yet have a surplus left over and above an extra dividend of 2 per cent., is eloquent of the prosperity which still prevails in the steel industry.

Lower Interest on Farm Loan Bonds

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Farm loan bonds in the future will bear only 4½ per cent. interest instead of 5 per cent., carried by the last block of more than $50,000,000 offered last May, it was stated today. Since these bonds, to be issued soon, will be absorbed entirely by the Treasury, the reduction will have little practical effect on the market.

ASK BROKERS TO CUT LOANS

Money Committee Will Forbid Credit for Nonessential Trading.

Several Stock Exchange firms yesterday were asked to materially reduce their loans. This caused a considerable amount of bad feeling among the brokers of whom the request was made. It was asesrted by members of some of these firms that the Money Committee had permitted loans to be shifted from one house to another, but had not compelled the firms taking the loans to liquidate any of the holdings they had before the shift was made.

The request stood, however, in spite of the protests, and it will be made of other firms, or of the same ones, whenever in the opinion of the Money Committee the general situation requires it. Furthermore, it was said yesterday, that there would be no credit, to say nothing of the extension thereof, for what is regarded as nonessential speculation.

The Money Committee made another ruling yesterday which caused much comment. Hereafter persons from out of town trading in New York must get their financing done in their home town. In other words, every town must finance its own speculators, as one broker put it. If a man from Chicago finds himself in New York and wants to trade in the stock market his credit must come from his Chicago bank or broker. New York brokers cannot borrow here to carry the Chicago man's stocks.

AMERICAN METALS CO. PLANS

A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, has agreed to a general plan for the reorganization of the American Metals Company, which was seized by his agents several months ago. This was announced last evening by one of the New York men interested in the reorganization, and he added:

"This statement must not be misunderstood or misconstrued. Only a most general plan has been agreed to, with none of the details worked out. The plan must be completed, however, by Nov. 22, or it must fail. Therefore, I would say that some definite announcement would be made in a few days, perhaps a week, perhaps longer."

EXTEND PROFITS TAX TO PARTNERSHIPS

BILL IS NEAR COMPLETION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Senate Finance Committee tentatively adopted today a schedule of war excess profits tax, in the $8,000,000,000 War Revenue bill, to apply to individuals and partnerships, which, under the bill as it was passed by the House, were subject only to the income tax. It was explained that this was done to eliminate an obvious discrimination in favor of partnerships and individuals engaged in active business and as against corporations.

Under the method evolved by the Finance Committee, individuals and partnerships would pay the same proportion of tax that the corporations must pay, except that their income tax would be deducted. The committee, in writing the new tax into the bill, provided that individuals and corporations must pay a sum equal to 12 per cent. of the amount by which the net income exceeds $2,000, and, besides that, they are subject to the various steps of tax embraced in the excess profits section already in the bill. The bill now provides these different taxes for corporations, which now will apply to individuals and partnerships:

1. Thirty per cent. of the net income in excess of the excess profits deduction of 8 per cent. of the invested capital.

2. Sixty per cent. of the net income in excess of 20 per cent. of the invested capital.

3. The amount by which 80 per cent. of the net income in excess of the war profits credit or deduction exceeds the amount of tax computed under the two brackets, or paragraphs, quoted above.

Committee Explains the Change.

The new tax, it is explained, will not apply to individuals or partnerships engaged in rendering professional services. Corporations so engaged already have been exempted. In announcing the tentative decision to apply the tax, the Finance Committee, through one of its experts, Dr. Adams, explained it as follows:

"The discussion of the committee turned on the fact that under the House bill there was a very considerable discrimination against the corporate form of business organization, arising from the fact that corporations were made subject to income and war excess profits taxes, while individuals and partnerships were subject only to income taxes. In order to remove this discrimination, partnerships and individuals engaged in active business with an invested capital were made subject to war excess profits tax. Individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in rendering personal service were exempt from the war excess profits, but corporations so exempt will be required to pay income tax on the same basis as individuals and partnerships, i. e., they will be required to include in their taxable income full distributive shares of the net income of the corporations for the taxable year whether actually distributed or not.

"In order to put the partnership and individual, so far as possible, upon exactly the same basis, the rate schedule previously adopted was amended by the addition of a fourth bracket applicable only to individuals and partnerships, which adds to the ordinary war excess profits tax a sum equal to 12 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds the sum of (a) $2,000 and (b) the amount of the tax computed under the first, second, and third brackets. The excess profits tax of individuals and partnerships will include this sum, which is equivalent to the income tax paid by the corporation, but the war profits tax so computed will, in the case of the individual or partner, be credited against his entire income tax, and the individual or partner will pay, as income tax, only the difference between his income tax and the war excess profits tax.

"To illustrate, assume a business with an income of $100,000 and a war excess profits tax of $40,000 in the case of a corporation. Under the same circumstances the war excess profits of the partnership would be $46,960, but this amount, divided among the various partners, would be deductible from the income tax assessed to them.

Equalizes Taxing Basis.

"As stated above, this puts the partnership and the individual upon identically the same basis except for the fact that the dividends of the corporation, if subsequently paid to the stockholders, will be taxable to the latter for the purpose of the surtax.

"Salaries, professional fees and earnings will not be subject to excess profits tax under the circumstances, and corporations whose net income consists of this form of receipts may elect to be taxed on the same basis as partnerships, in which case they are also exempt from war excess profits tax.

The Finance Committee also wrote an insurance section into the bill today, as a substitute to that adopted by the House and which the committee recently eliminated. The new section follows:

Section IV. Life insurance companies, Section 245. That there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every life insurance company, a tax as follows:

(a) In the case of a domestic life insurance company, 12 per centum of its net income.

(b) In the case of a foreign life insurance company, 12 per centum of the same proportion of the net income which the reserve fund upon business transacted within the United States is of the total reserve fund upon all business transacted, whether within or without the United States.

Section 246—That in the case of a life insurance company, the term "net income" means the gross income less—

1—An amount equal to 4 per centum of the mean of the reserve fund required by law and held during the taxable year, but not less than the amount of interest received during the taxable year which under paragraph 4 of Subdivision (B) of Section 213 is exempt from taxation under this title.

3—Taxes and other expenses paid during the taxable year exclusively in connection with real estate owned by the company, not including taxes assessed against local benefits or any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments made to increase the value of any property.

Section 247—That in the case of a life insurance company the term "gross income" means the gross income received during the taxable year from interest, dividends, and rents.

The Finance Committee has now practically completed the redraft of the Revenue bill. It will not go to the Senate, however, until next week.

STEEL CORPORATION REDUCES DIVIDEND

Extra Quarterly Payment on Common Stock Cut from 3 Per Cent. to 2 Per Cent.

NET EARNINGS FALL OFF

War Taxes Largely Responsible for Change—Unfilled Orders Show Reduction.

At yesterday's meeting of the Directors of the United States Steel Corporation the extra quarterly dividend was cut from 3 per cent. to 2 per cent. The regular dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred and 1¼ per cent. on the common stock on a 13 per cent. the comomn stock on a 13 per cent. basis instead of 17, as formerly. Dividends on the preferred stock are payable Nov. 29; books close Nov. 4 and open Nov. 7. Dividends on the common stock are payable Dec. 30; books close Nov. 29 and open Dec. 3.

The report of the corporation and its subsidiary companies for the quarter ended Sept. 30 showed a considerable falling off in revenue, compared with the quarter ended June 30 of this year and for the third, or corresponding, quarter of last year. The net earnings for the quarter, after deducting all expenses, including taxes to the amount of $101,987,347, amounted to $42,961,589, compared with $62,557,391 for the quarter ended June 30, 1918, and with $68,243,784 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1917.

The $101,987,347 set aside for taxes includes $56,987,347 for the current quarter on the basis of existing tax laws and $45,000,000 for the account of additional taxes which may be chargeable for the first nine months under proposed legislation. The net income for the quarter amounted to $32,069,392, compared with $52,399,483 for the quarter ended June 30 last and with $55,245,377 for the corresponding quarter last year. The surplus for the quarter was $3,840,561, compared with $19,017,375 for the quarter ended June 30 of this year and with $21,824,554 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1917.

The total amount which will be paid out in the extra dividend on the common stock on Dec. 30 is $10,166,050, compared with $15,249,075 the preceding quarter and with the same amount for the corresponding quarter last year. The unfilled orders on hand on Sept. 30 amounted to 8,297,905 tons, compared with 8,918,866 tons on June 30, 1918, and with 9,056,404 tons for the first quarter of this year.

There were some in the financial district who felt sure that the extra dividend would not be cut, but the more discerning were almost equally sure that a cut would have to be made, on account of the war taxes the corporation must make provision for. It was this provision which had much to do with the decrease shown in both net earnings and in surplus, and it was due to the item of taxes that the report for the third quarter of 1918 showed a falling off in net earnings, compared with the months of each preceding quarter of this year and with all the months of every quarter of last year except one. Peace indications may have had something to do with the drop in unfilled orders. A comparative summary of the report follows:

COTTON LIQUIDATION THE MARKET FEATURE

Pressure Attributed to Reports of Cold Waves Expected to Reach the Cotton Belt.

There was a continuance in yesterday's market of the preceding day's liquidation and selling activity. Active positions at the opening were from 5 points to 61 points below Monday's close. Covering on the decline rallied the market to some extent, until near noon options had recovered as much as 25 points. Cables from Liverpool indicated a better tone on the other side, but despite this such active months as December in its high for the day only touched 29.70c, January 29.20c, March 28.74, and July 28.38c, unchanged to 11 points off from Monday's final prices.

The pressure of liquidation to which the market has been subjected the last two days has been attributed to the cold waves in the West, ranging from North Dakota down to Arizona, and the prediction of frost again for the northwestern part of the cotton belt.

EXCHANGE STARTS INQUIRY.

The Committee on Business Conduct of the New York Stock Exchange has begun an investigation into the operations in Mexican Petroleum shares. Several Stock Exchange houses, suspected of having a hand in the skyrocketing of the price of this stock, received the following letter yesterday:

Gentlemen—I am instructed by the Committee on Business Conduct to ask you to report to it a full list (omitting odd lots) of purchases and sales of Mexican Petroleum made or cleared by your firm between Aug. 1 and Oct. 28. Please give the date of the transactions, the prices at which they were made, the name of the firm with which they were made, and the name of the customer for whom the orders were executed, or the name of the individual or firm for which they were cleared. Please send this information in a sealed envelope to the Committee on Business Conduct, Secretary's office, not later than Nov. 4, 1918.

Respectfully,
GEORGE W. ELY, Secretary.

Rumors that some action would be taken by the Stock Exchange authorities have been current in the Street for several days. Finally, charges of manipulation were formally made and an investigation followed.

Mexican Petroleum opened at 171 yesterday, rose to 173½, the highest point of the day, and then careened wildly up and down the board until it reached 158½, the lowest point of the session. It rallied slightly at the end of the day, closing at 159½, showing a net loss of 17 points. The number of shares dealt in was 37,000.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 11,708 packages. Monday's advance held firmly and trade fair. Supplies ample, but advices indicate lighter shipments in transit. Values unchanged throughout. EGGS.—8,442 packages. Arrivals light and the scarcity of new laid qualities is unrelieved; such are short of the urgent requirements of the trade and any lots of fresh gathered that show a good to large proportion fit for the finest class of trade are wanted beyond the supply with prices still tending in sellers' favor. The mixed and irregular qualities that comprise most of the receipts are in ample supply and move slowly at irregular and generally unimproved prices. Storage eggs sparingly offered and there is a steady fair demand at firm prices; some sales reported a little above recent quotations. Fresh gathered dirties and checks are dull, dealers generally preferring storage eggs. There is an accumulation of stock which is offering a little below recent quotations in an effort to find an outlet. Nearby white eggs continue extremely scarce; anything that is of uniformly fancy new laid quality commands extreme prices and quotations are raised to cover sales reported. Several cars of California white eggs due and over due are not yet here. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 61@62c; extra firsts, 58@60c; firsts, 54@57c; seconds, 50@53c; dirties, No. 1, 44@45c; No. 2, and poorer, 40@43c; checks, odd to choice, dry, 41@42c; under grades, 35@40c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 46@47c; firsts, charges paid, 44½@46c; seconds, charges paid, 42@44c; undergrades, 40@42c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 90@94c; ordinary to prime, 75@88c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 72@90c; pullet whites, 72@78c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 65@86c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery, browns, 64@67c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 52@62c.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed fairly steady. Final quotations showed net losses throughout the list, but were substantially better than previous low levels. Trading was restricted in volume because of the curtailment of loans by the Money Committee and interest was centered in a small group of stocks, especially Steel common. Mexican Petroleum, as usual, was violent in movement and had a net decline of 14 points. Railroad stocks were lower.

CONFER HERE ON REBUILDING FRANCE

TALK OF BELGIUM'S DEBT

Doubt Expressed That King Albert's Government Will Consent to Our Canceling It.

Various problems of reconstruction in France, Belgium, and Italy, with reference to their relation to the United States, were discussed at a conference of the Council on Foreign Relations held last night in the Metropolitan Club, Fifth Avenue and Sixtieth Street. Albert Shaw of The Review of Reviews, who has just returned from Europe, told of his impressions gained from an intimate study of industrial conditions, and Louis Chevillion explained the concrete problems to be solved from the standpoint of the engineer.

Albert Breton of the Guaranty Trust Company said he did not think France would accept from the American people a receipt for the debt which she had incurred here and that he was not afraid of any economic penetration on the part of the Germans. George W. Wickersham, who some time ago made the suggestion that the debt be canceled, maintained that the greatest problem to be met after the war will be that of preventing Germany from obtaining by peaceful means the economic supremacy which she has failed to obtain through military domination.

Other speakers were Frederic R. Coudert, L. H. Baekeland, Vittorio Faloni, representing the Italian Ambassador, and Allen Walker of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Francis H. Sisson of the Guaranty Trust Company presided.

"While Germany's plans for domination have failed to bring victory to her arms, there is every reason to suppose that even now she is planning a peace which will enable her in the next ten years to rule the world economically," said Mr. Wickersham. "How may we prevent her from doing this? Something may be done by restitution, something by making her pay the bill, but unless she is crushed the problem will not be solved. My great hope is that the Allies will dictate the peace to which she must give her assent, a peace that will leave her no opportunity for return to economic power."

Mr. Coudert expressed no fear of a "properly chastened enemy," but said that a French officer had told him what he believed to be utterly true, "that back of everything else, what makes the war is the struggle for raw materials, and that to prevent another world struggle France, England, and the United States must form a proper League of Nations shutting out none, not even an enemy who has seen the light and will live decently."

"I am not solve these problems by speaking," continued Mr. Coudert, "for some of them that we are discussing so heatedly are solving themselves while we discuss. However, whether we have Congressional reconstruction or expert reconstruction, the one unescapable, inducible problem that demands attention is that of rebuilding France, and I suggest that the eight billions of dollars necessary for the work may be raised right here in America."

Mr. Chevillion, who has just come from France after making a complete survey of the devastated regions, announced that the Premier Minister of Blockade had just appointed an agent to America to inform this Government of the needs of France for reconstruction. He said that the first problem was not that of money, or even of material, but of labor, and the next consideration was the psychology of the refugees.

"There have been 500,000 French repatriated," he continued, "and in many cases they have been absorbed into the life of other parts of France. When it is remembered that their original homes have been so completely obliterated that there is only a sprinkling of red dust where a village had stood, one can understand that the former inhabitant may not care to return. When two or three working members of the family have been taken away there is still less desire. In the region around Rheims some of the ground is snow white from the lime which has been turned up by the shells. Soils experts can say of it nothing more than, 'You must plant pine trees and then wait 100 years.' Those are some of the conditions that must be kept in mind in planning reconstruction."

Mr. Shaw sounded the keynote of the meeting in insisting that in all the dealings of America with France and Belgium there must be the soul of generosity. "We must be reckless in casting our bread upon the waters," he said.

Mr. Sisson said: "In facing the tremendously large and vital reconstruction problems of our three gallant allies we must develop within ourselves a spirit of enterprise broad enough to comprehend all their needs. We must be actuated by high principles of humanity, so as to co-operate with the Belgians, the French, and the Italians for a general prosperity and for a common progress. America's great industrial, commercial, financial, and moral strength must be placed at the disposal of these less fortunate but heroic nations across the sea who have been sacrificed in our protection."

CAN'T GET MOTOR CYCLES.

Army Needs Hold Up Police Machines—Old Ones Wearing Out.

More than 100 speeders and other violators of traffic regulations were arraigned before Magistrate House in the Traffic Court yesterday.

Motor cycle patrolmen declared that with their wornout motor cycles they are being outdistanced by both automobiles and motor cycles. There is such a shortage of motor cycles that in order to make one motor cycle work, parts have to be taken from others. Many of the machines are kept on a continual go for sixteen hours at a time, being ridden by two men each on an eight-hour tour.

Though forty new machines, it is said, have been ordered, there is no prospect of the Police Department getting them owing to army demands, despite the fact that a great deal of escort work is being done by the Motor Cycle Squad for the Government in connection with army and navy motor trucks. For that reason and the great necessity of maintaining order in the streets, it is urged that the new police motor cycles should be given priority with those ordered for the army.

New Chinese Consul for New York.

News was received from Peking yesterday by T. Hsieh of 42 Broadway that Dr. Chow Chi-lien, former Second Secretary of the Chinese Legation at Tokio, who was recalled to take charge of German and Austrian subjects, sent to Australia for internment has been appointed Consul to New York. He will leave Peking shortly for America to take up his new post at the Chinese Consulate, 295 Broadway. He received his M. A. degree from Edinburgh University and Ph.D. from a German university. Dr. Chow Chi-lien has had many years' experience in the diplomatic service and is a linguist.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Tanks Corps, U. S. A., has moved its headquarters from 19 West Forty-fourth Street to 140 West Forty-second Street. Beginning today recruits should apply at the new address. The office is on the fourth floor.

The formal opening of the Cardinal Farley Soldiers' and Sailors' Club, at 15 East Thirtieth Street, for all men in the uniform of the United States and of our Allies, will take place on Saturday. There will be sleeping accommodations, pool tables, bowling alleys, canteen, and all that tends to the well-being and recreation of the men.

There will be a solemn mass for the members of the 165th Regiment—the Fighting 69th—at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Election Day at 10 A. M., at the request of the Women's Auxiliary, to the 165th Infantry. The members of the auxiliary will attend in a body.

KEPT HER MARRIAGE SECRET

Mrs. Mathilda Clifford Dujat testified in the Supreme Court in Long Island City yesterday in the bigamy trial of Alexander Dujat, former County Clerk of Queens, that she kept her marriage to Dujat a secret for twelve years because she said she believed him when he said it would be better for the future of their child. The marriage records of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Messiah, at Greene and Clermont Avenues, Brooklyn, were admitted by Justice Cropsey to show that the marriage ceremony was read by the Rev. Frank E. Church on May 15, 1906.

The witness said that the plea to keep the marriage a secret for the sake of the child was made a few hours after they had left the church, and she added that after that she saw Dujat rarely. After her marriage she said she took the name Tillie Wilkinson "because no one would give me work as Tillie Clifford, with a child." Although Dujat visited her rarely, she said, he sent her money regularly to aid in the support of the child. She testified that she asked Dujat last Summer to announce the marriage, and then herself sent an announcement to the newspapers. She denied that political opponents of Dujat, who sought to prevent his renomination, had influenced her action.

Mrs. Edna Young Dujat, whom Dujat married on June 17, 1917, sat at Dujat's side during the trial with their three-months-old child. Upon request of Assistant District Attorney Edgar F. Hazleton Alexander, Dujat, Jr., also was brought in the courtroom and identified by Mrs. Mathilda Clifford Dujat as her child.

CONBOY CALLS FOR HELP.

Needs Volunteer Clerical Workers In Preparing Draft Statistics.

A complete analysis of the man power of the United States is being made by the selective draft officials, and Provost Marshal General Crowder has called upon his subordinates in all parts of the country to forward to Washington the reports for their districts. In order to hurry up the report from this city, Martin Conboy, New York City Director of the draft, called yesterday for volunteer clerical workers, especially accountants and statisticians, who will give their services for intensive work during whole or part of the coming week.

Mr. Conboy said that local boards have been directed to prepare a full report of their work in the last year. These reports will show all the facts and figures regarding the draft, and based upon them the Provost Marshal General will prepare a complete analysis of the national man power which will become the basis for future policies, and for practical administration.

The boards have only one week in which to complete this work, and it is not to be permitted to interfere with the regular board work. No interruption will occur in classifications or mobilization.

Persons who are willing to give their services should report at once to Selective Service Headquarters, Room 615, Hall of Records, Chambers and Centre Streets, stating their name and address, office experience, if any, the time they can devote to the service, and the part or parts of the city in which they prefer or are willing to serve.

ARREST BARON SKOTTHY.

Following his indictment by the Grand Jury, John Madrasz, also known as the Baron Skotthy, was arrested yesterday by Detective Cunniff of the District Attorney's office and lodged in the Tombs to await arraignment before Judge Malone in General Sessions. The charge against Madrasz is that he retained possession of papers belonging to the Transatlantic Trust Company, which was taken over by A. Mitchell Palmer, Enemy Alien Custodian.

According to Assistant District Attorney Rydenberg, the Federal authorities are interested in the charge against Madrasz because of his alleged connection with a plan to capture after the war trade for Austria-Hungary. In the personal papers of Madrasz, who is a naturalized American, the authorities said they found letters disclosing that Madrasz had sought the acquaintance of prominent New Yorkers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, in the name of the President, has awarded the distinguished service cross to the following officers and soldiers for the acts of extraordinary heroism described after their names:

First Lieut. Joseph C. Raible, Jr., 147th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Château-Thierry, on July 5. He and three other pilots, at an altitude of 4,700 meters, attacked an enemy formation of eight battleplanes flying at an altitude of 5,000 meters. The German machines dived on them and Lieutenant Raible engaged two in combat. In a hard fight, lasting five minutes and finishing at an altitude of 3,000 meters, he shot down one of the attacking party and drove off the other. Home address: J. C. Raible, 2,102 Chestnut Street, Hannibal, Mo.

First Lieut. Arthur H. Alexander, 6th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action on Sept. 4. While on a bombing expedition with other planes from his squadron Lieutenant Alexander engaged in a running fight over hostile territory, with a superior number of enemy battleplanes, from Friauville to Lamorville. He was seriously wounded in the abdomen by machine-gun bullet and his observer was shot through legs. Although weak from pain and loss of blood, Lieutenant Alexander piloted his plane back to his own airdrome and concealed the fact of his injury until after his observer had been cared for. Home address: Mrs. Stella H. Alexander, Box 105, Wellesley, Mass.

First Lieut. Donald B. Warner, 96th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action on Sept. 4. While on a bombing expedition with other planes from his squadron, Lieutenant Warner engaged in a running fight over hostile territory with a superior number of enemy battleplanes, from Friauville to Lamorville. During the combat he was severely wounded, his right thigh being badly shattered. In spite of his injuries, he continued to operate his machine guns until the hostile formation had been driven off and one plane shot down burning. Home address: Mrs. C. E. Warner, 175 Humphrey Street, Swampscott, Mass.

First Lieut. Alfred A. Grant, 27th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Château-Thierry, on July 2. With several other officers he encountered an enemy patrol of nine planes. During the combat he became slightly separated from the other American machines and was attacked by three of the enemy. By skillful manoeuvring and good marksmanship he destroyed one machine and drove off the other two. Home address: Alfred A. Grant, father, 86 Syracuse Street, Denton, Texas.

First Lieut. Charles W. Drew, 13th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Flirey on Aug. 15. He operated one of a patrol of four machines which attacked four enemy battleplanes. In the fight which followed he attacked in succession three of the enemy airships, driving one of them out of the battle. He then engaged another machine at close range and received ten bullets in his own plane, one of which penetrated his radiator, while another pierced his helmet. In spite of this he followed the German plane to a low altitude within the enemy's lines and shot it down in flames. During the latter part of the combat he courageously refused to abandon the fight although he had become separated from his companions and his engine had become so hot, because of the leak in his radiator, that there was imminent danger of its failing him at any moment. Next of kin: Mrs. S. E. Drew, 246 West Seymour Street, Philadelphia, Penn.

Second Lieut. Arthur H. Jones, 147th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action in the Toul sector on July 16. He and four other pilots were attacked by nine German pursuit planes. Without hesitation, he dived into the leader of the enemy formation, pouring machine-gun fire into him at 100 yards. After a quick and decisive combat, the enemy leader fell out of control. Lieutenant Jones then attacked two of the other enemy planes, which were attacking him from the rear, and succeeded in driving them off. Home addres: Mrs. A. H. Jones, Haywood, Alameda County, Cal.

First Lieut. Walter L. Avery, 95th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action north of Château-Thierry on July 25. While on his first patrol over the enemy lines, Lieutenant Avery attacked an enemy two-seater biplane. While thus occupied, he was vigorously attacked by another enemy plane, but by a quick turn, skillful manoeuvring, and accurate shooting, he drove the second plane to the American side of the lines, where it crashed into the woods. Lieutenant Avery's motor had been badly damaged by bullets, but he had a successful landing back of our lines, where he learned that the enemy pilot, who had been made a prisoner, was a German ace credited with sixteen victories. Lieutenant Avery's conduct was especially commendable because his plane had been seriously damaged at the beginning of the combat. Home address: F. E. Avery, 1,199 Franklin Avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

First Lieut. Fred W. Norton, 27th Aero Squadron, deceased.—For extraordinary heroism in action in the Toul sector on July 2 Lieutenant Norton, as flight commander, led a patrol of eight machines, the first large American formation to encounter a large German patrol. His command gave battle to nine enemy battleplanes, driven by some of the leading aces of the German Army. Although both of his guns jammed at the beginning of the fight, and were, therefore, useless, Lieutenant Norton stayed with the formation, skillfully manoeuvring his machine to the best advantage. He was attacked by enemy planes four different times, but skillfully avoided them or dived at them. His continued presence was a great moral help to his comrades, who destroyed two of the enemy planes. On July 23, this officer died of wounds received in action three days previous. Home address: Mrs. Frank Norton, 172 West First Street, Columbus, Ohio.

First Lieut. Robert Fulton Raymond, 27th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Château-Thierry on June 24, Lieutenant Raymond piloted one machine in a formation of three which was escorting three reconnoissance planes over enemy territory. On account of motor trouble, he was unable to keep up with his companions, and, while thus detached, was attacked by an enemy machine. In spite of the condition of his engine and his presence far within the German lines. Lieutenant Raymond vigorously attacked the German plane and destroyed it, after which he succeeded in rejoining his patrol. Home address: Judge Robert F. Raymond, Superior Court House, Boston, Mass.

Second Lieut. Roger W. Hitchcock, pilot, (since reported killed in action.) Home address, Mrs. Roger W. Hitchcock, wife, Bernard Apartment, Los Angeles.

Second Lieut. James S. D. Burns, 165th Infantry, observer, deceased. Next of kin, Mrs. Zfas Burns, mother, 124 Featherbed Lane, New York City.

First Lieut. Joel H. McClendon, pilot, deceased. Next of kin, J. W. McClendon, father, Farmers Branch, Texas.

Second Lieut. Charles W. Plummer, 101st F. A., observer, deceased. Next of kin, Henry W. Plummer, father, Patomaka, New Bedford, Mass.

Second Lieut. Joseph A. Palmer, 15th F. A., observer. Next of kin, John N. Palmer, father, 310 McIntyre Av., Zanesville, Ohio.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, Aug. 11. Under protection of three pursuit planes, each carrying a pilot and observer, Lieutenants Bernheimer and Jordan, in charge of a photo plane, carried out successfully a hazardous photographic mission over the enemy's lines to the River Aisne. The four American ships were attacked by twelve enemy battleplanes. Lieutenant Bernheimer, by coolly and skillfully manoeuvring his ship, and Lieutenant Jordan, by accurate operation of his machine gun, in spite of wounds in the shoulder and legs, aided materially in the victory which came to the American ships, and returned safely with thirty-six valuable photographs. The pursuit plane, operated by Lieutenants Hitchcock and Burns, was disabled while these two officers were fighting effectively. Lieutenant Burns was mortally wounded and his body jammed the controls. After a headlong fall of 2,500 meters, Lieutenant Hitchcock succeeded in regaining control of this plane and piloted it back to his airdrome. Lieutenants McClendon and Plummer were shot down and killed after a vigorous combat with five of the enemy's planes. Lieutenants Babcock and Palmer, by gallant and skillful fighting, aided in driving off the German planes and were materially responsible for the successful execution of the photographic mission.

First Lieut. Richard C. M. Page, pilot. Home address, Carter H. Page, Jr., father, Fort Meyers, Fla.; and First Lieut. John I. Rancourt, 103d F. A., observer. Home address, Miss Florence Rancourt, sister, 1,271 North Main St., Providence.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, on Aug. 9. These officers were detailed to fly without escort on a visual reconnoissance over the enemy's lines. They were attacked by six enemy battleplanes 1,800 meters over Fismes. The Americans unhesitatingly fought this superior number of the enemy. Lieutenant Rancourt was three times seriously wounded in the legs, above the knees; yet he continued to operate his machine gun and shot down one of the enemy planes. In spite of the fact that his elevator controls on one side had been shot away, Lieutenant Page skillfully manoeuvred the plane throughout the combat and piloted it safely back to his airdrome.

BELL AIDS MUSIC DRIVE.

General Says America Made Another "Record" in Argonne Fight.

Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, speaking at Carnegie last night at a meeting of The National Phonograph-Records Recruiting Corps, paid tribute to the men of the 77th Division for accomplishing, in a military sense, "one of the greatest wonders in the world" in fighting their way through the Argonne Forest in France.

"It was a feat so difficult," General Bell declared, "that this was probably the first time in history that any army undertook to fight another army which had got hold of that forest first. Armies have always gone around the Argonne Forest. Napoleon was in the habit of going around it, and so were the Huns. No other army within my knowledge has ever undertaken in force the task of holding the Argonne Forest. Your own division has done it."

General Bell made a plea in behalf of the "Slacker Record Drive," which is being made all over the country with the idea of getting 1,000,000 phonograph records to send to soldiers and sailors here and overseas. He told the audience that records should be sent to the New York City Committee's headquarters at 21 East Fortieth Street.

The committee had an elaborate musical program, in which Mme. Schumann-Heink, Hipolito Lazaro, Frieda Hempel, Maud Powell, Francis Rogers, Aurore La Croix, Margaret Farnum, Arthur Middleton, and Aurelio Giorni appeared in the course of the evening.

How Little Can You Pay And Still Get Service In Shoes

Experience ought to tell you where to stop—your experience, your dealers, or your manufacturer's.

The Regal Shoe Company has earned a unique position in America. It has gained nearly a million customers through the Regal policy of "greater sales at a less profit per pair".

The great Regal factories have introduced radical new methods to eliminate waste. Our volume is concentrated solely on the wanted styles and leathers—our factories run continuously, no shut-downs for the customary inventory-taking.

Each year for over a quarter of a century the Regal Shoe Company has decided upon, and produced, a shoe which gave sound materials, good workmanship, correct style at a minimum price.

Every season for the last four years costs have been increasing. You cannot judge shoes today by the price you used to pay.

Even when you count in all the Regal advantages, we say frankly: the man who wants the right kind of shoe today should pay not less than $5.50.
